U. S. Puts Nazis on Tarif Blacklist

25 PCT. PENALTY LEVY IMPOSED ON REICH GOODS

Hitler's System of Subsidies Hit.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—Germany was placed at the top of America's trade blacklist today as the United States prepared to join Great Britain and France in a stop-Hitler drive.

The treasury department announced imposition of countervailing duties [penalties] against imports of German goods to this country, effective April 23.

Under the tarif law of 1930 the administration can apply penalty duties against nations that grant subsidies enabling their exporters to dump goods on the American market.

Hundreds of items among German goods are to be subject to a penalty of 25 per cent of the invoice value in addition to regular tarif duties before the goods will be released from customs.

Tarif to Equal Subsidy.

If it is later found no subsidy was involved, the 25 per cent charge will be refunded. If it is determined a subsidy was involved, the full amount of the subsidy will be charged against the goods. If that amount is smaller than the 25 per cent charge, the balance will be refunded. If the subsidy is found to be greater than the 25 per cent assessment, the importer will have to pay the difference.

Attorney General Frank Murphy said that on German goods bartered for cotton, one of Germany's biggest imports from the United States, the subsidy is 33⅓ per cent. This is granted, he said, under an elaborate system controled by the German government.

Nazi System Explained.

Here is how U. S. officials explained the German system:

An American wants to buy $1,000 in cameras. He is made to buy $1,000 of cotton, say on U. S. market. The receiver of cotton in Germany pays $1,333 to Nazi government. The camera maker delivers $1,000 worth of cameras and gets the $1,333, of which $333 is a subsidy.

The treasury's action is expected further to discourage trade relations between the United States and Germany. Their trade has been dropping and is only 50 per cent of the 1932-'33 level.

Hitler Coup Speeds Order.

The penalty duties had been under consideration as a protest against the German barter trade system which, it is charged, is used to conceal export subsidies, but it was considered significant that the penalties were not imposed until after Chancellor Hitler grabbed the Czechs. It was considered equally significant that the action was based on an opinion by Attorney General Murphy which was dated today, although it had been asked in November.

Imposition of the penalty duties followed yesterday's withdrawal by the United States treasury of favored nation tarif treatment for the provinces of Bohemia, Moravia, and Slovakia, which Hitler seized.

Trade Embargo Held Possible.

The treasury's action today prompted an inquiry at the state department as to how far the administration can go in translating into action abhorence of the Nazi aggression.

It was said that the government can move forward to new reprisals without going to congress for authority.

Under the emergency banking act of 1933 President Roosevelt was given vast powers over financial transactions with foreign nations. Under these powers, officials said, he can put an embargo on imports from and exports to Germany.

The state department announced today that it is preparing to send to Germany an official note expected to be a bristling condemnation of the final partition of Czecho-Slovakia. It will follow British and French protests.

Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles indicated today that the United States is taking a stand similar to that of Great Britain and France in refusing to recognize the legality of the absorption of Czecho-Slovakia.

Airliner Falls in Dive Test; 10 Aboard Die

Alder, Wash., March 18.—[Special.]—Spinning out of the clouds here this afternoon, the Boeing Aircraft company's new $500,000 experimental stratoliner crashed in a wooded swampland, killing ten men.

Arrow points to Alder, scene of crash.

Two of the victims were members of a Royal Dutch mission, one was the chief test pilot for Transcontinental and Western Air, and seven were Boeing employés. The disaster apparently occurred during a test power dive. The plane lost its tail, one wing, and one of its engines before it struck the ground. All on board were killed.

Flew in China for Year.

Barr returned to the United States only a few weeks ago after being the personal pilot of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, wife of the Chinese general, for more than a year. Cram, 32 years old, is the son of Ralph W. Cram, Davenport, Ia., newspaper publisher and air enthusiast for whom Cram field, the Davenport municipal airport is named.

Half a dozen persons who saw the crash agreed the 33 passenger commercial counterpart of the army's B-17 flying fortresses came out of the clouds in a power dive. The air speed indicator found in the wreckage was jammed at 200 miles an hour.

Examination of the wreckage showed Barr was at the controls. He cut the switches before the ship hit the ground and the 3,000 gallons of gasoline the plane carried did not ignite.

Witnesses said when the plane was between 8,000 and 10,000 feet in the air the tail appeared to snap off. At that moment the plane was in a steep dive. Then the left outer motor fell to the ground and the left wing snapped off as it plunged earthward.

Wreckage Is Scattered.

The stories of witnesses were borne out by the scattered wreckage. The motor was found 1,000 yards from where the fuselage fell. Part of the left wing was 200 yards from the wreck and another piece was 500 yards away.

The stratoliner was the first of four to be built by the Boeing company. It had a wing spread of 107 feet, was 74 feet long, and weighed 45,000 pounds.

The plane was powered with four 1,100 horsepower Wright Cyclone engines and was designed to fly at 20,000 feet, far above weather disturbances.

The plane had a sealed cabin in which thirty-three passengers could be seated. Two superchargers kept sea level pressure within the cabin so that passengers and the crew would find no discomfort in flying through the substratosphere.

ILLINOIS MOTHERS AGED 10 TO 14 BEAR 66 BABIES DURING YEAR

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—In 1937, the last year for which detailed figures are available, sixty-six children were born in Illinois to mothers between the ages of 10 and 14, a special census study disclosed today.

Mothers from 15 to 19 years old had 12,138 children. Only 1,212 of the babies had fathers under 19.

Only four children were born to mothers between 50 and 54, but 1,132 babies had fathers in that age group.

Saga of a $5 Dog That Saved 3 in Blizzard

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, March 18.—[Special.]—Alaska has a new heroine. She's not much to look at, this 8 year old husky called Lady; a snarling, tough old bit of dogflesh worth $5 as an investment. But three hardened sourdoughs are mighty grateful to her. She saved them from death in the blizzard that recently swept the bleak Kalyuh mountains.

The story was told today by Frank Alba, who is recovering from a broken leg in St. Joseph's hospital here. He was prospecting in the mountains when he suffered the injury. His partner, Kenneth Oxford, and a neighbor, Frank Spieljack, bound him on a sled. They made up a team of eight dogs, with Lady in the lead, and set out for the nearest settlement, Kaltag.

Blizzard Sweeps Down.

That was on a Monday. The next day the blizzard swept down on them. They mushed on and for three days the blizzard raged. Dog food ran out and the sourdoughs gave their bacon to the dogs.

Then Oxford played out. He lay down in the snow and urged Spieljack to take Alba on to Kaltag. Two hours later he decided there was no hope of reaching Kaltag and turned back in search of a shelter tent.

Dog Finds Tent.

They came upon Oxford, wandering in a daze. The night was pitch black and neither he nor Spieljack could direct the dogs.

"And that's where old Lady came in," said Alba. "She wouldn't keep the trail Spieljack set for her and finally got her way. She just went on and when she laid over it was right in front of the tent. We'd never have found it without her. The next day Spieljack went into Kaltag and returned with a rescue party.

"Old Lady is sure a swell dog," said Alba. "I gave $5 for her and she is just skin and bones. But I wouldn't take $500 for her now."

SPURNS PROTESTS; CALLS ENVOY HOME; ALLIES MAP PLANS TO SAVE RUMANIA

Russia Asked to Aid; Dictatorship for French Approved.

LONDON, March 18.—(AP)—Great Britain and France today sent notes to Germany, denouncing her seizure of Czecho-Slovakia, and acted to block a reported Nazi move against Rumania.

Both nations, it was said on high authority, are trying to persuade soviet Russia to join them in aiding Rumania to protect herself against a German threat to her independent economic existence.

Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain returned to London from Birmingham and presided over a two and one-half hour cabinet session—the first Saturday session of the cabinet since last year's September crisis.

Daladier Made Dictator.

In Paris Premier Daladier won from his chamber of deputies approval of his plan to rule France by dictatorial powers until Nov. 30. He called a special cabinet meeting for tomorrow, at which it was expected specialists would be called up to join the French army.

No official announcement followed the British cabinet meeting, but it was stated authoritatively that the session dealt with a request from Rumania for a statement of Britain's position.

Rumania was reported to have received—and rejected—a virtual ultimatum from Germany to grant the reich sole access to Rumania's rich oil, grain and other resources in exchange for German "protection" of Rumanian territory.

Capitals Deny Report.

The report met official denials in both Berlin and Bucharest, but the Press Association, a British news agency with excellent government sources, carried a report that the Rumanian minister to London had informed the foreign office of the demands and of the rejection.

Rumania was understood to have asked Britain and France particularly how far they were prepared to go to protect her in any stand against Germany.

Downing street was back in a "crisis atmosphere" tonight, remindful of the fearful days of last fall. Cabinet ministers were instructed to remain within quick access of London, although no further cabinet meeting was called in advance of the regular session next Wednesday.

Crowds Stand in Street.

Chamberlain, however, was expected to have a long session with Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax tomorrow and perhaps call a meeting of the inner cabinet.

In Downing street, where the prime minister's home is located, several hundred persons stood around in the cold, waiting for a glimpse of the ministers.

Even the foreign office, which usually is vacated promptly and completely every Saturday noon, was brightly lit and active late tonight.

Informed quarters expected no spectacular move immediately on the part of Britain, although Britsh policy was expected to veer definitly toward Russia and away from Germany.

May Revamp Cabinet.

There were conjectures among observers that Chamberlain might open his cabinet to such dissident conservatives as former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and former First Lord of the Admiralty Alfred Duff-Cooper. Both resigned in protest against Chamberlain's now-abandoned appeasement policy. Winston Churchill, outspoken veteran of many governments and many crises, also might be included in the government. There were conjectures, too, that Chamberlain was ready to back conscription.

That the disillusioned Chamberlain has abandoned his appeasement policy he made clear last night in his Birmingham speech. Now he is replacing it with a "Stop Hitler" movement, acting particularly with France but also with other nations wishing to cooperate.

The immediate question before the cabinet today was at what point to erect a barrier against Nazi aggression. Rumania's precarious position was in the forefront.

Callers at the foreign office today included Joseph P. Kennedy, American ambassador.

Robert S. Hudson, secretary of overseas trade, left today on a trade visit to Warsaw, Moscow and other northern capitals. He was to have gone to Berlin first, but that stop was canceled after Hitler's coup. Hudson will seek trade agreements in the countries he visits.

FUEHRER RACES WITH TIME IN HIS DASH TO POWER

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—Further details of the strange story of Adolf Hitler and his dream of setting up a great German empire were disclosed to THE TRIBUNE's correspondent here today. The story was brought to America by a man high in the confidence of many of Germany's ruling officials, who has returned here after spending several months in Germany. Yesterday this man disclosed the fanatical aim of the German dictator to conquer Europe and the extensive preparations he is taking to accompilsh this aim. The details he added today give a more complete understanding of what is going on in Germany. Here is the story he told.

SETS SIX MONTHS LIMIT

Reichsfuehrer Hitler is racing against time to accomplish his avowed purpose of establishing Germany as the master of Europe. He, himself, admitted this in an address to his generals at the end of January. At that meeting, the Fuehrer told his military leaders:

"I have six months in which I can secure the future of Germany. This period must be used."

His statement was interpreted to mean that it would take France and England six months to acquire enough courage to call his bluff.

That the generals heeded their Fuehrer's command is well illustrated by events of the past week. The German army is well on its way to the east, toward the wheat fields of the soviet Russian Ukraine. The republic of Czecho-Slovakia has been destroyed; Bohemia, Moravia, and Slovakia are ruled by Nazi troops; and the rest of Europe is trembling, fearful of where the German juggernaut will strike next.

Advisers Isolate Hitler.

Whether Hitler realizes fully the situation he has unleashed upon the world is debatable. The men and women who guide the Fuehrer form a solid barrier around him. They constitute a radical faction of the Nazi party, and they see to it that only people who suit them get through to him.

Those men in Hitler's entourage who dared tell him a few truths occasionally no longer have access to him. They have been gotten rid of in various ways, some of them by being appointed to diplomatic or other posts abroad.

How far the isolation of Hitler has gone is illustrated by the fact that a number of his own cabinet ministers have not seen him alone for fourteen months. One of these ministers, Hans Kerrl, minister for ecclesiastical affairs, wrote a report on the church

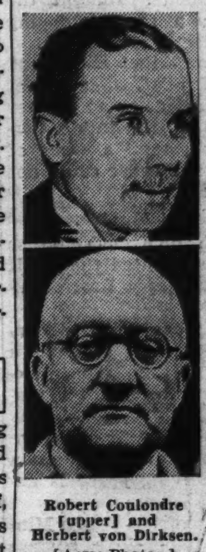
Czech Planes Added to German Force; New Troops Called.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 18.—Reichsfuehrer Hitler tonight brusquely rejected British and French protests against his conquest of Czecho-Slovakia. The protests, which were delivered to the Nazi government earlier in the day, had charged that the incorporation into Germany of Bohemia, Moravia, and Slovakia was illegal and a violation of the Munich agreement, which defined the future frontiers of Czecho-Slovakia. The German reply said the protests "lacked every political, legal, and moral basis."



Robert Coulondre [upper] and Herbert von Dirksen. [Acme Photos.]

To emphasize his contempt for his critics abroad, Hitler recalled Herbert von Dirksen, his ambassador to Great Britain, "to make a report." This was in retaliation against the British action yesterday in recalling Sir Nevile Henderson, British ambassador to Berlin. Henderson left the German capital for London tonight.

French Envoy Leaves Tomorrow.

Robert Coulondre, the French ambassador, who also has been called home by his government, will leave Berlin Monday. The German government has as yet taken no action regarding the Nazi ambassador to Paris.

While this controversy with the other European powers was going on, Hitler serenely proceeded to consolidate his territorial gains. He named Baron Konstantin von Neurath, president of the secret German cabinet council and former foreign minister, as Reichsprotector of Bohemia and Moravia. Von Neurath, responsible only to Hitler, will have supreme power over 7,000,000 Czechs who have become German subjects. He also will retain his post as head of the secret cabinet council.

Karl Hermann Frank, Nazi deputy district leader for Sudetenland, was named von Neurath's secretary of state, and Kurt von Burgsdorf was appointed ministerial director.

Creates New Air Fleet.

Simultaneously, Hitler lost no time in making use of the Czech air force. Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, air minister and Hitler's right hand man, announced the formation of a fourth Nazi air fleet. It will include the highly efficient Czech planes seized by the German army. The new air fleet is described by the Nazis as a "further gigantic growth in strength, far exceeding the expansion plans hitherto made for the German air force."

Lieut. Gen. Alexander Loehr, until now in charge of the air force of Austria, was promoted to the rank of general of aviation and placed in command of the new unit. The new air fleet command will embrace Bohemia, Moravia, Sudetenland, Austria, and Silesia.

Pan-Germany now has two air fleets stationed in the east, one in the north, and one in the west. No air fleet is stationed in the south. This is considered unnecessary in view of the close military ties between Germany and Italy.

Steam Roller Presses Onward.

The German steam roller continued in other ways to press onward in an effort to impose the Nazi will on Europe. It is following the design that has become familiar in Europe—of actions against words, tanks against ink. The actions are of all encompassing scope.

The Nazis have called more reservists to the colors. Only a few days ago it was learned that the German army had been reinforced by three new corps to a total of 21. On April 1 Germany's second 35,000 ton battleship will slide down the ways in the port of Wilhelmshaven.

The Nazis are preparing to press Czech soldiers into service in the German army as "volunteers." These "volunteers," who will be compelled to serve or work wherever the Germans see fit, will be removed from

A big German military delegation is in, or on its way to Italy, to help Premier Mussolini prepare for new Italian-German action.

Nazi economic delegates are trying to scare Rumania into accepting German economic rule. They have promised Bucharest that Germany will respect Rumania's borders if its industrial activities are reduced. The Rumanians are requested to devote themselves to agriculture and to purchase everything else they need from Germany and their former source of supply, Czecho-Slovakia.

If England and France fail to extend immediately effective industrial help to Rumania, enabling it to develop its industry, the German thumbscrew is expected to prove effective in that country which, thanks to its oil and wheat, has been coveted by the Germans for years.

Danes and Belgians Menaced.

Nazi groups in Danish Schleswig-Holstein and in Belgium at Eupen and Malmedy are threatening to rise and "call for German help."

The Lithuanian foreign minister, Juozas Urbsys, is on his way to Berlin to "negotiate" concerning the former German area of Memel, which Hitler wants to reincorporate.

The German Nazi minorities in Poland are displaying extraordinary activities, attempting to provoke incidents on the strength of which German troops would "come to their rescue."

Meantime Berlin is preparing the biggest welcoming demonstration it ever planned for Hitler. The Fuehrer is due to reënter the capital at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow after having toured Bohemia, Moravia, and Austria. He will arrive at a small station southeast of Berlin, which will give the population of the poorer districts a chance to hail the Fuehrer. All day today Nazi party functionaires worked to beautify the broad avenues of the city with their rows of gray and brown houses. Flags, candle lights, and Japanese lanterns were distributed to the residents. Tonight the Fuehrer slept in a secret stopping place between Vienna and Berlin.

Nazi circles report that Hitler had planned to visit Bratislava, capital of Slovakia, but canceled the visit after a bomb had been thrown into a German bank. This set off a wave of anti-Jewish riots and order could not be fully guaranteed.

Nazis Interpret Munich.

Refuting British and French charges that Germany has violated the spirit of Munich, the newspaper Boersenzeitung tonight said:

"The Munich agreement rightly interpreted has a dynamic and not a static character. Within the framework of the great process of liberation from the Versailles treaty, Munich is only an episode, just as the incorporation of Bohemia and Moravia into the German living space is another episode."

The Nazi press scoffs at Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's suggestion that Germany should have consulted England before invading Czecho-Slovakia.

"This is a purely German affair and concerns us only, and at the utmost the Czech people," one paper said.

"Chamberlain's speech seems to have had the desired effect by pouring more fuel into the fire of British excitement and by making a good impression on America and France," said the Lokalanzeiger. "Above all, the prime minister's speech serves to cover up the present weakness of Great Britain."

Display Armed Might Today.

To further strengthen the German people's "spirit of defense," Pan-Germany tomorrow will celebrate the "day of the German armed forces." Barracks will be thrown open to the public throughout the country and for a small contribution to the Winter Help fund Germans will be permitted to see troops in battle drill or to inspect tanks and planes.

Meantime the Carpatho-Ukrainians [Ruthenians] are seeking to escape their conquest by Hungary. Julian Revay, Carpatho-Ukrainian leader, has established headquarters in a Vienna hotel. He is engaged in negotiations with the Nazis.

Hitler Wildly Cheered While Visiting Vienna

Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany stands in an automobile outside a Vienna hotel acknowledging tumultuous cheers of Austrians, whom he took into the reich a year ago. The fuehrer is scheduled to return to Berlin this evening, and a great welcoming demonstration is being prepared.

WHO WILL HITLER STRIKE AT NEXT? HUNGARIANS ASK

See Signs Unfavorable to Rumania.

BY ALEX SMALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUDAPEST, Hungary, March 18.—Where will the next blow fall? That is the question being asked in Budapest tonight. And the answer—from purely a Hungarian point of view—is not on Hungary, since the country is for all practical purposes a part of the German system.

That being the case, opinion here is that Rumania is next on the list. Looking at the map, Germany may seem to be a long way from Rumania, even if Slovakia is counted as a part of Germany. But Germany is a neighbor of Rumania if Hungary is counted as a part of the German commonwealth and if the broad plains of Hungary can be used as a highway for German troop movements. It is absolutely certain that Hungary thus can be so used.

Army a Modern One.

Two points in the present situation are worthy of notice. The first is that the Hungarians have something like 250,000 troops occupying Czecho-Slovakia's former easternmost province of Carpatho-Ukraine [Ruthenia] and that this force is completely outfitted with the latest implements of modern war. Its equipment includes tanks, anti-aircraft guns, and heavy artillery.

No such force and equipment were necessary for the occupation of that little mountainous province, which is sparsely populated by a poverty-stricken and primitive people, of whom charitable observers say "their mentality is backward." Any one can draw his own conclusions as to why Hungary sent into that province a force so out of proportion with the task it was ordered to accomplish.

Nazi Summons to Rumania.

The second important point in the situation is that there has been a German ultimatum to Rumania. Perhaps ultimatum is too strong a word, since it was simply a memorandum couched in menacing tones, but with a time fuse on it. In substance, it summoned Rumania to become part of the German economic system.

Specifically it asked Rumania to sign an agreement to demobilize its present industrial equipment and become entirely a nation producing agricultural products and raw materials, such as oil. Further, all manufactured goods were to be purchased from Germany and trade with other countries to cease for all practical purposes.

These are the elements of the situation as seen in Budapest. As a possible alternative to an immediate attack on Rumania, it is suggested the Germans lately have shown extreme solicitude for the fate of Croatians inside Jugo-Slavia. Presently, it is said, Germany may discover that the Croatians, like the Czechs, inhabit "an ancient German land" and need to be freed from "intolerable oppression."

A GLUM CHAMBERLAIN TELLS PHOTOGRAPHER IT'S NO TIME TO SMILE

BIRMINGHAM, England, March 18.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain left Birmingham today in glum mood to attend an extraordinary cabinet session in London. To a photographer who asked him for a "smiling" pose, the prime minister answered:

NEW MASTERS GRILL 10,000 IN CONQUERED LAND

Czechs Stand at Liberty's Flames and Weep.

PRAGUE, March 18.—(AP)—At least 10,000 residents of Bohemia and Moravia were known tonight to have been ordered to report for questioning by the new German masters of broken Czecho-Slovakia. The orders did not mean that they would all be detained, but numerous arrests are known to have been made.

The partitioned republic was kept in ignorance of the fact that the United States, Great Britain, and France had denounced Germany's absorption of Czecho-Slovakia.

Only those few Czechs who heard foreign news broadcasts had any inkling the outside world was showing any interest in their fate.

German Protector Named.

Newspapers were filled instead with announcement of the appointment of Baron Konstantin von Neurath as German protector over Bohemia and Moravia and that Karl Hermann Frank, assistant leader of the Sudeten struggle last year, would become his secretary of state.

All day Prague residents continued their silent demonstrations before the Rathaus war memorial honoring patriots who were killed in 1620, when Czechs once before lost their independence.

Men, women and children—few without tears—stood with bared heads before the memorial flanked by two eternal flames.

Surrender Their Arms.

Inside the Rathaus [city hall], citizens complied with a military order requiring them to surrender all armaments. Revolvers, old muskets and antique weapons of all sorts were carted into the building and turned over to authorities, who gave receipts in return.

Reports from Prague suburbs said at least 200 women and children had spent last night hiding in the woods. Foreigners today were forbidden to enter the Y. M. C. A. which had been headquarters for relief work among political refugees before the German conquest.

Campaign Against Jews.

The Nazi campaign against Jews continued. A Jewish synagogue in Brunn was destroyed today by fire of unknown origin.

"No Jews Wanted" signs appeared in coffee houses of Maehrisch-Ostrau. Other signs appeared in stores designating the owners as German, Czech or Jewish.

RUMANIAN, RED TROOPS MASS TO HALT NAZI PUSH

Russia Prepares Defense Line for Attack.

King Carol.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 18.—[U. P.]—Rumania and soviet Russia have massed troops along the frontiers of provinces athwart the path of any German march to the east, it was reported tonight.

Although the Rumanian government, headed by King Carol, denied that technical mobilization was under way, from authoritative quarters it was learned forces in Transylvania along the Hungarian frontier had been brought to full war time strength of about 200,000 men.

Travelers arriving from Bessarabia and northern Bukovina reported that Russia was fortifying and manning in the Ukraine its own "Maginot line" along the Dniester river, the natural boundary between Russia and Rumania.

Enter Lines During Night.

They said troops were being transported into the lines during the night from Kamenets-Podetsk and Moghiliev and that entrenchments were being built. The measures were not believed directed against Rumania, but as a defense against a possible German attack.

In Transylvania, former Hungarian principality, Rumanian authorities took what they called "precautionary military measures," increasing the strength of all units, including the air forces, to a war time footing.

In other parts of the country troops apparently were still at peacetime strength, but officials admitted that preparations had been made for mobilization in the event of an emergency.

War scares filled the nation. Public nervousness increased hourly, fed by wild rumors. Clothing stores and shoe shops were almost sold out and food hoarding had started in Bucharest.

Official quarters said Rumania was "fully able and ready to protect her territory and under no circumstances will an inch be ceded."

Reports that Dr. Hellmuth Wohlthat, chief of the German economic commission to Rumania, had presented demands tantamount to an economic ultimatum, were also denied by the government.

Increase in Trade Seen.

According to the official version of Wohlthat conversations with the Rumanian government, they dealt merely with the application of the commercial accord concluded between the two countries in November.

It was admitted, however, that the arrangements may include changes in the various categories of imports and exports and also an increase in trade volume with Germany. Government officials said there had been a suggestion by Rumania to Germany or Great Britain to guarantee or protect the Rumanian border.

Official quarters also emphasized that there had been complete unanimity at last night's crown council meeting and said there was no question of cabinet changes or the formation of an "all-party cabinet" as had been rumored. Some political quarters said, however, that Germany's political and economic influence in Rumania undoubtedly would be strengthened because of the greater weight the reich would be able to exercise throughout the Danube basin by the creation of the new protectorate in former Czecho-Slovakia.

Dr. Benes to Broadcast on European Crisis Today

Dr. Eduard Benes, former president of Czecho-Slovakia, will give his first extended statement on the current crisis in Europe during the broadcast period of the University of Chicago Round Table at 11:30 a. m. today over WMAQ and the National Broadcasting company network. Dr. Benes is now lecturing at the University of Chicago.

Prepare to Defend Rumania

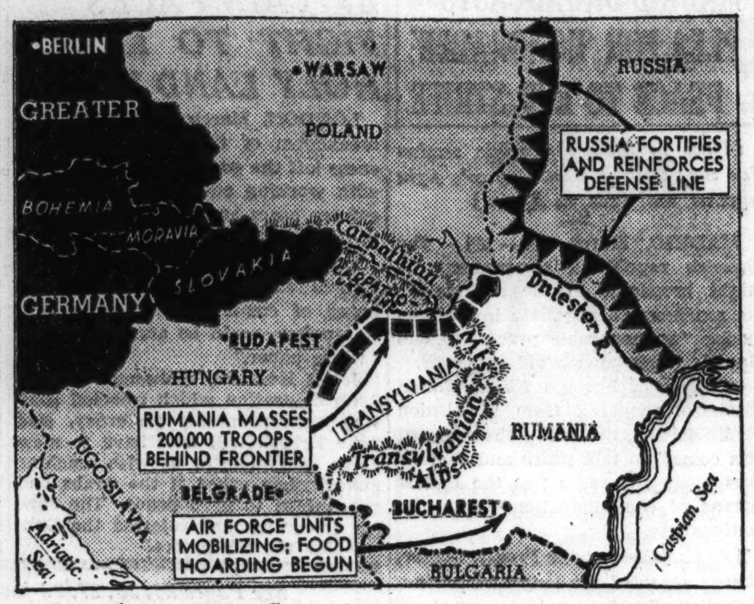
[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Rumania strengthened its border points yesterday in anticipation of trouble with Germany growing out of the seizure of Czecho-Slovakia. These are machine gunners of the Rumanian army as they appeared in recent maneuvers.



Preparing to oppose German's drive to the east, if it should be continued, soviet Russia is strengthening its defenses along the border indicated by line of triangles, and Rumania is increasing its forces along boundary marked with heavy broken line.

TARIF REPRISAL OF U. S. SHOCKS NAZI OFFICIALS

BERLIN, March 18.—[Special.]—Washington's imposition of 25 per cent countervailing duties on all German exports to the United States came as a stunning blow to German official and business circles. There is no doubt that the new duties are prohibitive and virtually shut out Germany from her normally biggest overseas market.

German economic circles admit frankly that Germany already has cut her imports from the United States to the limit, and whatever she still buys there must be bought because of being unable to get it elsewhere.

A further serious reduction in her exports to the United States would curtail her ability to pay for imports even at the present volume, which in turn threatens seriously to impair her industrial production, which is the basis of her armed strength that is winning her such unresisted victories.

MEXICO MAKES BIG HOLIDAY OVER U. S. OIL SEIZURE

MEXICO CITY, March 18.—(AP)—Mexico today celebrated the first anniversary of its expropriation of American and British oil properties valued by their owners at $400,000,000.

The expropriation was followed by an economic depression in Mexico, difficulties in producing, distributing and selling oil, and a diplomatic break with Great Britain.

But today there were barbecues, dances, sports festivals, school programs, and parades in Mexico City and elsewhere.

CZECH CONSUL KEEPS UP WORK IN CHICAGO; DEFIES NAZI REGIME

Anton Holy, Czecho-Slovakian consul, continued yesterday to defy the new German rulers of his native land. Through his secretary, Holy announced that the consulate would remain open until he received orders to the contrary from the minister at Washington, Col. Vladimar Hurban.

Col. Hurban has refused to recognize the new government at Prague. He stated previously that no one in the new government has the right to take over the legation or consulates, because force was used in violating the Czecho-Slovakian constitution.

Holy's secretary said the consulate here and the others at New York, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Minneapolis, San Francisco, and Los Angeles had taken the same stand. "We are taking no orders from Germany or from the government at Prague which is one of oppression and dictatorship," he said.

E. L. Baer, the German consul, said he had received no instructions from his foreign office regarding the Czecho-Slovakian situation.

CZECH MINISTER BORN TO ROLE OF DEFYING HITLER

His Childhood Steeped in Hate for Oppressors.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Col. Hurban.

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—In the wild Carpathian countrv where he was born almost fifty-six years ago Col. Vladimir S. Hurban, the minister without a country, developed the courage which has led him to defy Adolf Hitler.

Hurban is a Slovak, but from a heritage of hatred for Hungary and Germany he has developed a warm love for Czecho-Slovakia, the nation he helped found.

Col. Hurban helped establish the Czech legation here. That is one reason he refuses to surrender it to the German embassy and yield the last free ground of his country.

Father a Rebel of 1848.

The minister was reared in Turcansky Svaty Martin, a town where imperious Magyars chaffed the proud Slovaks. His grandfather took part in an ill-fated revolt in 1848 against the Austro-Hungarian yoke.

Thirty years ago, already a soldier and nursing a deep hatred of Germans and Hungarians, Hurban went to Russia. For five years he was professor of military tactics in St. Petersburg.

When the world war broke out he sympathized, like most of his countrymen, with the allies. He enlisted in the Russian army. At the outbreak of the Russian revolution, Hurban and others of the 70,000 Czechs in the Russian army quarreled with Kerensky because he would not permit them to fight as a unit.

Adviser to Masaryk.

The Czech committee of Vladivostok in 1918 sent Hurban to Washington to confer with the late President Masaryk on the Siberian Czech legion. He was raised to the rank of colonel and became Masaryk's military adviser.

Before he left for Europe with Masaryk, Hurban became engaged to Miss Olga Boor, who was born in Chicago of Slovak parents. They were married in 1919 when he returned to Washington as military attaché of the Czech legation.

Hurban was military attaché here until 1924, when he became chargé d'affaires in Egypt. In 1930 he was made minister to Sweden and in 1936 he was named minister to the United States and Cuba.

HUNGARY FIGHTS GUERRILLA BANDS IN OCCUPIED AREA

Blockades Roads Leading Into Rumania.

TIVADAR, Carpatho-Ukraine [on the Rumanian Frontier], March 18.—(AP)—Hungarian troops tonight completed occupation of eastern Carpatho-Ukraine, facing Rumania, and began blocking roads into Rumania.

The main road in the easternmost sector, seized by a column under Col. Baron Unger, was blocked with tree trunks and barbed wire to a depth of a quarter of a mile back from the border. Troops dug deep ditches on either side of the road. The blockades were erected, it was said, to stop all trafic with Rumania.

Well Equipped Troops.

An estimated 200,000 Hungarian troops were in eastern Ruthenia alone. Excellently uniformed and equipped, they were pouring into the eastern area, where concrete roads facilitate progress even by the heaviest trucks.

The frontier between Carpatho-Ukraine [Ruthenia] and Rumania has no fortifications and the highways, built by Czecho-Slovakia, had been meant for the use of Rumanian reenforcements if Czecho-Slovakia needed support.

Irregulars Hold Out.

Carpatho-Ukraine has been almost completely cleared of Czech troops by the fast moving Hungarian units, but Ukrainian irregular bands hiding in mountain recesses still were holding out.

[Another dispach from Vienna said that the Ruthenian official press bureau reported last night that severe fighting continued in the snowy mountain passes of Carpatho-Ukraine. Guardsmen resisting the advance were said to have killed 300 Hungarians.]

It was learned that Hungary recently had received more than 5,000 trucks from Germany and Italy. She is short of motor vehicles. Thousands of packhorses have been requisitioned from farms and numbers of peasant carts are moving up to the frontier.

Rejoicing at Common Frontier

[Associated Press Wirephoto: By radio from London.]

Happy at the realization of the twenty year dream of a common frontier, Polish soldiers greet Hungarians who have marched across Carpatho-Ukraine to wipe out the wedge of Czecho-Slovak land that has separated Poland and Hungary.

MADRID BROADCASTS PLEA FOR 'HONORABLE' PEACE TO END STRIFE

MADRID, March 18. — (AP) — The Spanish republican government tonight broadcast to the nationalists its readiness to negotiate immediately for "an honorable peace" to end Spain's thirty month old civil war.

Minister of Foreign Affairs Julian Besteiro, speaking from the Union Radio station, declared "the moment has come" to talk peace and that he was using the radio "as the fastest means of communication" with the nationalists.

[At Hendaye, at the French border, it was reported the long awaited nationalist offensive against central republican Spain would be launched early next week by an army of more than 500,000 men, with Madrid the chief target of attack.]

At Barcelona a nationalist military tribunal sentenced to death Julian Alonso Soto, accused of complicity in the killings of six priests.

BRITAIN FACES FIGHT TO KEEP HOLY LAND PEACE

LONDON, March 18.—[U. P.]—The breakdown of the Palestine conferences left the government faced today with working out its own policy to enforce peace among Jews and Arabs in the Holy Land.

Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald said he would inform the house of commons next week that this policy would be announced in a "white paper."

Jemal Husseini, spokesman for the Arab delegation which rejected British peace proposals yesterday, said "the British will now have to mow down every one of us with machine guns," when asked if the Arabs had guaranteed to keep peace. The Jewish delegation had rejected the British plan the day before.

MOBILIZE SOUTH AFRICAN FORCES; FEAR NAZI MOVE

PRETORIA, South Africa, March 18.—[U. P.]—All key points throughout South Africa were heavily guarded today after the government had refused to allow a shipload of German immigrants to disembark.

Urgent orders were issued mobilizing all South African police reserves, including Europeans, Asiatics, and Africans. Units of the air force were held in readiness to proceed to southwest Africa, Germany's former colony, where it was feared a state of emergency might arise.

Col. I. P. De Villiers, police commissioner, said that "our purpose is to deal with any local repercussions from the international situation."

The government apparently acted chiefly because of a German protest against restrictions on the immigration of Germans into the mandated territory.

SPINSTERS' GIFT TO CHAMBERLAIN: A SILK UMBRELLA

BIRMINGHAM, England, March 18.—(AP)—Two thousand British spinsters today celebrated Prime Minister Chamberlain's 70th birthday by buying him a silk umbrella tied with a lilac colored bow.

Miss Florence White, national organizer of the Spinsters' Pension association, flourished the umbrella at a massmeeting and declared:

"I am sure that when he looks at it, it will take his mind off that man Hitler and he will think of something far more pleasant—we spinsters."

2 West Point Cadets Hang Nazi Flag at Drill Ground

West Point, N. Y., March 18.—[Special.]—Two cadets of the United States Military academy tonight reported to academy officials that as a joke they had hung a home made swastika flag of Nazi Germany from the pole where a signal announcing the uniform of the day for the cadet corps usually is displayed. Their names were withheld and it could not be learned whether they would be dismissed.

FOES OF BRITISH PREMIER TO QUIZ HIM ON SINCERITY

Want to Know if He Has Dropped Appeasement.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 18.—Despite an emergency meeting of the British cabinet the public here seems uneasy and alarmed, informed diplomatic observers were inclined to look at the British situation in the light of internal politics as they affect Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's government and his policy of appeasement, coupled with rearmament.

The upshot is that the situation does not seem to these observers nearly as grave as it is made to appear. When Chamberlain rides out this storm, they believe, he will be more powerful than before and very likely have a mandate in his hands to impose military conscription, with the consent of all parties.

Opposition Smells a Mouse.

An indication that the opposition smells a mouse in the present crisis was given tonight. It was disclosed that Clement R. Attlee, Labor leader, will ask Chamberlain in the house of commons Monday whether his words at Birmingham last night, when the prime minister denounced Germany's seizure of Czecho-Slovakia, are to be accompanied by action.

The opposition wants to know what line foreign policy will pursue and whether the Chamberlain government really has abandoned its attempts at appeasement.

Count Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador, left London tonight for Rome to attend the grand Fascist council next week. It is expected that the next step in the present phase of "shock diplomacy," which is coming off according to schedule, will be a statement of Premier Mussolini's demands upon France.

Prepare for French Visitors.

Further reflecting that everything is going off according to schedule is the fact that the state visit to London of Albert Lebrun, French president, will take place as planned. He and Mrs. Lebrun will return the visit which the English king and queen paid to Paris last summer. In Europe these state visits are meant to convey the idea that an alliance between the countries is formally cemented.

President and Mrs. Lebrun will arrive in London Tuesday and will remain three days. The visitors will be escorted into Dover by warships and royal airforce planes. They will be welcomed in Dover by the Duke of Gloucester, brother of King George VI.

Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax conferred today with the French, American, and Russian ambassadors. It is understood they touched on the idea that the four powers should consult together with a view to adopting a common policy in the face of the possibility of further German aggression.

Son Born to Actress

TOBY WING.

Riot Call for Dance; Twenty Coats Stolen

Police received a call for help at the dance hall at 4616 North Clark street early today. Four squads rushed there expecting to deal with a riot. Instead they ran into a chorus of wails. When the dance ended several score of young men, impatient to get out, charged into the cloakroom. They not only took their own coats but the coats of twenty others.

DALADIER VOTED DICTATOR POWER TO RULE FRANCE

Opposition Warned to Fall in Line.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 18.—The French chamber of deputies tonight accorded the government of Edouard Daladier power to rule by decree until Nov. 30. Thus the deputies sacrificed some of the most valued peace time attributes of a democracy so that France may survive in the face of the growing menace from the totalitarian nations. The vote was 321 to 264.

Premier Daladier.

There is now no doubt as to how great the sacrifice will be, but the majority of the chamber took the jump with full realization of the consequences. Unless the senate creates unexpected and unlikely difficulties, tomorrow the government will start at once wielding its emergency powers in the vital sphere of public opinion.

Seek "Sense of Discipline."

One semi-official news agency, following the chamber vote, revealed that "one of the first aims of ministerial action will no doubt be the maintenance of the national solidarity which has grown around the Daladier cabinet in these last months.

"It is judged in official circles that, in view of the formidable instrument for molding public opinion available in Italy and Germany in the form of a single party, it is necessary in these difficult times that France recover its sense of discipline. It can therefore be assumed that any faction which may attempt to trouble public opinion will be called to order with all desirable firmness. Likewise the government will no doubt see to it that the public is not misled in regard to questions touching essential interests of the country."

This warning was believed to have been directed mainly at communists and other extreme left wing elements, but also at the rare defeatists of the right who still survive after Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's speech of yesterday.

If the sacrifice of liberty accepted by the chamber was great, so were the external alarms which motivated it. In a final brief speech closing the two day debate Daladier declared this afternoon that Reichsfuehrer Hitler's invasion of Czecho-Slovakia was the beginning of a vast strategic maneuver in Europe which France must counter immediately.

"I am asking for full powers because I intend to meet this threat," the premier added. He gave no further details as to the likely future development of the totalitarian strategy, but well informed circles seemed to fear that Rumania is the next on Hitler's list.

Bid for French Support.

The Rumanian minister, George Tatarescu, called on Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet today. It was believed the purpose of the visit was to ask how far Bucharest could count on French support if the attack materialized.

It was officially announced that France had joined England and America in condemning the German annexation of Czecho-Slovakia. The French ambassador to Berlin, Robert Coulondre, was ordered to return to Paris Monday to give a personal report on the situation. Coulondre was instructed to inform the German government of French displeasure at the invasion.

UNSLANTING THE HILLS

By CALEB

THE circumstantial unfolding of life has been likened to many things. Bunyan wrote of it as a journey, in the course of which, allegorically, his hero underwent every type of mortal vicissitude. Swift gave it ironic significance in the grotesquerie of Gulliver's adventures . . . Among creatures terrifyingly greater and amusingly smaller than himself, he came to a new understanding of the old issues implicit in human destiny.

In his "Vision of Mirza," Addison saw the long parade of mankind as a processional over a vast bridge. Shakespeare, with the dramatist's instinct, wrote of life as the playing of many parts, from "puling infant" to "slippered pantaloon;" while Goethe's Faust, Tennyson's Galahad, Ibsen's Peer Gynt, Hardy's Jude, and Stevenson's Will o' the Mill, were each in their creator's fashion an expression of the impress left upon the mind and heart by existence.

To most of us, perhaps, the simplest image corresponding to reality is a series of steeps and slopes. Life is like a hill; either we are coasting pleasantly down, or clambering painfully up. And when the climbing gets particularly steep—when we grow breathless, perhaps fearful, and the top is as far away as the bottom, and we feel we can never reach either, yet there is no way to go but up—

"Drop into low," an old test-driver friend of mine used to say. "A man's got three 'spiritual shifts' to use on the car that carries him through life. 'Low' is for power and pull. 'Intermediate' is for taking the thick of traffic without stalling. 'High' is for speed on the smooth straightaways. The mistake too many commit is in tackling their hills in 'high.' That makes the hill twice as steep—the climbing half as certain. Get back into 'low', and you can pull over the stiffest slope life will ever offer. 'Low' is confidence in your finer self; trust in your own power; knowledge that you're a man, and trials aren't! 'Low' slows you back into your reserves . . . you've met difficulty before—you know you can do it again, and again, and again!

"Every human being has this 'reserve pull' in him," he used to remind me. "But lots of folks forget to use it. They speed at the unexpected hill—and then stall. Gear into that inner reserve, my lad, when you hit one of life's hills, and you'll unslant the tallest trouble that ever darkened your path."

HITLER IS RACING WITH TIME IN HIS DASH FOR POWER

Gives Generals 6 Months to Achieve Aims.

situation more than a year ago. He asked for more freedom for the Christian groups. Hitler was angered by the report and Kerrl has not been given a chance to outline his stand in a personal conference. The situation is similar with a number of other high officials.

Fuehrer's Entourage Listed.

Hitler's entourage at the moment includes his personal aides, Wilhelm Brueckner and Schaub; Sepp Dietrich, the chief of his bodyguard; Otto Dietrich, press chief of the Nazi party; Dr. Theo Morel, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, who is back in the Fuehrer's favor after the recent love scandal in which he was involved; Heinrich Hoffmann, Hitler's personal photographer, and Mrs. Hoffmann; Kannenberg a former restaurant owner who is now the dictator's "major domo," and Mrs. Kannenberg, and Heinrich Himmler, chief of all the German police. The latter spends much time with Hitler.

All other persons must get by Brueckner and Schaub. Brueckner was in disgrace for a considerable period because he accepted "big presents" from industrialists whom he helped to see Hitler, but the Fuehrer "forgave" him. He is back in the good graces, a slightly subdued man.

Hoffmann and Kannenberg are Hitler's real intimates. Worried by his occasional fits of depression, during which he expresses his sorrow over his bachelorhood, they are trying to divert him by bringing him into contact with good looking dancers and other theatrical performers. The list of young girls invited to display their talents before the Fuehrer is quite long. Among those who have appeared before him recently were two American girls, Marion Daniels, 20 years old, former Chicago acrobatic dancer, and Miriam Verne, 19 years old, and also an acrobatic dancer.

Finances Worry Dictator.

Hitler, however, appears to be apathetic. There was a short period when it seemed that romantic diversions might occupy his mind, but this period now seems to have passed. His friends do not think he is in any danger of losing any of his energy through romantic complications, the way his friend, Premier Mussolini of Italy, has. They are casting about for new means of diverting the Fuehrer from the terrific nervous strain under which he is suffering, especially now that his distrust of his sub-leaders is reaching almost morbid proportions.

One of the things preying on Hitler's mind is the German financial situation, which is desperate. German bankers declare they do not believe Dr. Rudolf Brinkmann, newly appointed vice president of the Reichsbank and secretary of state in the economics ministry, really went insane. They believe he faked insanity to get out of the financial mess he had helped to create.

[Brinkmann was placed in a sanatorium on Feb. 17 following what was officially described as a nervous collapse. It was reported at that time that he had been seen lighting cigarets with 50 mark [$20] bills.]

Fuehrer Scorns Critics.

An indication of Hitler's mental condition is given in his long, rambling walks with his retinue and his sessions in the study of his mountain retreat in Berchtesgaden, surrounded by his advisers. On those occasions the Fuehrer delivers monologs, analyzing things for himself, exploring avenues of thought and oratory, trying them out on his little circle of listeners.

Hitler expresses his profound contempt for the United States, France, and Great Britain, and even for Italy, his partner in the Rome-Berlin axis. In his midnight talks the dictator says "the childish simplicity, the stupidity of the others, will help us get what we want."

An example of the Nazi frame of mind as regards the United States was expressed by one high German official who declared Hitler eventually will turn against America the late President Woodrow Wilson's slogan, "right of self-determination of nations."

Seeks Revenge Against U. S.

"With that slogan," this official declared, "we can stir up unrest through the whole of Europe. We should be grateful to Mr. Wilson—it is a marvelous tool. When the time comes, we shall be able to use it in America. Not now—we must first establish ourselves more firmly in the place that belongs to us in Europe. But when America becomes weaker and the different national and racial and class groups start fighting each other, then we shall have our revenge for America's participation in the world war."

The anti-German campaign by the American government has provided excellent material for the Nazis to cater to the German persecution complex. It enables Hitler to retaliate with an anti-American campaign for the benefit of the German people while he prepares for his European conquest.

"Internal matters are difficult," Hitler recently told a friend, "but I cannot be bothered with them. A great foreign political victory will automatically silence those who are dissatisfied."

How true this was is now being illustrated in Germany, where the people are wildly cheering their Fuehrer because of his Czecho-Slovakian conquest.

Calls Englishmen "Idiots."

Concerning France and England, Hitler speaks of the statesmen of those countries as "idiots who are too scared to act," or "too dumb to see the logical course. But even if they should wake up now, it is too late for them to prevent us from becoming the absolute masters of Europe."

Hitler even gloats over the "fast one" he believes he has put over on Premier Mussolini in Spain. The Fuehrer has said that when the Spanish civil war is over the 10,000 Germans now assisting Gen. Francisco Franco, nationalist commander, will remain there at key posts.

"Germany was not so silly as Italy, which sent its troops to Spain openly," Hitler says. "A foreign soldier usually is disliked, even if he is an ally. You have more power if you occupy less conspicuous posts. We shall send new experts down to Spain specially suited for the propaganda and organization work required at this stage of the game."

This already has been done. The new experts were sent between Feb. 8 and 12.

Hopes to Pacify Duce.

Hitler thinks he can keep Mussolini quiet by sending small contingents to wherever Il Duce needs them and thus help the Italian dictator get at least part of what he wants. Nazi leaders say they do not think Hitler will send more than a total of 25,000 men to help Mussolini because he himself needs men to expand Pan-Germany.

It is reliably reported that a number of Nazis have been sent to Libya and Ethiopia. The Nazis deny this—but they also denied it when they had sent men to Spain.

Right now the idea of a Mediterranean war between Italy and France is not so unpleasant to the Nazis. They think it would keep England and France busy, permitting Germany to swallow whatever it wants to the east.

Corruption Disgusts Many.

Many Nazis are disgusted with the corruption in their own ranks. That, however, does not stop them. On the contrary, it makes them more eager to embark on new adventures, enabling them to forget the corruption. Let there be one setback for the Nazis and the whole house of cards probably will tumble. But a setback calls for clever, well poised opponents, and the opponents of the Nazis, internally and in foreign lands, all have a severe case of jitters.

There is one point that might alter the position of the Nazi fanatics. When the Nazi party sprang to power, it was necessary to recruit leaders. Almost every one of these new leaders had failed in his normal bourgeois calling, through his own fault or the fault of "the times." As failures, from almost all walks of life, but mostly from the small middle class, they had nothing to lose and could take all chances.

Now, however, most of them have become rich beyond their dreams. Most of the higher ranking Nazi leaders are "bloated plutocrats." This question arises—will they still be willing to take every risk their visionary leader deems necessary? They may be afraid of losing what they have, but their various "victories"—over the Jews, Austria, Sudetenland, and now Czecho-Slovakia—have worked out so much to their financial advantage that they may be looking for new chances for spoils.

Junkers Submerged by Nazis.

One widespread impression in countries outside of Germany is that the Junker element—big land owners—is strong in the Nazi ranks. The Junkers joined forces with the Nazis in the early days of the movement because they felt the Nazis would restore the army and that in the long run they, the Junkers, would be able to run the Nazi proletarians. Many Junker leaders who helped Hitler to power today are glad to be alive. Some of them have paid with their lives for political activities and suspicions saddled on them by the Nazis.

The Junkers were right in thinking they would get an army from Hitler, but they were abysmally wrong when they thought they could run him.

A thorough investigation indicates that the picture of Hitler as an ogre, ready to jump, is accurate—but the shrewdness of the ogre should not be underestimated. Some say Hitler, the wise dictator, knows that by a war he risks his position. Hitler, however, never has been afraid to take a risk. A year ago, after reshuffling his generals, he told Unity Mitford, his English admirer, that he, himself had stirred up the row "because I hate quiet."

The friends who have been with Hitler very much recently say he again shows all the signs of being bored.

NEW NEUTRALITY LAW DRAFTED; BLOW TO NAZIS

Would Open U. S. Arms Market to Allies.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—A new neutrality law, making it mandatory for the United States President to name the states involved in declared or undeclared war within thirty days after the outbreak of hostilities, was drafted today by Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], chairman of the foreign affairs committee. It will be introduced in the senate on Monday as a joint resolution.

Senator Pittman insisted he prepared the measure without consulting either President Roosevelt or the state department, but the resolution fits in with the President's help-the-democracies drive, he admitted.

Great Britain and France, as long as they command the seas, will have an advantage over totalitarian governments in obtaining materials from the United States under terms of the proposed law, the senator conceded.

Committee to Act Soon.

The measure will be referred to the foreign affairs committee. Hearings will be held shortly, Pittman said, on his resolution and on four others concerning neutrality.

A presidential proclamation as regards China and Japan would be required by the Pittman measure. Under the present law, which permits the President to find that "a state of war exists," President Roosevelt has not chosen to act.

Latest developments in central Europe did not influence his drafting of the measure, Pittman said.

Opens Munitions Market.

"Putting it simply, this measure places everything on a cash and carry basis," he added.

This means that any nation, belligerent or not, may purchase any kind of material here, but title must be obtained by payment of cash in this country and American ships may not be permitted to carry the goods.

Under the present law war materials are barred from belligerent nations even on a cash and carry basis.

All provisions in the present law concerning civil strife are eliminated in the new measure, Pittman said. He continued:

"There is a new provision giving the President power by proclamation to make it unlawful for the citizens of the United States, or vessels flying the United States flag, to proceed through any areas defined by him to be areas of combat operations. Red Cross vessels under safe conduct are excepted."

Tells Reasons for Change.

Pittman gave the following reasons for drafting his measure:

1. The injustice in refusing to export arms to a country with few or no munition factories, such as China, while permitting Japan, which has such factories, to acquire all the necessary materials.

2. The necessity to expand the capacity of American munitions factories to meet any emergency demand of the United States for arms.

3. Because of the "unjust, if not unneutral," administration of the existing act that results unless the materials used to make arms, as well as arms and munitions, are embargoed.

HUNGARY THANKS DUCE FOR AID IN ANNEXATION OF CARPATHO-UKRAINE

ROME, March 18.—(AP)—Hungary gave Italy credit today for the recovery of her "millennial" frontier with Poland through Hungarian annexation of Carpatho-Ukraine and promised she never would forget Italy's help.

Hungarian Premier Count Paul Teleky in a telegram to Premier Mussolini, declared Il Duce "was the first statesman in Europe who recognized the just cause of this country and who for more than ten years has given innumerable evidences of his friendship and interest in Hungary."

The Fascist press meanwhile declared that British Prime Minister Chamberlain's attack yesterday on Adolf Hitler of Germany was evidence of panic among democracies over the gains of totalitarian states.

THREE FINED FOR ROBBERY.

Three itinerants, Steve Zich, John Mahon, and John Spratt, were fined $25 each yesterday by Judge Joseph A. Graber for the strong-arm robbery of Charles Krasieski in the washroom of a hotel at 500 South State street Friday night.

JAP BOMBS KILL, MAIM 1,000 IN RAIDS IN CHINA

HONGKONG, March 18.—(AP)—A toll of about 1,000 Chinese dead and wounded was reported today in widespread Japanese air raids in central and northwest China. Many American and British mission hospitals were destroyed.

Advices from Chungking, temporary capital of China, said the United States embassy there had been informed that the American Southern Baptist hospital at Chengchow, Northern Honan province, was hit directly Friday and that six Chinese patients were killed.

An American-maintained refugee camp at Chengchow which has accommodated thousands of war and flood refugees in the last nine months, these reports said, also was bombed. Heavy casualties were said to have been inflicted.

Six Japanese bombs were reported to have hit the English Baptist hospital at Sian, in Shensi province.

FOUND DEAD IN HIS CAR.

Oscar Anderson, 45 years old, 5046 North Winchester avenue, a janitor, was found dead yesterday in his car in a garage at the rear of 5110 North Winchester avenue.

REV. G. K. SMITH SUES 'TIME' FOR 5 MILLION LIBEL

Resents "Rabble Rouser" in Sound Newsreel.

New York, March 18.—[Special.]—The Rev. Gerald K. Smith, one time associate of the late Huey Long in his share-the-wealth movement, asked $5,000,000 damages today for being described in the March of Time newsreel as a rabble rouser and a leader of the lunacy fringe.

In a complaint filed in Supreme court here, Smith complained that words from the newsreel were "false, libelous, and defamatory." He asks "compensatory, exemplary, punitive, and aggravated damages."

Smith named as defendants March of Time, Inc.; Time, Inc., owner of the March of Time and of Time magazine; Westbrook K. Van Norris, commentator; Roy K. Larsen, editor and director of March of Time; Jack Glenn, photographer, and several booking agencies.

Saddled with Fascist Salute.

Smith complained that he was accused by a commentator's voice in the film of having been the first to introduce the Fascist salute in this country, and that he was associated in the newsreel with Father Divine, Harlem Negro cult leader, as well as with Hitler and Mussolini.

He added that the defendants manufactured, distributed, and exhibited a newsreel that distorted his real character and made him appear as a "Jew-baiter" and a denier of religious liberties and as a person who was "insane, crazy, a crackpot, a lunatic, mentally unbalanced," and as one who was "dangerous to the political institutions of the United States of America."

Annoyed by Bund Overtures.

Shortly after the newsreel appeared, Smith stated, he was attacked as a Fascist at a Jewish war veterans' convention and the Staten Island Rotary club canceled an invitation to have him speak at one of its meetings.

He asserted he was caused "substantial embarrassment, shame, and annoyance by constant requests of leaders of the German bund and various Hitlerite organizations and sponsors of Hitlerism and Jew-baiting that plaintiff support their platforms."

The defendants contend Smith is a nationally known citizen and subject to news comment.

Italians to Honor Patron Saint of Families Today

The old Italian custom of household celebration of the birthday of St. Joseph is being perpetuated throughout Chicago today. In hundreds of homes, where at least one member has been named after Joseph, the patron saint of the household, there will be open house and feasting in homage to him. Because the day falls on Sunday, Catholic churches will hold patronal mass tomorrow. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph P. Morrison will say mass at 9 a. m. tomorrow in Holy Name cathedral.

Crippled Children's Flying Envoy to Leave on Mission

Marian Tammi, young crippled girl from Waukegan, will depart from Chicago airport today on a trip to eleven midwest and eastern cities as a flying emissary to aid crippled children. Miss Tammi has been chosen envoy of the National Society for Crippled children, to distribute Easter seals to member state organizations for the society's sixth nationwide Easter seal campaign. The annual drive finances the society's program for comprehensive care for America's estimated 1,800,000 crippled children.

1936 Flood Hero Receives War Department Medal

The soldiers' medal for heroism has been awarded by the war department to Thomas H. Lynn Jr., 26 years old, 212 McKinley avenue, Geneva, it was announced yesterday. Lynn was serving as a sergeant with the Pennsylvania National Guard during the flood at Williamsport, Pa., in March, 1936. With a companion, he paddled a motor boat through swirling flood waters and rescued eighteen persons from a burning apartment building.

Woman Found Injured on Street Dies in Hospital

An unidentified woman, about 58 years old, was found unconscious on the sidewalk at Wrightwood avenue and North Halsted street last night. While being taken to the county hospital she murmured a name that sounded like Marian Yanez. She died in the hospital soon afterward. Her skull had been fractured. Police believe that she fell on the sidewalk, striking her head.

Seized as Sneak Thief in Apartment Hotel

Arthur Barr, 27 years old, a clerk, was held by Woodlawn police last night as an alleged sneak thief. He was seized by John A. Howard, a printer, in the lobby of the Quillan apartment hotel, 6411 Kenwood avenue, where both reside. According to police, Barr entered Howard's room and stole a gold watch. Howard found him there, chased him to the lobby, and downed him with a flying tackle.

JAILED FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING.

Belvidere, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—Joseph M. Orr of Capron was sentenced to ten days in jail and fined $100 and costs today when he pleaded guilty in county court to a charge of drunken driving.

TEN KILLED WHEN HUGE AIRLINER CRASHES

Rescuers remove bodies of ten men from wreckage of $500,000 experimental stratoliner after crash at Alder, Wash. Eight of the victims were employes of the Boeing Aircraft company, which built the plane, and two were members of a Dutch mission. The plane was designed to fly at an altitude of 20,000 feet.

VETERAN SEIZED 24 YEARS AFTER PRISON ESCAPE

Milk Dealer Trapped by Finger Prints.

Jackson, Mich., March 18.—[Special.]—A middle aged upstate New York milk dealer, who led a life of modest respectability for almost a quarter of a century, was behind bars in state prison here today as a fugitive of Michigan justice for twenty-four years—all because he was caught snaring rabbits.

Back in 1915 James J. King, then 27 years old, escaped from prison here. He still had fourteen years to serve on a burglary charge. He went east, obtained work, and then joined the United States army when America entered the world war.

Leaves Army and Weds.

King served overseas as a field artillery man and when mustered out of the army married and settled down in Port Chester, N. Y., where he lived more than fifteen years.

Two years ago he moved with his wife and son to Lake Carmel, in Putnam county, New York, where he took charge of a milk station. Ten days ago he was arrested for setting rabbit snares and his fingerprints were taken. Sent by Sheriff Allen Gilbert to the federal bureau of investigation as a matter of routine, the prints were returned with the notation that King was wanted for breaking jail.

Held for Officers.

King was fined $10 for setting snares and locked up to await the arrival of Michigan authorities.

Last Thursday Sergt. George Parish of the Michigan state police arrived in Carmel and after obtaining a confession from King returned to Jackson with his prisoner.

"I'm surprised I wasn't arrested sooner," said King. "They took my fingerprints when I joined the army and I expected to be identified."

Harlan R. Hull (left), chief test pilot for Transcontinental and Western Air, and Julius Barr, test pilot for Boeing Aircraft company, were among those killed.

ATTORNEYS ASK LAWS TO SEIZE NAZI PROPERTY

A resolution passed by the Chicago Bohemian Lawyers' association yesterday asked congress to enact legislation attaching property, assets, and credits of Germany and the former Czecho-Slovak republic now in the United States in payment of debts owed in this country. The resolution was passed unanimously and signed by George A. Novak, president of the association. It declared that the territory and assets of Czecho-Slovakia "have been annexed by Germany under conditions and methods which are not consonant with the usual forms of international law and order and under circumstances which the people of the United States deplore and condemn."

Call 3,000 Truck Drivers on Strike in Rhode Island

Boston, Mass., March 18.—(AP)—Three thousand Rhode Island truck drivers were called out on strike tonight after all-day conciliation conferences with Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut officials here failed to break a wage contract deadlock involving 10,000 drivers and 1,200 truck owners in the three states.

SENATOR TO ASK BAN ON FELONS AT ST. CHARLES

State Senator A. L. Marovitz [D., Chicago] said yesterday that he will seek immediate legislative action to remedy conditions at the St. Charles School for Boys in Kane county. He said there is no need to wait for completion of an investigation by a senate-house committee of which he is a member.

On Tuesday Marovitz intends to have the legislative reference bureau at Springfield draft a bill to limit the jurisdiction of the Juvenile court to cases involving dependency and delinquency. Criminal offenses would be dealt with in the Criminal court, so that youths found guilty could not be sent to St. Charles to mingle with dependent boys 10 years old.

The Juvenile court in Cook county is the source of 259 of the 611 inmates at St. Charles. But many of those committed by Judge Frank Bicek of the Juvenile court are said to be mature in the ways of crime.

ILLINOIS RELIEF ROLL IS PADDED, NUDELMAN SAYS

Springfield, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—State Finance Director S. L. Nudelman said today surveys by the Illinois emergency relief commission showed relief rolls were "padded with from 20 to 65 per cent undeserving cases."

Reiterating his opposition to the $119,000,000 asked by the commission for the next biennium, Nudelman urged a downstate relief investigation which would "sample" conditions. He termed relief administration by township supervisors as "wasteful and extravagant."

Nudelman recommended in the budget submitted to the legislature that $72,000,000 be appropriated for relief purposes.

CRACK PLANES GO ABROAD; SECONDS ARE SOLD TO U. S.

Army and Navy Buying 'Workhorse' Type.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—While crack military planes are being sold to Great Britain and France the United States army and navy are purchasing secondary fighting craft, it was learned today.

The army has on order twenty-six amphibian planes which are being built by the Grumman Aircraft Engineering company of Long Island, N. Y. The navy is receiving fifteen planes ordered from the company.

These planes, while sturdy and serviceable craft, are not nearly so highly developed as those that are being sold to America's former allies.

The planes, which will cost approximately $1,000,000, were classified as "crash" planes at the war department. They will see "work horse" service at Hawaii, Panama, the Philippines, and other army coastal stations, where they will do patrol work and go to the rescue of stricken vessels or seaplanes.

Military Value Small.

The craft will have little military value, it was said, as the bulk of ocean patrol, bombing, and fighting work will be carried on by the navy in the event of an emergency.

Duplication of this type of plane by both branches of the service, it was said, would be an argument for a separate air corps, but considerations against such a union far outweigh the argument.

Under the American theory of national defense, the army defends the borders of the nation and the navy offers a front line of defense at sea. On coasts, it was said, some duplication of functions is unavoidable.

Big Expansion Held Error.

On Capitol hill, senators and representatives who are asking for careful consideration of the nation's air needs and warning the nation against being stampeded into the huge expansion program by European war hysteria, said the purchase of the Grummans supports their contention that the present expansion program is extravagant.

They said that if the army acquires 6,000 planes almost at once, they will soon relatively be as obsolete as the Grummans which are being purchased today. The army and navy should spread the expansion program over a period of years, if it is vital for defense, and then purchase only the most modern craft, they said.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

MEMEL, March 18.—The statue of Kaiser Wilhelm II., removed from the city square in 1923, was restored here today during great celebrations in which war veterans were the leading participants. Members of the Lithuanian People's party and the Lithuanian Activist group also wished to hold meetings today, but permission was refused by the directorate, "because on days of festivity in Memel every possibility of clashes between political groups must be eliminated."

TORRIO'S INCOME FOR DEPRESSION IS BARED BY U. S.

New York, March 18.—(AP)—The federal government asserted today that Johnny Torrio and two of his aides had a combined income of $332,648.82 during the depression years of 1933-1934-1935.

Bracketed with the former Chicago racketeer, a former Al Capone associate, were William Slockbower and Louis V. Lacava. The allegation was included in a bill of particulars supplied their counsel in preparation for their trial with two others on charges of income tax evasion. The trial is scheduled for March 27.

The bill listed $209,416.65 of the total as "unidentifiable income," defining it as income from business transactions "the exact nature of which business and the exact details of which transactions were concealed."

Site O. K.'d for $400,000 Stadium at Lane Tech

H. K. Seltzer, WPA director in Chicago, received word yesterday that WPA officials in Washington have approved the site of a stadium for Lane Technical High school. The stadium, to seat 6,000 persons, will be erected on both sides of the present Lane football field at the school, Western avenue and Addison street. It will be constructed by WPA labor and cost $400,000.

VETS TO HEAR CONCERT.

The Chicago Musical college will present a concert for disabled veterans in the Hines hospital this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The program is sponsored by the Red Cross.

THE ENGINEERING STANDOUT OF THE YEAR
Illustrating De Luxe 115 Six 4-Door Sedan, $866*
AMERICA'S FINEST LOW-PRICED CAR
When you know who buys a car and why—you have a pretty sound idea of whether that car will do for you.
Well, here's that information about Pontiac, and it proves that you can't miss when you put your money in this big, thrifty beauty.
Pontiac is popular with almost everyone, of course, but here's the important thing: Included among Pontiac owners is an astonishingly large proportion of engineers.
Why is that true? Because these men know better than anyone else, that no car on earth is better engineered. They know that no less than 90 great automobile advancements have come from Pontiac engineers. They know that few technical groups in any industry can point to such a record. And they know, from personal experience, that the Pontiac which this great engineering staff produced for 1939 is an all-time high in mating quality and low price.
Yes, you can take it from impartial engineers—Pontiac is the engineering standout of the year. And you don't need anyone's advice to tell you that it's a leader in looks and action too—ten minutes at the wheel tells you that. Put all these facts together and the net result is this: By anybody's standard, Pontiac, General Motors' second lowest-priced car, is America's biggest bargain.

MARTHA GRAHAM DANCES A SALUTE TO DEMOCRACY

Her 'American Document' Wins Warm Praise.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

As thoroughly American as an Indian brave, a minstrel show interlocutor, or a radio announcer, is Martha Graham's elaborate new dance composition, "American Document." In the Civic Opera house last night its creatrix and her company of twelve women and two men gave the work its first Chicago performance. A big, friendly audience constituted excellent tinder for the sparks which flew from the stage.

For "American Document" deals with subjects which are almost as noncontroversial as mother or the flag. It salutes the Declaration of Independence, the emancipation proclamation, and the Gettysburg address. It manages to squeeze out a tear for the dispossessed Indians. At the very end it plumps safely for democracy.

Patterned After Minstrels.

The whole thing is freely patterned after that most American of institutions—the minstrel show. This permits the piece to begin and end with a delicious, swaggering "walk-around." Still more important, it permits the use of an interlocutor, who more or less explains what the various dance movements are supposed to represent.

This interlocutor's script is taken from the three national documents listed above—also from colonial sermons, Walt Whitman poems, and even the spectacularly un-American Song of Songs. Phrases of great dignity alternate with amiable clichés of thought and diction. The script, plus the excessively wholesome and mannered reading it receives, endows the whole piece with an air of sentimentality.

The choreography is magnificent. Although making free use of symbolic motions and postures for such easily representable states as sorrow, love, or happiness, it often goes very far beyond this sort of thing and becomes what we used to call abstract. That is, it tries by most subtle means to open up wide vistas of feeling at the point where direct representation must stop. The vigorous, angular Graham trade mark is on everything.

Skilful and Youthful.

The performance last night was not only skilful but intoxicatingly youthful. The earnestness and sincerity of the dancers are as far above question as the earnestness and sincerity of the choreographer. Especially noteworthy was the work—at once brawny and delicate—of Erick Hawkins, who was loaned to Miss Graham by the Ballet Caravan for the production of "American Document."

Ray Green's earthy and aspiring music blends so well into the whole that it were vain to try to assess it on its own merits. Edythe Gilfond's costume designs boasted some symbolic strength.

The performance was sponsored by the Chicago Civil Liberties committee, whose chairman, John A. Lapp, made a brief intermission address. He asked thirty seconds of silence for Czecho-Slovakia's fate, then declared that the committee hoped to help Chicago avert a similar fate.

NOTRE DAME LAETARE MEDAL IS AWARDED TO DETROIT, MICH., WOMAN

Notre Dame, Ind., March 18.—[Special.] — Miss Josephine Brownson, president of the Catholic Instruction league of Detroit, Mich., was announced today to be the 57th recipient of the Laetare medal. She is the eleventh woman to receive this award.

Miss Josephine Brownson.

This is the first time that a descendant of a former medalist was accorded this honor, which is bestowed annually by the University of Notre Dame on a Catholic layman. Miss Brownson's father, the late Henry F. Brownson, received the award in 1892.

Miss Brownson is known for her educational activities, particularly in the religious field. She organized the Catholic Instruction league in Detroit in 1906 for the purpose of instructing Catholic children in public schools. She has about 400 teachers and 13,000 students under her supervision now.

LAW BARS JUDGE FROM TRYING 3 EDITORS HE CITED

Require Impartial Hearing in Gary Contempt Case.

William T. Fletcher, Democratic city judge of Gary, who has cited three newspaper executives for contempt of court, is barred from hearing the case himself, it was indicated yesterday by a survey of Indiana statutes. A law passed in 1931 provides that a special judge must be named to conduct such proceedings.

The Gary city court is a court of record and has power, under Indiana law, to impose maximum penalties of three months in jail, or a $500 fine, or both, on the three defendants if they are found guilty.

The defendants are J. Ralph Snyder, publisher of the Gary Post-Tribune, and H. B. Snyder and A. Myron Harris, editors of the newspaper. Bench warrants were issued against them Thursday by Judge Fletcher after stories and editorials in the Post-Tribune assailed the judge for his wholesale dismissal of gambling case defendants.

Case Attracts Wide Attention.

The defendants have indicated that they will carry the case to the highest courts in their fight to prevent invasion on the freedom of the press. The case has attracted nation-wide attention.

The Indiana statute which, it is believed, will prevent Judge Fletcher from hearing the contempt case provides that in cases of indirect contempt [such as the present] the court shall, at the time the citations are issued, name three competent and disinterested judges or lawyers. The law provides that the prosecutor and the defendant then shall each strike off one name. The one person remaining unchallenged shall preside in the case as a special judge.

Judge Fletcher has not named the three from whom the special judge is to be chosen.

1918 Decision Cited.

A decision of the Indiana Supreme court in 1918 will be one of the legal authorities relied upon by the Post-Tribune executives in their defense. This decision reads in part:

"Unjustifiable criticism of the conduct of a court does not constitute contempt where the matter was fully disposed of before the criticism was published." [The Post-Tribune's articles and editorials were published subsequent to Judge Fletcher's rulings in the gambling cases.]

Another important legal citation which will be brought in by the defendants is contained in a volume on ruling principles in law, published in 1933. The quotation follows:

"At common law the mere writing contemptuously of the judge of the Superior court was a constructive contempt, but this doctrin has not been fully adopted in this country and has been limited by our constitutional guarantees of free speech and liberty of the press to pending cases.

Discussion Held Essential.

"The common law rule was founded on the obsequious and flattering principle that a judge was the representative of the king, but the theory of government which invests royalty with an imaginary perfection and which forbids question or discussion is diametrically opposed to the principles of free and popular government, in which the utmost latitude and liberty in the discussion of business affecting the public and the conduct of those who fill positions of public trust, that is consistent with truth and decency, is not only allowable but is essential to the public welfare.

"Hence, under our laws, defamatory comments on the past conduct of a judge or relating to his fairness or honesty may be libelous, but do not constitute a contempt, even though they may well embarrass the court to some extent in pending litigation."

Abandoned Baby

Chubby boy, 18 months old, found in apartment hallway.

A chubby baby boy, 18 months old, cried yesterday at St. Vincent's orphanage for his mother. The baby was found abandoned early Friday in the hallway of an apartment building at 4011 Lowell avenue. Pinned to his clothing was a note. It read: "Please take care of my baby. I can't afford to any longer."

AGREE ON STUDY DESIGNED TO CUT FIRE RISK RATES

Mayor Kelly said yesterday the national board of fire underwriters has agreed to make a survey of the city's fire fighting facilities, with a view to readjusting insurance rates. It will take several months to complete the survey.

The mayor has estimated that a saving of $5,000,000 to property owners possibly may be made. He pointed out that in the last six years fire claims paid in the city have been cut in half. Reductions in premium rates have ranged between 16 and 31 per cent.

Among the improvements the city has made since 1930 are a new water intake crib, 760,000 feet of new mains, an increased force of firemen, and a revised building code.

COOGAN ACCEPTS $126,000 IN SUIT FOR 4 MILLIONS

Hollywood, Cal., March 18.—(AP)—Jackie Coogan tonight signed an agreement under which he will obtain $126,000 from his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bernstein, in settlement of his $4,000,000 suit. He claimed the money was due him from his earnings as a child actor.

The court appointed receiver reported the present value of the estate was only $291,715, from which Mrs. Bernstein was allowed to deduct $39,100. The deductions included $16,000 earned by another son, Robert.

"I'm sorry there isn't more money left," said Jackie, "but it's better to settle this over a conference table than to stage what would be a bad fight in the courtroom."

Coogan's actress wife, Betty Grable, was with him when the agreement was signed. It probably will be submitted for court approval Monday.

SLAIN AT BARBECUE STAND.

Willie Wilson, colored, 60 years old, was shot and killed yesterday in his wife's barbecue stand at 2512 Lake street. James Sparks, colored, 39 years old, was arrested as the suspected killer.

OPEN CAMPAIGN TO SWELL ARMY CORPS OF PILOTS

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—The air corps announced today that it is beginning an intensive nation-wide recruiting campaign intended to double the amy's output of military pilots without waiting for the start of another program in September to give primary training to 20,000 college students annually. The war department announced simultaneously that tests will be speeded to permit a quick start on mass production of attack bombers.

MRS. ROOSEVELT STIRS QUESTION OF U. S. HOSTESS

Wide Range of Activities Causes Controversy.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Will the new influence which entered the White House when Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt became its mistress establish a tradition which will continue after she is gone?

Since 1932 and the advent of Mrs. Roosevelt, with her wide range of unofficial activity, the status of the mistress of the White House has become a subject of teacup and platform controversy. Should the President's wife follow her own independent interests?

Mrs. Arthur Rice.

Many women condemn Mrs. Roosevelt's activity, contending that submerging individual desires is the toll exacted of America's first hostess. Others condone and praise her, saying her independence is a requisite of modern life.

Mrs. Arthur Rice, speaking before Republican women precinct captains at the Republican women's headquarters in the Hotel La Salle, brought the light of history to the controversy. Scanning the thirty-one official hostesses of United States' history she selected "My First Ladies."

Many Kinds of Hostesses.

"There have been many kinds of women directing the nation's official home," she said. "Some have won devotion and commendation for their ability to guide the social life of the President over the pitfalls so often met in high places. Abigail Adams and Dolly Madison were examples of this type.

"Others, lacking judgment and forethought, have brought upon themselves the criticism of those who feel that the President's wife owes her fellow Americans a leadership not far removed from that of her husband, only in a different field.

"There is no private life for the President or his family during this period of public life. Those who occupy high places are in the range of public criticism, even though it seem unjust.

"How aptly and with what understanding did President Tyler admonish his family:

"'Now, my children, during the next few years we are to occupy the home of the President of the United States. I hope you will conduct yourselves with even more than your usual propriety and decorum. Remember, you will be much in the public eye. You are to know no favorites. Your visitors will be citizens of the United States and, as such, are all to be received with equal courtesy. You will not receive any gifts whatsoever and allow no one to approach you on the subject of office or favors.'"

Mrs. Cleveland Praised.

Discerning commentators agree, Mrs. Rice said, that no more charming woman ever graced the White House than Mrs. Grover Cleveland. For perfection, Mrs. Rice said, she shares the pedestal with Dolly Madison and Grace Coolidge.

Mrs. Rice read three of President Cleveland's letters to show how he tried to protect his wife from publicity. One, in 1892, was to Mrs. Mary Frost Ormsby. It said:

"Mrs. Cleveland has referred to me your letter informing her of the organization of a 'Frances Cleveland Influence club.' It is by no means pleasant to dissent from the methods which sincere friends adopt when their efforts not only demonstrate their friendliness, but when they also seek to subserve the public good, and are, therefore, engaged in a patriotic service. It is, however, impossible for us to approve the use of Mrs. Cleveland's name in the designation of clubs assigned to do political work. We trust you will not undervalue our objection, because it rests upon the sentiment that the name now sacred in the home circle as wife and mother may well be spared in the organization and operation of clubs created to exert political influence."

Picture Plea Refused.

A letter to Julius Chambers, also written in 1892, said:

"I have received your letter of Aug. 9 asking for one of Mrs. Cleveland's photographs to reproduce in Once a Week. I fully appreciate your consideration in bringing this matter to my attention before the publication of a picture of my wife. I am exceedingly anxious to shield her as much as possible from any notoriety, and especially such as is connected with a political campaign. The New York World has lately published a number of her pictures, and, notwithstanding good intentions, has greatly annoyed both her and myself; and I ask you, as a special favor, to forgo carrying out your design."

The third letter which Mrs. Rice read was written to Leo Oppenheim in 1893. It said:

"An advertisment recently published in the Albany Evening Journal, signed by you, introduces the name of Mrs. Cleveland in a most indecent way. I suppose we must always have among us dirty and disreputable fellows, but I shall be surprised if you find such advertising profitable among the residents of so respectable a city as Albany."

Among recent Presidents' wives, Mrs. Rice described Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt as a "homebody," Edith Galt Wilson as "America's valiant lady," and Grace Coolidge as a "gentle, unpretentious wife."

Opposed to these, she said, is Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, who "permits neither tradition nor public opinion to interfere in her activities." Only in America, she added, could the wife of a chief executive be so openly discussed from the public platform.

White House Hostesses Reviewed

These wives of Presidents were mentioned by Mrs. Arthur Rice in discussing mistresses of the White House at a Republican women's meeting yesterday. The years each was hostess in the home of Presidents are shown on the respective pictures. Likenesses of the women as they appeared while living in the White House have been selected.

JOINT OPERATION OF COURTS URGED TO SPEED JUSTICE

Judge La Buy Outlines Plan to Bar Association.

Judge Walter La Buy of the Circuit court yesterday recommended the establishment of a consolidated calendar for the Circuit and Superior courts to attain speedier, more economical, and more efficient administration of justice. He spoke before the Chicago Bar association.

The creation of a single assignment court and a single motion court for these two courts of concurrent jurisdiction, Judge La Buy said, would bring the calendars up to date in less than two years and insure the trial of cases within sixty days.

Under his proposal, one assignment judge and one motion judge would act for all Circuit and Superior courts, and a suit could be tried in either court regardless of the one in which it was filed. The executive committees of the two courts have the power to set up such a system without requiring statutory or constitutional amendments, Judge La Buy said.

Circuit Court Proves System.

Judge La Buy said phenomenal strides had been made by the Circuit court since it set up one central assignment court to act for all. From September, 1937, to September, 1938, he said, 6,898 cases were filed in the Circuit court and 2,722 in Superior court. During that year, the Circuit court, with an average of only seven sitting judges, actually disposed of 7,102 cases, an excess of more than 900, he added. The Superior court, with its considerably smaller docket, had an average of fourteen trial judges during the year.

Before the assignment court was established, Judge La Buy said, Circuit court judges disposed of an average of only .86 cases per day. During its first year this was increased to 1.68 cases per day and last year the judges averaged 3.9 cases per day, or an increase of more than 400 per cent, he asserted.

Reduce Delays Many Months.

Where there once was a delay of two years or more in jury cases, the average is now eight months in Circuit court, Judge La Buy said. In nonjury trials the average has been reduced from a year to one month. And there has been a 40 per cent reduction in appeals.

Judge La Buy emphasized the conciliation feature of the assignment court. Today, he said, more than 75 per cent of lawyers are willing to bring in litigants and discuss settlements. Through this procedure as many cases are being settled by conciliation as are being adjudicated by the seven trial judges of the Circuit court, he said.

"Unreasonable delays mean exorbitant costs of obtaining justice," said Judge La Buy. "Unless justice can be quickly, economically, and efficiently obtained—unless the legal profession puts its house in order—you will find quasi-judicial administrations, patterned after the industrial board of Illinois, stepping in and reorganizing our system of administering justice."

MINE WORKERS, SOURCE OF C. I. O. CASH, DRYING UP

Lewis' Desperate Plight Revealed by Report.

BY CHESLY MANLY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—The latest semi-annual official report of the United Mine Workers, financial backbone of John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations, casts some light on the reasons for Lewis' anxiety for peace with the American Federation of Labor.

The U. M. W. report discloses that the C. I. O. is in a desperate financial condition. The dues paying membership of the mine workers' union, the only source of ready cash in the C. I. O., dwindled from 447,491 for the previous six-month period to 373,687. Lewis, however, continued to pad the membership of the mine workers to 600,000, for the purpose of exacting $180,000 semi-annually in C. I. O. taxes of five cents a month a man.

Besides the $180,000 in C. I. O. taxes, Lewis took a total of $205,377 from the mine workers' treasury during the six months' period for his political activities, and the assistance of distressed C. I. O. unions. Of this amount, $65,000 went to the once powerful but now tottering United Automobile Workers.

May Explain Peace Move.

The mine workers' report lent substance to charges emanating from A. F. of L. sources that Lewis wants peace because the C. I. O. is at the end of the rope, financially; that the only obstacle to a settlement is his determination, if possible, to dictate terms that will save his face.

John P. Frey, president of the Metal Trades department of the A. F. of L., publicly charged for the first time today that Lewis' proposal for "one big union," submitted at the first A. F. of L.-C. I. O. peace conference in the White House last week, was a communist plot to seize control of the whole American labor movement. The A. F. of L. charge that Lewis' scheme was of communist origin was revealed exclusively by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on Wednesday.

Cites Deadly Parallel.

Mr. Frey called attention to the "deadly parallel" between the Lewis plan and a proposal by Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party, which was approved in a resolution adopted by the communist central committee in June, 1937. Both called for "one big union" to be composed of the A. F. of L., the C. I. O., and the independent railroad brotherhoods, with equal representation on the executive board for the C. I. O. and proportional representation for the brotherhoods.

"Although the propagandists for the C. I. O. have been referring to their plan as 'daring' and 'breathtaking,'" Frey declared, "the 'deadly parallel' shows that it's all old stuff and not even original."

Meanwhile, the translation of an article in the Kommunisticheskii Internatsional [the communist international], published in Moscow, shows that even the name of the organization proposed by Lewis—the American Congress of Labor—was of communist origin.

Written by Foster.

The article was written by William Z. Foster, chairman of the American communist party, and published in April, 1937. It was translated here by an expert in the government service. Foster wrote that the communists were working for the creation of an "American congress of labor," to be composed of the A. F. of L., the C. I. O., and the independent railroad brotherhoods.

Foster set forth with great candor the political, rather than the legitimate trade union aims of the communists in promoting the C. I. O. as the nucleus of a peoples' front.

"The communist party is rendering every support to the great organization campaigns which are now being conducted; it displays a maximum of the initiative in the leadership of the conflicts of the masses; it untiringly fights for the unity of the labor movement; it aspires to develop movement of the C. I. O. into the creation of the great Peoples' Front," Foster wrote.

"At the same time it steadily strives to broaden its influence among the workers and, in developing the class struggle, to grow up into the real mass leading party of the American proletariat."

The latest report of the mine workers, submitted by Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer, is for the period June 1, 1938, to Dec. 1, 1938. It was sent to the secretaries of all locals with instructions not to let it get out of their hands.

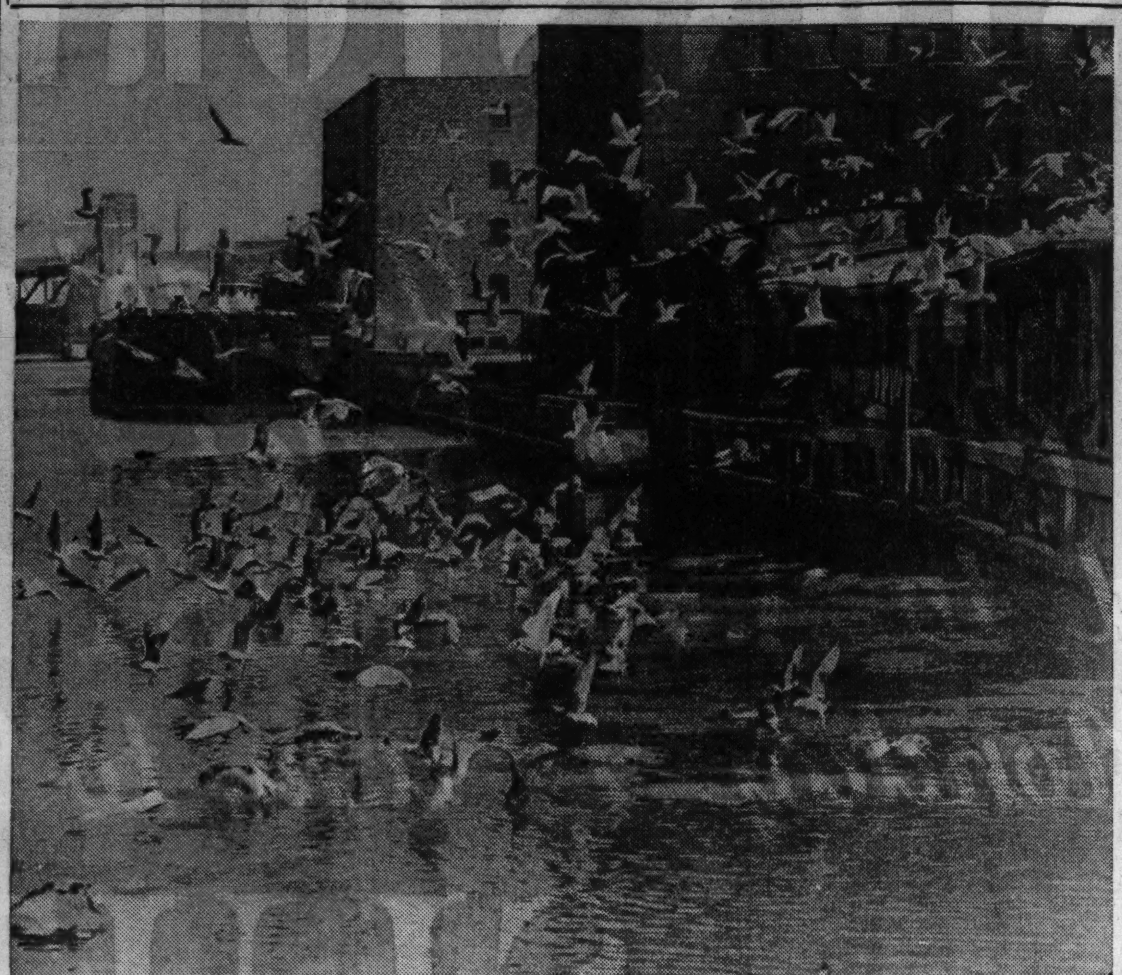
The report discloses that the U. M. W. income from all sources was $1,358,304, as compared with income of $2,263,409 for the previous six month period. Expenditures totaled $1,430,951, as against expenditures of $2,079,866 for the previous period.

Income from dues was $1,121,061, compared with similar income of $1,343,474 in the previous period. Since dues are 50 cents a month a member, this indicates that the dues paying membership fell off from 447,491 to 373,687.

Since this report was submitted, Lewis has levied a special $1 assessment on the mine workers to raise funds for the crumbling C. I. O.

Even with the miners' own revenues falling off, Lewis took from their treasury, during the six month period, $20,000 for the Pennsylvania state Democratic committee; $180,000 for the C. I. O. in taxes; $20,000 for the C. I. O. as a loan; $64,377 as a contribution for the C. I. O. labor's nonpartisan league [for political activities]; $26,000 in loans to the Steel Workers' Organizing committee, which never has paid anything into the C. I. O. treasury; $10,000 in loans to the International Union of Mine, Mill, and Smelter Workers, and $65,000 in loans to the United Automobile Workers.

Thousands of Gulls Feed on Minnows in Ogden Slip



Millions of minnows have died recently in Ogden slip, just north of the mouth of the Chicago river, and yesterday thousands of gulls were there for a feast. The tiny fish had come to the slip to spawn, and died from lack of oxygen. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Big Flock Arrives

Great flocks of herring gulls were feeding yesterday on the millions of dead minnows in the Ogden slip. The tiny fish, which came into the slip several days ago to spawn, have died from lack of oxygen in the water. Ogden slip is cut off from the lake by the new controling locks at the mouth of the Chicago river. City officials said the reduction in the lake diversion has resulted in the water in Ogden slip becoming stagnant.

PUSH FOR ACTION ON AMENDMENTS TO WAGNER LAW

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—[Special.]—Senator Allen J. Ellender [D., La.] and other members of the senate's education and labor committee will insist at its meeting next Tuesday that an early date be set for hearing on various proposals to amend the Wagner labor relations act.

Senator Ellender declared today that the committee had waited long enough on what he called the futile peace negotiations between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, requested by President Roosevelt. Senator Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah], chairman of the committee and a strong administration supporter, has been putting off the Wagner act hearings on the pretext that they might jeopardize the labor peace negotiations.

C. I. O. Against Changes.

The C. I. O. opposes any amendments to the Wagner act, while the A. F. of L. wants it amended to prevent discrimination by the labor relations board in favor of the C. I. O.

It is the belief of many senators that Mr. Roosevelt called the labor peace conference for the purpose, among others, of undermining efforts to amend the Wagner act. These senators insist that the Wagner act should be amended regardless of the outcome of the labor peace negotiations.

Amendments to the act are necessary, according to these senators, despite recent rulings of the United States Supreme court which have placed important ilimitations on the powers of the labor board.

Modified by Court.

In its decisions the court curtailed the powers of the board as follows:

1. Declared the sitdown strike illegal and removed perpetrators of such violence from the protection of the Wagner act, even though the employer has previously engaged in "unfair labor practices."
2. Permitted an employer to offer reinstatement to some sitdown strikers without reinstatement of all.
3. Required a union to give direct notice of a desire to bargain collectively before accusing an employer of refusing to bargain.
4. Permitted an employer to discharge members of a union for violation of the working conditions of their contract and to hire others, belonging to a different union, to take their places.

In a previous decision the court held that the labor board had no power to set aside a contract with an independent labor union.

2 OF FANSTEEL STRIKERS FINISH JAIL SENTENCES

Stanley Grum and Peter Skarbalus were released from the Lake county jail in Waukegan yesterday. They were first of the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation sit-down strikers to complete ten day sentences for contempt of court.

Lester J. Collins, C. I. O. attorney, made a two hour plea before Judge Theodore Forby in an attempt to have $100 fines against the men set aside. The court held with Sidney H. Block, counsel for the company, that the men would have to remain in jail until the fines were paid. Collins then produced $300 for the fines of Grum, Skarbalus, and Gus Canelakes, whose ten day term will be up today.

A fourth striker, Tony Koncilja, will be released tomorrow. Collins indicated that the C. I. O. would pay the fines of all of the strikers sentenced for defiance of injunctions at both the Fansteel corporation and Chicago Hardware Foundary company, both in North Chicago. These fines total more than $6,000.

TAFT VIEWS NEW DEAL'S BUSINESS PLEDGE AS BUNK

Just a Smoke Screen, Ohio Senator Declares.

New York, March 18.—[Special.]—Senator Robert A. Taft [R., O.] today charged the Roosevelt administration with insincerity in its current appeasement policy for business, calling it a smoke screen to hide the administration's real purpose.

Senator Robt. Taft at club luncheon. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

The Republican party, Senator Taft told the National Republican club, must assume leadership of the drive to encourage business, while at the same time formulating a sincere and effective program for the administration of relief. The only way to encourage business, he contended, is to eliminate as far as possible governmental price fixing and governmental interference with wage and business practices.

Business Firms on Wane.

The Roosevelt administration's regulation of business and competition with business, Senator Taft said, "have directly discouraged private activity of every kind."

"More men have gone out of business in the last five years than have gone into business, because of the complete uncertainty as to whether they can survive constant government interference," he declared.

"The very adoption of a so-called policy of appeasement admits that American business men, and men who would like to go into business, have been badgered and discouraged to an extent which requires an absolute reversal of government policy.

Real Policies Concealed.

"Secretary of Commerce Harry Hopkins made a speech in Des Moines and Secretary Henry Morgenthau is having mottoes hung in the offices of the treasury department with the legend 'does it help recovery?' but, as the old saying goes, 'fine words butter no parsnips.'

"The appeasement policy is like the famous 'breathing spell for business'—only a smoke screen to conceal the real policies of the administration. It cannot be sincere. Whenever any question of action arises, the President is just as determined as ever in his previous policies.

COLLEGE TEAMS END DEBATES IN A GREAT CLATTER

The tumult and the shouting of the last two days was replaced by the clatter of knives and forks yesterday at Lake Forest college, where the annual contest of the Illinois Debate league ended with a luncheon in Calvin Durand commons. Teams that made the best showings were awarded cups by Prof. Russell C. Tomlinson of Lake Forest, president of the league.

A total of 174 debates were held between teams from eighteen colleges of the league. The question was: "Resolved, that the United States should cease to use public funds for the purpose of stimulating business." The score: Ninety negative teams and eighty-four affirmative teams won.

Lake Forest's representatives made the best record, twenty-one victories out of twenty-four debates. Wheaton college was second with twenty, and Augustana and Olivet tied for third. Wheaton won the cup for women's affirmative teams and Olivet for men's affirmative teams. Augustana was first among women's negative teams and Lake Forest, Olivet, and Illinois State Normal tied in the men's division.

GUANACOS SCRAP BIRTH CONTROL, PAY WAY AT ZOO

Young Traded Away for Specimens.

The guanaco family is earning its way through the Lincoln Park zoo.

The account books of Floyd S. Young, zoo director, show that in the last four years alone the guanacos—now a herd of one male and six females—have enriched the zoo by $2,000 worth of animals. They've been enriching the zoo for many years, Young says, ever since they came from South America, where they travel in herds. Guanacos are members of the llama family.

How the Zoo Profits.

The zoo makes money from the guanacos by trading young male guanacos for other animals. A male is worth from $250 to $350 in trade. A female guanaco is usually given away with every male traded.

And where do the young males come from? Young explained: "The guanacos are probably the most productive of fairly valuable animals."

In 1935 he traded a male guanaco for a pair of crowned pigeons worth $250 and four mynahs, Asiatic birds. None was traded the next year, but in 1937 a pair of serval cats and an anteater were received for a young male guanaco.

Another Good Trade Made.

Another trade that year gave the zoo two spider monkeys, a female axis deer, and three toucans [tropical birds] in exchange for one guanaco.

Last year one guanaco brought in three frog-mouthed night hawks, and for another the zoo got a female emu, a pair of cherry headed mangabeys, and a female Moazambigue monkey.

THOUSAND WOMEN ASK COURTNEY'S AID FOR GREEN

Urge Prosecutor to Rise Above Partisanship.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

More than a thousand women who voted for State's Attorney Courtney in the Democratic primary will petition him next week to prove his sincerity by supporting Dwight H. Green, Republican candidate for mayor.

Mrs. Irene B. Reidy.

Mrs. Irene B. Reidy, president of the Republican Business Women's club, told about the plan last night. She said the thousand women who have signed the petition will be asked to get the signatures of other women who supported Courtney. A total of 10,000 names on the petition will be sought.

Text of Petition.

The petition to Courtney reads:

"Irrespective of party, the citizens listed below love Chicago and want honest, clean government, economy, and freedom from corruption. We beg you to rise above partisanship and to do all in your power to elect Dwight H. Green mayor of Chicago and to work shoulder to shoulder with him.

"With you two fine young Americans as a team, it can be done."

Mrs. Reidy said that Republican women also will be asked to sign the petition, in order to indicate that the movement is nonpartisan.

Women Meet Tomorrow.

Another group of nonpartisan women that is taking an active part in the Green campaign is led by Mrs. Helen M. Sewell, chairman of the women's division of the Ex-Service Men's Republican club of Illinois. She will meet tomorrow with several hundred women to enroll them in the drive for Green.

In a radio talk last night on the "Greek Hour" program, Green paid tribute to Pericles.

"It was Pericles who first declared that any citizen who does not take an active interest in public affairs is a useless character," Green said. "Remember his words and see that nothing keeps you from voting for your home, your job, and your city on April 4."

BURKE DEMANDS CHANGES IN LABOR ACT—NOT REPEAL

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.] said tonight forces opposing any change in the Wagner labor act "may defeat their own purpose" by bringing about its repeal instead of revision. He said in a radio address that the proper course neither was repeal nor to let the law stand unchanged.

"Let the law be improved," the Nebraskan declared. "Not in haste, not in passion, but with the vision of real statesmanship this law may be rewritten to accomplish its lofty purpose.

"Certainly we cannot continue under the law as it is. It is a disrupting influence. . . . There must be a change and that without delay. But it need not be repeal. Only if the forces persist that oppose any change in the law and in the agency that enforces it is there danger that they may defeat their own purpose."

40,000 WORKERS FOR KELLY TO HAIL THEIR CHIEF

Hold 4 Big Massmeetings This Week.

BY PARKE BROWN.

The big Democratic organization, which includes the thousands of employés on all public pay rolls in Chicago will swing into four mass demonstrations for Mayor Kelly this week.

The first two of four sectional meetings which must be attended by all noncivil service employes will be held tomorrow night. One will be in the International amphitheater, 42d and Halsted streets. This is for precinct captains and workers on the south side—form wards 1 to 19, inclusive. The other will be in the 132d Infantry armory, 2653 Madison street, for wards 20 to 29, inclusive, and the 32d ward.

40,000 to Attend.

On Tuesday night the third meeting will be held in the Paradise ballroom, 128 North Pulaski road, for wards 30 and 31 and wards 33 to 39, inclusive. The fourth and final meeting will be held Thursday night in the Broadway armory. This will be for workers from wards 40 to 50 inclusive.

It is expected that the combined attendance at the four meetings will exceed 40,000 and that the meetings will constitute the only big show by Mayor Kelly's supporters during the last fortnight of the campaign. More important from the organization standpoint will be the constant house to house canvassing that will continue up to the night before the election on April 4.

Two Main Activities.

That these two activities—massmeetings and constant precinct hustling—constitute the main structure of the Kelly campaign has again emphasized any Democratic determination to hold tight to what it believes it has without attempting to increase public interest.

Among the workers there is constant discussion of the possibility of recording a million Kelly votes. The mayor received 604,190 in the primary. But the leaders who make the decisions hold that it is better to play safe.

Democratic headquarters announced yesterday the receipt of two belated telegrams promising support to Mayor Kelly. One was from Joseph D. Keenan, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor and leader of the Courtney labor movement in the primary. The other was from Harry R. Chapman, leader of the Courtney forces in the 4th ward.

9,275 Names on April 4 Vote Lists Are Challenged

Officials of the board of election commissioners announced that suspect notices challenging 9,275 names on the April 4 polling lists were filed yesterday. Yesterday was the last day for such filing before the election. Registration for village elections April 18 was held yesterday in Chicago Heights and Harvey.

State Begins Campaign in Chicago Area Against "Bootleggers" in House Plans

THIRTY WARNED; 100 MORE WILL FACE CHARGES

Misuse of Architects' Seals Alleged.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Bootlegging home plans, a practice common in the metropolitan area for many years and more prevalent recently, at last is being investigated by state officials. Following a long compaign against misrepresentation conducted by the Illinois Society of Architects the state department of registration and education, it was learned yesterday, has started a drive to clean up the situation.

Herman L. Palmer fights racket.

According to Harry J. Hebner, assistant superintendent of the department of registration and education, thirty alleged violators of the law governing the drawing and usage of house plans have been reprimanded. One hundred more will face the state board on similar charges during the next few weeks, he said.

Join in Evading Law.

Connivance of builders and architects in evading the law has brought about a situation which is working hardship on both home owners and reputable architects, it was asserted.

The state law specifies that all homes costing $7,500 and more must have plans stamped by a licensed architect. Some building firms have evaded the law either by buying cheap plans or having them drawn by a low priced draughtsman and then stamped by a licensed architect. The latter is paid for the use of his stamp.

The draughtsman in the contractor's office, of course, is not entitled by law to practice architecture and usually is not qualified to draw satisfactory plans and specifications.

Declares It a Racket.

"It's a racket," said Herman L. Palmer, secretary of the Illinois Society of Architects. "We've been fighting it for several years but at the height of the depression, when so many were out of work in the building field, we slowed up a bit. Recently we've pushed the fight and are glad to see the state is now backing us."

"We don't intend to prosecute any violators at present," said Assistant Superintendent Hebner of the state board. "We're merely calling them in, pointing out where they have been violating the law and warning them that if it happens again they'll be fined."

The law specifies that no one can practice architecture in Illinois unless he is a licensed architect.

Fines Provided for Violation.

If any licensed architect permits his registered seal to be placed on the plans of some one else he is violating the law. For both of these violations the punishment is a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $200.

Hebner said that during the last three weeks more than fifty complaints had been received against contractors representing themselves as architects or offering free architectural service.

"We're not trying to force a monopoly for the architects," said Hebner. "We're trying to protect the public from being gypped by men not qualified to draw plans. It may cost a home builder $100 to $1,000 loss by having poorly drawn plans.

"Architects have been charging $10 to $20 for stamping plans with their qualified seal which were drawn up by draftsmen employed by construction firms. Naturally, the construction is not supervised by a licensed architect, as it would be if the law were obeyed. The public suffers from this lack of supervision."

McKey & Poague Official Buys Beverly Hills House

Henry W. Kennedy, secretary of McKey & Poague, Inc., yesterday bought the three story residence at 10224 South Seeley avenue from Olivia C. Lebosquet. Anna W. Young & Co. of Beverly Hills was coöperating broker with McKey & Poague.

Three Firms Will Build in Niles Project

Announcement last Sunday that 1,500 lots in Grennan Heights, Niles, had been bought by Charles H. Cress & Co. and were to be marketed in coöperation with other contractors, resulted in three concerns announcing building plans. Lombard Terrace Homes, Inc., Stoltzner Building company, and Julian Brothers have plans under way for homes in the subdivision, Cress said yesterday.

Grennan Heights is said to be one of the largest developed subdivision properties, with improvements installed, in the Chicago area. The Bell Savings, Building and Loan association and the Madison-Crawford National bank of Chicago have approved Grennan Heights for first mortgage home loans, Cress said.

Last Sunday a picture of a house at 8021 Overhill avenue, owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. Harry Schlachter, was shown in this department as having been built by Charles H. Cress & Co. This was incorrect. The Schlachter house has not yet been built. The picture was of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Eric G. Erickson and is at 8112 North Osceola avenue, near the intersection of Milwaukee avenue and Oakton street, Niles. It is now open for inspection.

The Erickson six room house was financed with an FHA 90 per cent twenty-five year mortgage of $5,400, made by the Madison-Crawford National bank, with monthly payments of $38.25.

AUTO PARTS FIRM STARTS WORK ON $50,000 FACTORY

C. E. Niehoff & Co., manufacturers and wholesale dealers in automotive products, recently bought the southeast corner of Lawrence and Laporte avenues, 125 by 600 feet, extending south to Leland avenue. They have started work on a $50,000 factory. Holton, Seelye & Co. have the general contract. Edward M. Sieja is architect.

Following the example set by the Logan Engineering company, adjoining the property on the east, which set its building back some distance from Lawrence avenue, Niehoff & Co. will place its new plant sixty-five feet back from the sidewalk. It also will be set back on the Laporte avenue side. All this space will be landscaped.

The building, which will contain 20,000 square feet of floor space, is scheduled for completion during June. C. Logan McEwen of Naumann & Steuer was broker in the site purchase.

LACQUER FIRM RENTS NEW WEST SIDE BUILDING

The Maas & Waldstein Co., Newark, N. J., yesterday leased from E. J. Coyle, for fifteen years, with option to buy, a building to be erected at the northeast corner of North Paulina street and West Carroll avenue.

The company, established in 1876, makes industrial lacquers. The new building will be used as warehouse and sales office. Designed by Olsen & Urbain, it will be erected by the Campbell-Lowrie-Lautermilch corporation for June 1 occupancy. Chandler & Montague were brokers in the lease negotiations.

The 135 by 75 foot building will stand on a lot 135 by 125 feet. Vacant land in the rear of the structure is provided for future expansion. The new plant will provide additional space needed by increased business in the midwest serviced by this warehouse.

PURCHASE PRICE OF 29 S. LA SALLE PUT AT $1,275,000

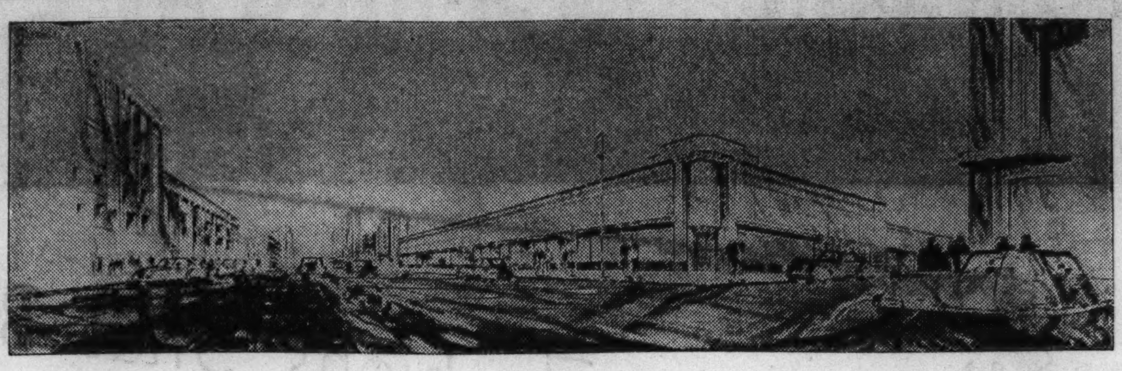
The purchase of the 29 South La Salle Street building by the Equitable Life Assurance society of the United States, as first reported in THE TRIBUNE on Thursday, was officially announced yesterday by the buyer. The price was $1,275,000.

The insurance company will merge its Chicago activities in the building. It will use about five floors. Herbert Becker and Sherwood K. Platt of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt, were attorneys for the Equitable. Arthur Rubloff & Co. was broker.

Elevator Operators Will Pay 25% Rental Increase

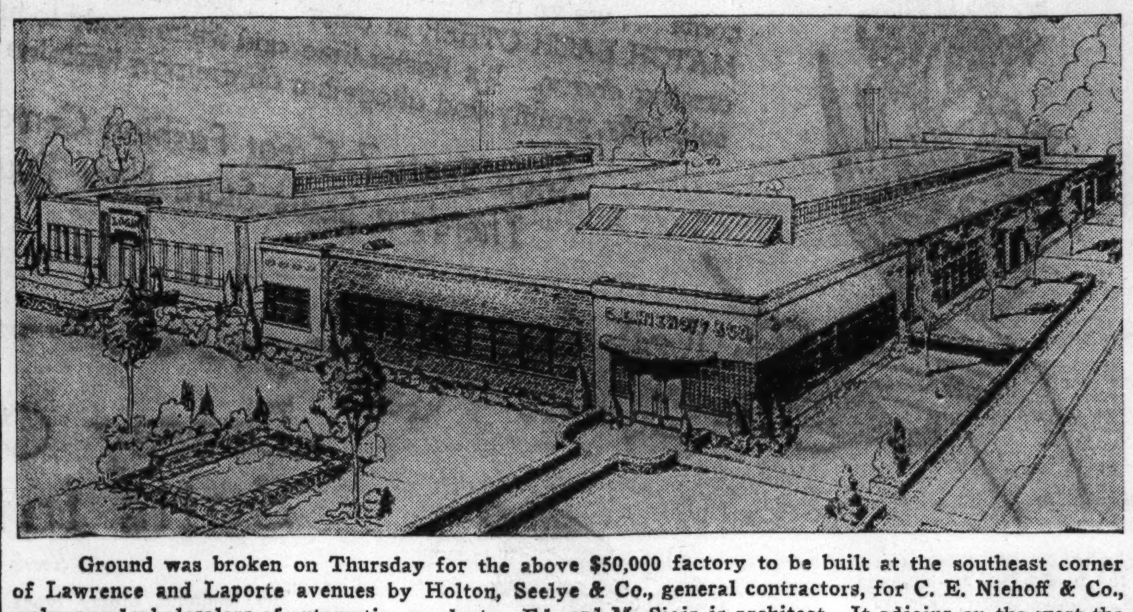
The Elevator Operators and Starters' union, local 66, yesterday renewed its lease at 202 South State street for three years at a reported 25 per cent increase in rental.

Milwaukee and Ainslie Commercial Building



The above $300,000 business block is to be built at the northeast corner of Milwaukee avenue and Ainslie street, at the convergence of Higgins road, by Henry R. Levy, president of the Studebaker Sales corporation. B. Leo Steif & Co., Inc., are architects. It will be of Bedford stone. Half of the site will be used for customers' parking. This automobile area will be flood lighted and all leases will specify that tenants must keep their windows lighted until late at night.

Break Ground for Northwest Side Factory



Ground was broken on Thursday for the above $50,000 factory to be built at the southeast corner of Lawrence and Laporte avenues by Holton, Seelye & Co., general contractors, for C. E. Niehoff & Co., makers and wholesalers of automotive products. Edward M. Sieja is architect. It adjoins on the west the plant of the Logan Engineering company, shown on the left.

NAME JOHNSON DIRECTOR OF MORTGAGE FIRM

Earle Vincent Johnson, vice president, and F. Z. Gifford, secretary of the Republic Realty Mortgage corporation, yesterday were elected directors of that organization. They replace John R. Magill and Robert B. Beach. Five directors are elected each year. Three were reelected. They are: President Harry L. Schmitz, Sangston Hettler, president of the H. H. Hettler Lumber company, and Edward A. Renwick, consulting engineer. At a meeting of the board of directors Benjamin F. Affleck was reëlected chairman of the board, and the other officers were reelected.

His subject will be "1939 Sales Hints." T. A. Sumner of the Sumner Mortgage company, president of the board, will preside. Mrs. E. W. Blatterman, a member of this year's program committee, will introduce the speaker. Schaefle conducts sales meetings in his own concern and specializes in selling residential property in western and north shore suburbs.

Frederic Kirschner won first prize of $5 in the quiz program at the March meeting of the North Side Real Estate board last Tuesday noon at the New Lawrence hotel. He had a score of 500 out of a possible 600. Martin Matheson and L. C. Norman won $3 and $2, respectively, with scores of 490 and 400. The questions related to real estate.

The Chicago Real Estate board's annual spring jamboree will be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Sherman on Wednesday evening, April 26, according to Frank C. Wells, chairman of the house and program committee of the board. With the exception of one well known speaker, to be announced later, the evening will be devoted to entertainment. Several professional entertainers have been engaged.

Brokers Note

Charles Bertch has opened a real estate office at 19 North Cicero avenue. He has been identified with loop, near north side, and west side properties for many years.

DELUGACH BUYS EIGHTY ACRES; WILL SUBDIVIDE

Frank De Lugach yesterday bought from R. O'Connell eighty acres bounded by 105th and 107th streets, 80th and 84th avenues, for an undisclosed price. The H. Olson company was broker. The buyer will subdivide the property into 50 by 135 foot lots and will market under the name of Frank De Lugach's Wooded Hills. This will be his fifty-second south side subdivision.

PLAN $300,000 STORE UNIT ON NORTHWEST SIDE

A. & P. Leases Space for New Food Mart.

[Picture in adjoining column.]

One of the largest commercial developments in the Jefferson park section in recent years was announced yesterday for the northeast corner of Milwaukee avenue and Ainslie street. A one story business building is to be erected by Henry R. Levy, president of the Studebaker Sales corporation, and a director of the Studebaker corporation. B. Leo Steif & Co., Inc., are the architects.

Henry R. Levy.

According to Howard L. Storch of Ross, Browne & Fleming, rental agents of the project, it will represent a total investment in land and building of $300,000. Completion is scheduled for August.

Plan Parking Area.

The property fronts 150 feet on Milwaukee avenue and 265 feet on Ainslie street, extending through to Lipps avenue. All of the Milwaukee avenue frontage will be used for the new building. Only half of the Ainslie street frontage will be used. The remainder will be used for a parking area for customers. This rear section will be paved with concrete and flood lighted for evening shoppers.

According to Storch, the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company already has leased space, through Hogan & Farwell, Inc., for one of its largest food marts on the northwest side. The new store will have a frontage of 50 feet and a depth of 150 feet.

Negotiations are under way with several other national and local chain stores for some of the twelve units planned.

Bought Site for Cash.

Levy bought the site in August, 1937, from the estate of Henrietta Snell for a reported $126,000 in cash. There will be no indebtedness on the new building. The land once was owned by Amos J. Snell, a figure in one of Chicago's most sensational unsolved murder mysteries in the 1880s.

For seventy years the corner has been occupied by the Avenue house, once operated as an inn. This was to have been razed in 1937, when plans were first announced for a business block by the new owner. Both the wrecking and the new building were deferred until this year, when it was decided to go ahead.

Lake Shore Drive Building Negotiates $300,000 Loan

Hogan & Farwell, Inc., rental agents of the twelve story apartment building at the northwest corner of Lake Shore drive and Division street, yesterday negotiated a $300,000 first mortgage loan on the property. It was made by the Western and Southern Life Insurance company, for fifteen years. The building will be remodeled into small apartments.

Start Work on New $200,000 Oak Park Unit

Work has been started on an Oak Park store building project, first announced in this department on Jan. 22, 1937. It is at the northeast corner of Lake street and Oak Park avenue. This is the site of the old Oak Park postoffice, which was razed in October, 1937. The original plans called for a one or two story building with foundations for an eventual six story building. Later it was decided to put in foundations for an eight story structure.

Now, according to Samuel E. Bird, architect and engineer, the building will be one story in height, with foundations capable of carrying three additional stories if needed. Completion of this first section is set for Aug. 1. Riley & Kerr of Oak Park have been appointed rental agents.

The new building will front 130 feet on Lake street and 150 feet on Oak Park avenue. The property fronts 145 feet on Lake street and 160 feet on Oak Park avenue. It was purchased for $61,000 by a syndicate in January, 1937. Title is now held by the Lake-Oak Park Building corporation, of which Dr. Martin D. Jones is president. H. C. Peterson, druggist, is secretary and treasurer.

MORTGAGE BODY PLANS SERIES OF FHA TALKS

In order to familiarize all approved mortgagees with Federal Housing administration procedure the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association has planned a series of lectures.

According to H. L. Schmitz, chairman of the FHA committee of the association, the first lecture meeting will be held tomorrow evening, March 20, in the dining room of the Chicago Real Estate board, 32 West Randolph street, at 6:30 o'clock. Philip Kaleth, chief mortgage risk examiner of the FHA, will discuss "Risk Rating to Determine the Borrower's Eligibility."

MAKER OF BOGUS MONEY ESCAPES TERM IN PRISON

Court Grants Probation for First Offense.

Stanley Dale Purvis, an artist, who sought his fortune through the private manufacture of money, yesterday escaped a federal prison term as a counterfeiter. At the same time Purvis was assured immunity from charges in the Criminal court.

Federal Judge William H. Holly placed Purvis on probation for five years. Purvis, who is 23 years old, and comes from Kansas City, Mo., was charged with making and possessing counterfeit plates for the manufacture of spurious $1 and $5 bills and with photographing money.

Court Grants Probation.

"You have pleaded guilty and face a possible sentence of ten years in the penitentiary," Judge Holly told Purvis. "As I see it, however, there is no middle course in this case. Since you have no previous record I am in favor of probation."

At an earlier hearing defense attorneys produced letters from twenty-six business men and clergymen in Kansas City attesting to Purvis' previous good reputation. It was reported that Purvis turned to counterfeiting to finance his education at a Colorado school of mines. Yesterday it was further reported that an uncle would now finance his education.

Assistant District Attorney A. Bradley Eben, on Thursday, protested when Judge Holly indicated he would grant probation. If Purvis should resort to crime again he might use a gun, Eben said.

"We feel that Judge Holly's judgment is correct in this case," said Assistant State's Attorney Daniel L. Freedman, after the court's decision was announced. "Since Purvis has no record we probably will not press our charges."

Faces Court Tomorrow.

Purvis is scheduled for arraignment tomorrow before Judge George Fred Rush in the Criminal court. There he faces charges of burglary, forgery, and attempting to pass a bogus $39 check.

The attempt to cash the check in a currency exchange last January caused Purvis' arrest. In his pockets were ninety-one checks. All were signed with the name of the head of a decorating company.

Purvis confessed breaking into the company office, stealing the blank checks, running them through a perforating machine, and then signing them with the official's name which he copied from a canceled check.

In Purvis' room at 6342 Kenwood avenue, secret service agents found an elaborate counterfeiting setup. It included seven partially completed plates, chemicals, and proofs of bogus bills. They also found a revolver, a blackjack, and a hacksaw.

Woman Helps with Chores, Milks Cow on 85th Birthday

Admits Killing Two

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Samuel Hryciuk, who confessed yesterday to West North avenue police that he had slain two women.

Paddy, Who Loves Water, Picks Wrong Birthplace

Sad is the fate of Paddy, baby Defassa waterbuck born St. Patrick's day at the Brookfield zoo. Like a fish, he was born with a liking for the water, but he probably will never get nearer to it than a drinking pail, for the waterbucks at Brookfield roam on dry land and seem to thrive on it. The waterbuck, a native of South Africa, looks like the American elk, except that its color, a grayish-brown, is darker. It is an accomplished swimmer.

SEEK QUICK TRIAL OF YOUNG SLAYER ON RAPE CHARGES

Youth Admits Killing Two Women, Attacking 50.

Police last night prepared to ask for the swift indictment and trial of Samuel Hryciuk, who yesterday confessed a series of sex crimes, including two murders, several rapes, and numerous attacks on women in the last two years.

Capt. Harry O'Connell of the North avenue station said that Hryciuk, who is 19 years old, will be prosecuted on one or more of the rape complaints instead of on a murder charge. Hryciuk's confessions would be the only basis for prosecution for murder, Capt. O'Connell said. In the rape charges, on the other hand, several victims have signed complaints and are willing to testify in court. Conviction for rape carries a sentence of one year to life in the penitentiary.

Hryciuk, who is only two years out of Von Humboldt elementary school, was described as one of the most cunning and vicious sex degenerates arrested in recent years. He told Capt. O'Connell he had been unable to get a job since graduation and has obtained spending money by robbing his attack victims.

Tells of Slaying Woman, 67.

One of the slayings which Hryciuk confessed was that of Mrs. Bertha De Meyer, 67 years old, a recluse who was found beaten and strangled to death in November of 1937 in her squalid home at 1657 North Troy street. His second murder victim was Mrs. Caroline Schenke, 37 years old, of 2856 North Harding avenue. She was beaten fatally in October, 1937, in an alley at the rear of 2709 North Kildare avenue.

In calm, almost bored tones, Hryciuk admitted his crimes to Capt. O'Connell and Sergts. Bernard Reilly and John Roche. Describing the murder of Mrs. De Meyer, he said: "I got into the kitchen of her house through a window. I was in some kind of a hall when I saw a white haired woman. She tried to run away from me, but I followed her and socked her on the chin with my right fist. She fell to the floor.

"Then I found a piece of bed sheet and tied it tight around her neck. I twisted the sheet with a curling iron until she was quiet. I dragged her back into the kitchen and attacked her. Then I took a $10 bill that was on the bedroom dresser and got out. I went home and went to sleep."

Killed Resisting Attack.

Mrs. Schenke was killed, Hryciuk said, when she resisted his attempts to rape her.

"I hit her on the head with a whisky bottle and then with my fist," he said. "I took some money and threw her hat away."

Hryciuk was taken to the scene of Mrs. Schenke's slaying yesterday afternoon, where he showed police how he committed the crime.

Hryciuk was seized Tuesday night by Charles Cibik, a brother of one of the youth's intended victims. Cibik's sister, Eleanor, 18 years old, had been followed by Hryciuk for several blocks. Hryciuk grabbed her in front of her home at 2518 Iowa street and tried to stuff a handkerchief into her mouth. She fought with him and screamed for help. Her brother ran from the house and held Hryciuk until police arrived.

In rapid order Hryciuk then told of numerous assaults on women. "I guess I must have attacked about fifty women in all," he said casually to Capt. O'Connell.

Identified by Victims.

Several of his victims identified Hryciuk yesterday and signed complaints against him. One woman, 45 years old, the widowed mother of a son, 11, pointed him out as the man who raped her last June in Humboldt park.

From her bed in the County hospital, where she has been confined by injuries incurred in an auto accident, another woman identified him as having raped her last September in the same park. Four other women signed complaints charging him with assault with intent to commit rape.

PLEADS NOT GUILTY ON DRUG CHARGE.

Walter Kurz, 41 years old, pleaded not guilty yesterday before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to a charge of selling narcotics to a government agent. His trial was set for April 10.

A Better Deal for New Car Buyers

The car buying public wanted it . . . car dealers asked for it . . . and General Finance Corporation is the first to give this better, fairer deal — PREFERRED BUYERS PLAN

MOST FOR THE LEAST COST — Up to now, finance sources have not properly recognized the fact that the chance for loss decreases as the down payment on a new car increases. PREFERRED BUYERS PLAN rewards the buyer who makes a larger down payment — by giving him a lower rate. Yet the buyer who makes a small down payment pays no more than the former, lowest cost. Each buyer pays a rate proper for his own case.

The larger the down payment, the less the risk, and the lower the cost to the buyer. This results in substantial savings for all but a comparatively few buyers. See the table of examples for representative savings up to 50% of former costs.

BALMY SPRING ONLY DAY AWAY (FOR AUTOISTS)

You May Drive to Meet It Around Cairo.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cairo, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—Spring, in its northward march, has reached southern Illinois. The season, in its gradual progress, will bring the green grass and the budding trees to Chicago within three or four weeks.

Winter weary motorists of Chicagoland, however, can now reach the vernal countryside in a day's drive from the city.

The Tribune road car, less than nine hours from Chicago, was in the wooded bluffs on the east bank of the Mississippi river about forty-five miles south of St. Louis. En route on U. S. 66 through Staunton and thence due south on Ill. 43 to bypass congestion, the wet prairies of northern and central Illinois were in the sombre yellows and browns of last year's vegetation.

Grass Green on Southern Slopes.

South of Belleville, eyes hungry for such sights could find much evidence that a warming sun is indeed moving northward. Sheep munched new grass on hillsides with a southern exposure. Farmers were plowing. A farmer's wife was planting potatoes in her garden.

At Fort Chartres State park, the recently reconstructed 1758 French military stronghold echoed the croak of frogs from Mississippi waters flooding nearby woods. The custodian said wrens had arrived a week ago.

At Fort Kaskaskia State park, green clover covered earthworks of a 1736 stockade which guarded the seat of French government in Illinois. Maple trees were dropping those flowers that children imagine are caterpillars.

Robins After Worms.

Continuing south through Riverside hills on Illinois 3, the tour turned east through Murphysboro to Carbondale and thence south on U. S. 51 to Giant City State park. Robins sought angle worms lured to the surface by sun warmed earth.

On south in U. S. 51, through hills known locally as foothills of the Ozarks, buds were beginning to swell in the expansive orchards. The sap was rising in the trees.

At Cairo here this noon, there's a chilly breeze but there's also a warm sun. Over the confluence of two swollen rivers, the Ohio and the Mississippi, a blue sky with fluffy white clouds looks like summer. It can't be many weeks from Chicago, even as the season travels. By automobile, it's an easy day's drive from here to Chicago, about 400 miles.

A Tour to Spring

By following highway route marked by heavy black line Chicagoans can find spring only a day away. Alternate routes also are suggested.

GREEKS TO HAIL ANNIVERSARY OF THEIR FREEDOM

Seventy-five thousand Chicagoans of Greek ancestory next Saturday will join in observing the 114th anniversary of Hellenic freedom. Mayor Kelly has proclaimed it Hellenic day.

The celebration will begin Friday evening with a vesper service in the Church of the Annunciation. Bishop Callistos, assisted by the entire clergy of the nine Greek churches here, will officiate. Most of the faithful will remain overnight at prayer. On Saturday morning every Greek church will celebrate high mass.

That evening the climax of the celebration will occur when 125 Greek-American organizations gather in the French casino of the Morrison hotel. Consul General Demetrios Benetatos will speak.

One hundred Chicago alumni of the University of Michigan met in the Great Northern hotel yesterday to celebrate the 102d anniversary of the university's founding. Alumni clubs in 150 other cities held similar gatherings. The alumni heard a radio broadcast depicting historical events in the university's development and a speech by Dr. Alexander G. Ruthven, university president.

FALLS DOWN ELEVATOR SHAFT.

Walter Amstutz, 20 years old, 726 South Euclid avenue, Oak Park, was seriously injured yesterday when he stepped through an open door and fell eighteen feet down an elevator shaft in the Grant hotel, 6 North Dearborn street, where he had gone to work as a maintenance man.

CAR CRASH KILLS MAID, BRIDE OF PROFESSOR'S SON

Husband Hurt; Elopement Bared by Tragedy.

A secret Indiana elopement was revealed yesterday—by an automobile tragedy in which the young bride was killed. Her husband was injured critically.

Mrs. Sally Harper.

The bride was Mrs. Sally Timonen Harper, 26 years old, a maid in the home of Ralph B. Mack at 1100 South Green Bay road in Highland Park. After divorcing her first husband, she was married a few weeks ago to Eugene D. Harper, 24, of 616 Gregory avenue, Wilmette. He is an oil salesman, the son of Sterling H. Harper, assistant professor of architectural construction at Armour Institute of Technology.

Harper's automobile smashed into a telephone pole near the entrance to a dairy at 492 Deerfield avenue, Highland Park. Mrs. Harper was dead when dairy employés came upon the wreck. Harper was taken to Highland Park hospital. Mrs. Harper had a son, 5, by her first marriage.

John Johnson, 62, of 615 North Wells street, died yesterday in County hospital of injuries suffered Friday night when he was struck by an automobile at Narragansett and Dickens avenues. The driver was Robert Ebenroth, 6545 Ebenger drive, Niles.

An unidentified man, about 30 years old, was killed yesterday by an automobile at Avenue O and 122d street. Two pairs of clasped hands were tattooed on his left arm. Thomas Arzich, 14039 Mackinaw avenue, Burnham, driver of the car, was held for the inquest.

Louis Gage, 51, of 6144 South Green street, died in St. Bernard's hospital of injuries received last Sunday, at Halsted and 74th streets. James R. Darby, 11256 South Michigan avenue, was the driver.

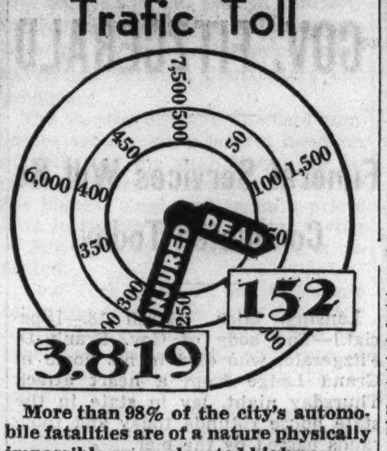
John McColly, 62, of 309 North Hunter street, Thornton, died in St. James hospital, Chicago Heights, yesterday from a skull fracture suffered Monday when his car crashed against the side of a bridge over Thorn creek, south of Glenwood. An inquest will be held tomorrow in Chicago Heights.

Up to 2 p. m. yesterday 192 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 152 were killed in Chicago, where 3,819 were injured in the same period.

COLLAPSES IN WOODSHED; DIES.

Edward Thompson, 50 years old, who was found unconscious in a woodshed at 1422 Wrightwood avenue, died in County hospital yesterday of heart disease aggravated by exposure.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

SEIZE CHICAGO WOMAN NAMED AS BLACKMAILER

Mrs. Grace Fink, 48 years old, was arrested yesterday in a rooming house at 1218 East 64th street by Sergt. Edward Donovan and his detective bureau squad and turned over to Kankakee police. A warant charging blackmail and extortion of $800 was sworn out in Kankakee by George Huse, 60, treasurer and manager of the Kankakee Water company until two weeks ago. Mrs. Fink, a stocky, red haired woman weighing 180 pounds, admitted to Sergt. Donovan that she had known Huse for several years. She denied she had written blackmail letters. She was in jail in Kankakee last night awaiting a hearing tomorrow.

Mrs. Grace Fink.

URGE INCOME TAX RATE SLASHES TO BOOST REVENUES

Washington, D. C., March 18.—(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States predicted today that the federal government would take in more revenue if it reduced its income tax rate. Such a lowering of rates, the chamber said, should be "combined with proper methods of applying them to reach real income."

Taking cognizance of discussions in congressional and administration quarters concerning removal of tax deterrents to business expansion, the chamber said:

"Business will heartily support a realistic program of tax revision that is developed with first attention to recovery. Increase, not decrease, of revenue should be the result."

PRESBYTERIANS PUSH DRIVE FOR CHURCH COLLEGES

Christian Schools Called Bulwark of Liberty.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

The Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, with its 2,000,000 members, is celebrating the 150th year of its American founding this year. To signalize the anniversary it has launched a nation-wide campaign for funds to strengthen higher education under Christian auspices. The Presbyterians believe a system of strong denominational schools will not only strengthen the church, but preserve the American bill of rights.

This bill of rights, they claim, was drafted in the main by the church's founding fathers.

A goal of ten million dollars has been set in the campaign. This will be given the fifty-three colleges and fifty-two Presbyterian foundations on state and other university campuses. The campaign for the anniversary fund reaches Chicago today when the city's 120 Presbyterian churches will begin their active coöperation in the drive.

District Leaders to Meet.

Tomorrow administrators and trustees from thirty-eight institutions in the region designated as the Chicago area of the drive, will meet with national leaders in the Palmer House.

Frank J. Loesch is chairman of the Chicago committee which includes a hundred or more civic, business, and professional leaders. Dr. Arthur H. Compton, Nobel science prize winner, and a product of Presbyterian higher education, is a national co-chairman of the anniversary. His colleague is Dr. John H. Finley, editor emeritus of the New York Times.

The late Rev. Harold McAfee Robinson of Philadelphia, former head of the church's national board of education, started the program to strengthen colleges. At several annual sessions of the church's general assembly he pleaded the cause of the nation's most effective leadership, which, he said, has been developed under Christion influences on the campuses of church related colleges.

Appeals for Freedom.

His successful appeal was based on the following statement:

"The Presbyterian system of representative democracy, founded upon the Christian doctrin of human worth, received its first civil interpretation in the government of the United States.

"The rights of man to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness are inalienable because they are rights with which men have been endowed of God. Apart from God these rights do not exist.

"That voice is faintly heard today. If it speaks the truth those who would secularize education in America today tear apart the inseparable truths out of which our freedom arose."

Dr. Robinson's appeal is now echoing in all churches. Methodist, Lutheran, Congregational, Baptist, and other groups are either preparing or contemplating campaigns for the development of opportunities for college education under Christian auspices as being primary to the revitalized Protestantism now apparent in America.

Plan to Strengthen Schools.

Methodist authorities assert that one of the first moves of the new church of that name to be created by the coming April merger at Kansas City of three major branches will be a program to strengthen its colleges.

Catholic higher education, as represented by Dr. Edward V. Stanford, president of Villanova college, has the following to say:

"Perhaps I am unduly apprehensive in this matter," said Dr. Stanford, "but I cannot be unmindful that the system of state education in Germany made it easy for Hitler to set up an absolute monopoly in education."

When the Presbyterian sesquicentennial drive reached Pittsburgh last week, Herbert Hoover, principal speaker, declared that the small liberal arts colleges such as those operated by churches are essential as a "check and balance" against the state supported system of public schools and universities.

Says Balance Is Even.

Dr. Compton, in announcing the Chicago meetings of the sesquicentennial, pointed out that this balance is now even—that private colleges and state institutions have virtually identical aggregate enrolments. He added that trends now point toward greater vocational and service programs for state supported higher education, with church related and independent institutions returning to education for leadership in executive and other fields.

Such education for leadership, said Dr. Compton, is based on a well rounded knowledge of human achievement throughout the ages rather than upon skills for specific duties of individuals.

The first Presbyterian college in American—the Log college—was founded in 1729 by the Rev. William Tennent at Neshaminy, about twenty miles north of Philadelphia. It later became Princeton university, pledged to "a broad and generous and liberal Presbyterianism in accordance with the original [log college] adopting act of 1729."

The first college to be chartered west of the Allegheny mountatins was old Tusculum college, Greeneville, Tenn. Washington and Jefferson college, in the heart of the Alleghenies, was founded in 1780, fourteen years earlier than Tusculum. Another early Presbyterian college was Hamilton, Clinton, N. Y. These are participating in the sesquicentennial.

Presbyterian Education in America

Presbyterian educational work in this country began at Log college, which was founded at Neshaminy, Pa., in 1729. Other early educational institutions established by the church, as shown on the map, were Washington and Jefferson college, Washington, Pa.; Tusculum college, Greeneville, Tenn., and Hamilton college, Clinton, N. Y. Through the years these colleges have been augmented by many others (black crosses on the map). In addition to its colleges the Presbyterian church has established a number of Westminster Foundation centers (white crosses). These centers are at nondenominational and state colleges and their stafs work among the Presbyterian students of such institutions. This year the church is celebrating the 150th anniversary of its American founding with a campaign for funds to strengthen higher education. The campaign area for which Chicago is the headquarters is shown on the map.

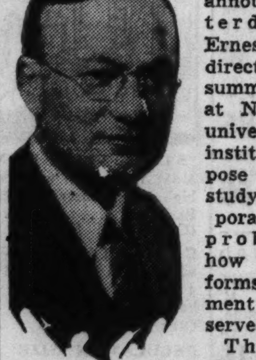
N. U. EDUCATORS PLAN INSTITUTE ON DEMOCRACY



Dr. E. H. Hahne.

Establishment of an Institute of Democracy, with a personnel of foremost American educators, was announced yesterday by Dr. Ernest H. Hahne, director of the summer session at Northwestern university. The institute's purpose will be the study of contemporary world problems and how democratic forms of government may be preserved.

The institute classes will open June 20 and conclude Aug. 12. Ten visiting professors outstanding in the realms of politics, sociology, economics, philosophy, psychology, education, and history will be brought to Evanston. Members of the Northwestern faculty will join them to form the instructional staf.

"It is folly," said Dr. Hahne, "to assume that the democratic form of government will persist automatically despite the efforts made by opposing forms of government where vastly different ideas and ideals prevail. Peace-time efforts must be made to improve the strength and bolster the weaknesses of American government."

CITY LEADS U. S. IN HEALTH WORK, SAYS DE KRUIF

Milk Program and Fight on Syphilis Hailed.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

Chicago is leading the nation in the advance of public health activity, Dr. Paul de Kruif declared here yesterday. The city has gained this position, he said, because in the last six years Mayor Kelly and the health department have courageously faced facts and worked unceasingly in the interests of public health.

Dr. de Kruif is a noted author on health subjects and is secretary of the general advisory committee of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. He conferred yesterday with Mayor Kelly and Dr. O. C. Wenger, surgeon of the United States Public service and coördinator in Chicago's campaign against syphilis.

Lists Main Accomplishments.

1. The intensive anti-syphilis program.
2. The use of only grade A milk at essentially the same price for which grade B milk sold in New York in the last year.
3. The development of free mother's milk stations for underprivileged infants.
4. Sharp reductions in infant mortality and the general death rate.

"I am amazed at the progress in the control of syphilis in Chicago in the last two years," Dr. de Kruif said. "Today this city is taking blood tests of its citizens at the unprecedented rate of 3,000 or more a day in the city laboratories alone. Of the syphilis cases discovered, 77 per cent have been placed under medical treatment.

"Chicago's example in this regard is spreading to other large cities in the country, but Chicago still is far ahead of these cities in its campaign."

Milk Grades 99 Per Cent.

Before Mayor Kelly went into office, Dr. de Kruif said, the city's milk supply was graded as 59 per cent—that is, it was 41 per cent below ideal as far as the source and condition of milk was concerned. At present the grading is 99 per cent, he said.

"Chicago has no grade B milk," said Dr. de Kruif, "for here you believe that all persons are entitled to the same purity in milk without any cost increase. As a result of this high standard, Chicago has had no outbreaks of streptococcus sore throat due to impure milk in the last few years. The city has the lowest typhoid fever death rate in its history. Cases of bone and gland tuberculosis are so rare here that it is practically impossible to find one.

"Six years ago the cost of breast milk was prohibitive for needy mothers. Then Chicago established the only large municipal breast milk station in the country and these underprivileged babies are given the milk free.

"All these factors and others have contributed to give Chicago in 1938 the lowest infant mortality and general death rates in its history."

General Death Rate Decreases.

Dr. de Kruif pointed out that in 1933 the general death rate in the city was 10.4 per 1,000 of population. Last year the rate was 9.7. In 1933 the mortality of new born babies [within the first thirty days of life] was 31.2 per 1,000. Last year it was 25 per 1,000.

The death rate for babies under one year of age [including those dying within the first thirty days] was 48.8 per 1,000 in 1933 and last year it was 33.7. This was not only an all-time low for Chicago but also was the lowest of any large city in the world last year, Dr. de Kruif said. The work of Dr. Herman Bundesen, now on leave from the presidency of the Chicago board of health, has been recognized as instrumental in the reduction of infant mortality.

The mortality of mothers in child birth was 4.5 per 1,000 in 1933. In 1938 the rate was 2.7.

A LIKELY LOOKING LAD IS MISSING; PAY ROLL IS, TOO

Myron Miller thought that Donald Morton, who worked in the Mayfair hotel, at 5946 Hyde Park boulevard, where Miller lived, was a likely looking lad, polite, efficient, neat, and honest. So a month ago Miller gave him a job in his optical company at 5 South Wabash avenue.

Yesterday Miller sent Morton, who is 22 years old, to a loop bank to deposit $80 and some checks, and to cash a $569 pay roll check. When Morton failed to return, Miller investigated. He found that no deposit had been made but that the pay roll check had been cashed. Thereupon Miller notified the Central police.

ANGRY CUSTOMER IS CHARGED WITH KILLING ENGINEER

Police were searching last night for Carl Falcone, a garment worker, as the alleged slayer of Robert W. Hall, a heating engineer, who was shot to death in the doorway of his home at 1534 East 73d place Friday night.

Carl Falcone.

Falcone, who is 35 years old, was named as the slayer by a coroner's jury. Police said Falcone shot and killed his father-in-law, Leo Lopietro, in August, 1931. He was acquitted on a plea of self-defense.

According to police, Falcone was disgruntled over a heating job done at his home by Hall. He allegedly threatened to kill Hall unless the latter did some supplemental work on the job. Hall was 44 years old. He is survived by his widow, Bessie, and a daughter, Roberta, 18, a freshman at the University of Illinois. Services will be held at 3 p. m. today in the chapel at 7350 Cottage Grove avenue.

A PHILANTHROPIC PIG'S $25 BRINGS LEPERS A MILLION

Pete's Owner Tells Parley How Bank Plan Grew.

This is the story of the squeal of a pig which was heard around the world, the Kansas schoolboy who owned the pig, and a million dollars.

Wilbur Chapman.

Pete, the pig, has been dead 25 years, but in his expiring squeal an idea was found that has gone far toward freeing the world of leprosy.

The owner of Pete, Wilbur Chapman, now a St. Paul, Minn., engineer, told the story of his fatted pet at the annual meeting yesterday of the American Mission to Lepers, in Central Y. M. C. A. He bought Pete for $3, sold him for $25 and gave the money to the fund for lepers. All this occurred in his home town, St. Cloud, Kas.

100,000 Petes Molded.

Eastern leaders of the leper mission's drive for funds heard of the unique donation. They decided to perpetuate the philanthropic pig. Pete was reproduced in pottery with a coin slot in his back—to be fed on coins for lepers instead of corn.

More than 100,000 pottery Petes have been distributed through the years, and they have brought in more than $1,000,000 in contributions, according to convention reports.

The original pig was bought by young Chapman with $3 given to him by his uncle, William Danner, then head of the lepers' mission. It was given him to spend as he pleased, but the lad was so impressed with his uncle's work for the lepers, that he invested the $3 in Pete—and watched it grow into $25 in the fund.

Tells of Pete's Predecessor.

Chapman said he knew he could make a profit on Pete because he had earned enough to buy a bicycle by feeding and fattening a previous pig—name unrecalled.

Dr. Emory Ross of New York, now head of the lepers' mission, reported at yesterday's meeting that during the thirty-three years since its founding the mission has aided in the maintenance of 200 leper colonies in forty-eight countries. The American mission coöperates with a similar British society.

MILK INDUSTRY HUNTS SOLUTION TO ITS PROBLEMS

Union labor leaders and representatives of the large dairy companies in Chicago have been holding discussions for several weeks, it was learned yesterday. They hope to find a solution to the ills of the milk industry.

They wish to avoid the chaos that has seized the milk market in New York since a federal-state price dictatorship was declared illegal in February. They also are anxious to prevent drastic action like that taken Friday by the state milk board of Wisconsin, which ordered a cut to 10 cents a quart for Milwaukee's retail milk [the old price was 12 cents] and reduced the farm price from 5.9 cents to 4.56 cents.

Seek Formula for Industry.

One of the representatives of the large dairies here is Dr. Raleigh W. Stone, a University of Chicago economist. He has made a survey of the whole Chicago marketing situation. He emphasized yesterday that he was speaking only for himself and that his talks with the labor leaders, including Robert G. Fitchie and Ray Bryant of the Milk Wagon Drivers' union, had been factual.

"We are not bargaining with the drivers' union for a cut in pay," he said. "We are not trying to chisel. We are really trying to find a formula for the industry that will be satisfactory to farmers, workers and dealers alike.

"At present they are all dissatisfied. The farmers feel that they are not getting enough for their fluid milk. The workers have seen a third of their membership thrown out of jobs in the last ten years. Nearly all the dealers are losing money.

Growth Slowed Down.

"There is a reason for this unsatisfactory condition. The industry expanded swiftly when the population was growing 100,000 a year. That growth has slowed down. There are fewer small children—the great consumers of fluid milk—in the Chicago area than there were in 1930.

"The answer lies in more efficient distribution that will give the drivers more employment, the farmers a fair deal and the dealers a profit. Consumers also will be better satisfied."

Neither Fitchie nor Bryant would make any statements yesterday. Fitchie said he is hopeful some decision might be reached at the next conference Thursday.

SECOND COMPANY DECIDES TO CUT N. Y. MILK PRICE

New York, March 18.—[Special.]—Sheffield Farms, Inc., and independent distributors decided today to follow the lead of the Borden company in slashing milk prices following collapse of the dictatorial price fixing agreement between distributors and producers.

The Borden and the Sheffield companies are the city's largest handlers of milk, and the slash they have decided on, effective tomorrow, will be the biggest single cut in milk prices here in twenty years. A total saving of $100,000 a day to consumers is expected.

New York now will pay 14½ cents for grade A and 11½ cents for grade B. In Chicago, where the market has been free, grade A, the only type of milk that is permitted, sells for 12 cents.

Italian Foreign Minister Has Audience with Pope

The audience, a formal one, was the first official contact between the new pontiff and a member of the Italian government. The pope also received in separate private audiences Cardinal Leme of Brazil, Bishop James Cassidy of Fall River, Mass., and the Most Rev. DURING the past year almost 100,000 persons in this country were killed by tuberculosis and an even greater number were killed by pneumonia. Perhaps an equal number will be killed this year. A large percentage of these lives can be saved, for medicine has the knowledge and scientific facilities to provide protective measures against them. However, to obtain this protection one must be examined.

Of the thousands of persons who will die of tuberculosis this year, there are many who do not know right now that they have it. For tuberculosis can exist in the body and develop to a dangerous stage without warning. When symptoms are present they are often mistaken for some other ailment. There are many such cases on record to substantiate this.

Tuberculosis usually develops in childhood, although it may appear in the twenties. Infection is usually passed on by others, very frequently by the parents themselves. It is highly infectious during its active stages. Lowered resistance of the body opens the way for attack. Pneumonia is contracted in the same manner. A common cold can lower body resistance; so can wet feet and exposure to sudden changes of temperature; also bad tonsils, infected teeth or other ailments. Men, women and children face these hazards every day. Protection is simple; be examined!

A thorough physical examination, including medical laboratory tests, will determine whether there is any infection in your body; an X-ray picture of your chest will show the condition of your lungs, heart and bronchial tubes. The X-ray picture is very important, as it provides the most positive means of diagnosing early tissue changes in tuberculosis.

Following this examination proper medical supervision and care can be instituted to correct any condition which may have been disclosed—and if the diagnosis has been made early enough, a physical disaster can be prevented.

All of these protective medical services are available at a UNITED MEDICAL SERVICE. This responsible medical organization was founded by one of the country's foremost pioneers in the fight to reduce the high cost of medical and surgical care. There is no other institution like it, nor one that offers greater protection against sickness and untimely death. It has the knowledge and facilities for diagnosing and treating practically every kind of ailment and disease known to medicine.

A competent and experienced staff of specially trained physicians supported by one of the finest X-ray departments in the middle west, a complete medical laboratory and other medical equipment help to make this possible. The costs for all services are as low as is consistent with responsible medical practice.

Obstetrical and Pre-Natal Care

embracing every protective medical service considered by competent authorities as the ideal standard of completeness in this important field of medicine.

The complete service includes a careful history of each case and a thorough and painstaking physical and gynecological examination by competent and experienced physicians.

An examination of the heart and lungs by a trained physician—blood pressure estimation test—an electrocardiogram of the heart's action—a full size X-ray picture of the chest showing the size and shape of the heart and larger blood vessels and the condition of the lungs.

Through the use of the electrocardiograph and the X-ray heart trouble can be detected often when other methods fail and the presence of tuberculosis accurately determined.

An X-ray study of the pelvis by modern methods is also made to supplement external measurements in order to more fully determine its size and other conditions. If and when necessary, these procedures are repeated from time to time during the prenatal period.

An X-ray examination of all the teeth is also made in order to check the possible presence of decayed or abscessed teeth which often occur during pregnancy.

A complete blood examination including serological test for syphilis—also tests for gonorrhea and other infectious diseases are also made. Urinalyses are done routinely and a careful check of conditions of the kidneys recorded on each visit.

The charge for these and the many other protective services provided to each patient during the full term of pregnancy, including delivery, by a specially trained and experienced obstetrician, is $25

(There is a charge of $3.50 for the first preliminary examination.)

THOUGHTS ON NAZIDOM.

Not much perspective goes into the American, or more accurately speaking, the North American, view of European events. In the United States the more articulate citizens, though largely a product of our college education, are preoccupied with the foreground—at least when it is occupied by striking figures and events. In 1914 the educated class pretty generally assumed that the catastrophe began in July and little consideration was given to events that led up to it during the decades preceding. We had had the good fortune to be engaged in the prosperous activities of our own country and in our surprise were ready to accept the more obvious facts and the more recent events as sufficient for our judgment.

The years since 1914 have revealed a good deal to Americans which would have helped them in 1914. The American public knows a little more of European affairs. We know more of its rivalries and aspirations than we dreamed of a generation ago, and it is fortunate that we do, for we are again confronted by events in Europe which challenge our judgment and threaten our welfare. Once again, and to a greater extent, we are flooded with propaganda. Once again we are confronted with forces beyond our control, with actors on the world stage even more astonishing than those of 1914, and with developments more offensive to our ideas and emotions.

In this situation it seems wise to avoid the haste and partiality of judgment which marked our thinking and feeling in 1914. If we were in the main right then, it did not serve us well to be partly wrong, as subsequent developments have shown. It will not serve us well to be unwisely partisan now. It is incumbent on us to see the situation steadily and to see it whole, if we can. A great many of our people are not accomplishing this at this stage. They are as violently partisan now as they were in 1914 and, though this is natural in the circumstances, it is not beneficial to our own country. We are not only being inundated with propaganda from abroad but inflamed to partisanism for political purposes from within. Restraint of judgment is the more difficult that the governments most in need of it least deserve it, and both their political principles and their exercise of power are and must be abhorrent to us.

Nevertheless to fall into a blind hostility is to make ourselves the victim of the interests of their adversaries without regard for our own. Understanding is our only protection.

Let us examine to that end an aspect of the conflict which deserves more consideration than it gets from us because of our dislike for the methods and morals of the Nazi régime. The Nazi foreign policy appears to us in a succession of striking acts of force or of the implication of force. In October, 1933, Germany left the league and the disarmament conference; in March, 1935, it introduced universal conscription and reported the formation of an army of thirty-six divisions, which has since become fifty-two; in March of 1936 it repudiated the Locarno treaty and reoccupied the Rhineland with armed forces; in November of that year it seized control of its rivers; in January of 1937 it withdrew its signatures from the treaty of Versailles and declared it ended; in March, 1938, its army entered Austria, and in September it forced the annexation of the Sudetenland.

The first of last week the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia was completed and Bohemia and Moravia were taken over by the Nazi government.

These are a succession of acts, all exercises of force, actual or implied. Decorated with arrogant and bellicose rhetoric, and accompanied by ruthless persecution, they speak a language which nations that would live in peace cannot hear without indignation and alarm. But also we must try to understand its sources. They are not obscure. It is not sensible to dispose of them as the mere blind violence of ruthless brutes in the possession of great and sudden power. The leaders of Nazi Germany are rulers we cannot admire, but their policy has a background. A British author has said that Germany's foreign policy springs from her belief that the allies broke their promises to disarm after the war and that they wished to encircle Germany while making hypocritical gestures of peace. The allies certainly did not fulfill their promise to proceed to disarm, and Germany, though disarmed, was encircled by armed rivals. We need not go step by step into the proceedings which followed the crushing terms of peace imposed upon Germany once her army and navy were destroyed, or describe again the measures, economic and political, devised to keep her in subjection. No defeated nation in modern times had rougher handling, and if the Nazi tyranny finally sprang from the wreckage of the mild and conciliatory republic, it was a natural offspring of the policies of the victors bent upon preventing the inevitable recovery of German health and strength.

The successive acts of force which mark the foreign policy of the third reich are a series of acts of deliverance. They have been carried beyond deliverance on the rising tide of recovered power and pride and in that lies the danger to Europe and to Germany herself. This tide has carried into authority and the power of vast destruction a régime which ought not to have been born in this twentieth century of civilization. But Nazidom is the tyrant child of tyranny. It is a phenomenon that may not last as long as we fear, but while it exists it is our duty to ourselves to understand it and why it has appeared.

We are being exhorted to take our stand openly beside the democracies of Europe, on behalf of peace and agreement against war and tyranny. They are familiar exhortations and we have acted upon them before. But we shall not accept them blindly as we did before. We went into the great war believing that victory would insure results cherished by our naïve idealism. Our reward was disillusionment. We expected that victory would end autocratic rule in Europe and make the world safe, or safer, at any rate, for democracy. We have been disappointed because our purpose was not shared by our associates. Other purposes were pursued. It is said that we withdrew from the task and ought now to return to it. But why should we rejoin allies which have given us so little reason to repose faith in the purposes we joined with them to advance twenty years ago? We certainly will not join with their rivals. Circumstances may force us to overthrow the same power we fought before. But we shall be foolish indeed if we ever enter upon any such enterprise without other and better assurances against the futility of our former sacrifice.

The forces and ideas which rule in Germany at this moment are and must be abhorrent to Americans. They can expect no complaisance from us. We know they are fundamentally hostile to us and indeed they make that obvious in all our contacts throughout the world. Nevertheless we must try to understand why they have risen to power in such a people as the Germans who have made rich contributions to modern civilization and, we may believe, will in happier times make more. In Nazidom are the seeds of its own destruction. If we believe in our own ideals and principles we must believe that. But the qualities which error and misfortune have submerged in Germany will survive and be restored in due time.

GIVE THE MIDDLE WEST TRANSPORTATION EQUALITY.

In an address before the Green Bay, Wis., Trafic club on March 14, Lachlan Macleay, président of the Mississippi Valley association, quoted some alarming statistics. In the twenty-year period from 1910 to 1930 the total population gain of the United States was 33½ per cent. He pointed out that during this period counties within the so-called "deep water rim" of the country, representing only 7 per cent of the land area and lying within fifty miles of the seacoast, gained 61 per cent in population, or approximately twice the normal gain of the entire country. In 1935 he said this small coastal area produced 62 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods. During the same period our midcontinent area, lying beyond the deep water rim and including over 41 per cent of the total land of the country, gained but 24 per cent in population, or 11½ per cent below the normal gain of the country as a whole. In 1935 this inland repository of tremendous natural resources produced only 23 per cent of the manufactures of the country.

The cause of this retrogression of the middle west can be laid directly to developments following the building of the Panama canal, to the cost of which we contributed substantially.

Prior to the digging of this artificial waterway the middle west had a natural geographical advantage in reaching the Pacific coast with its manufactured products. Even after the construction of the canal the railroads made freight rates to and from the Pacific coast which allowed the middle west to continue to compete with the Atlantic seaboard for this business. The Esch-Cummins act of 1920 sponsored by two middle westerners effectively put a stop to this by its enactment of the long and short haul clause of the fourth section of the act.

The most of the decline in population and manufactures of the middle west and their increase in the coastal area dates from the passage of this legislation in 1920.

"Give the Middle West Transportation Equality" has been our No. 1 plank for the middle west since July 3, 1938. It does not contemplate the dangerous practice of making freight rates by legislative enactment. We believe, rather, that we should make every legitimate effort to obtain relief from the discrimination caused by the construction of the Panama canal. A step in this direction was taken when, on March 1, 1938, an act was passed to revise the canal tolls so as to plug the technical, legal loophole which theretofore permitted a substantial volume of trafic to move between the two coasts without paying a transit charge. This, in addition to slightly increased charges, affords a small measure of relief from the discrimination suffered by the middle west. Further increases in tolls would assist in removing the artificial discrimination. Fullest development and utilization of the Illinois and Mississippi waterways would also help, but the maximum annual average diversion of water from Lake Michigan of fifteen hundred cubic feet per second ordered by the Taft decision leaves us with a slack water canal, filled with disease breeding, partially treated sewage, which will be a serious handicap to the most complete use of these outlets. The Parsons bill, still pending in congress, which would permit an increase in the diversion to five thousand second feet, would do much to remove this disadvantage. The failure of the Pettengill bill to pass at the last session of congress was another severe blow to the interests of this isolated inland section of the country. It would have permitted the railways to return to their former practice of offering competitive freight rates from the middle west in competition with boat lines operating to the Pacific coast through the Panama canal. The senators from the deep water rim of the country, in coöperation with those representing the so-called intermountain states, whose combined population is little more than that of Cook county, were successful in preventing its passage because our representatives throughout the Mississippi valley were not all alive to the best interests of their own section of the country.

POLITICS AND THE WAR REFERENDUM.

It may be useless, but it is not irrelevant, to suggest to Secretary Hull that the best way to stop the proposed constitutional amendment requiring a referendum for a declaration of war would be for him and other administration supporters to stop rattling the saber and attempting to create a war scare. Mr. Roosevelt has been trying to stir up international trouble for some time and his aids and supporters have filled the air with exaggerated alarms and irresponsible provocations to governments and nations with which we are at peace and so far as the American people in general are concerned want to remain at peace. The obvious purpose of the inflammation, in spite of the high moral cover they are given, is political advantage and unscrupulous ambition. This is realized by a large body of citizens who fear that such tactics will end by involving us in unnecessary and unjustifiable war. Hence the movement for the referendum, by which these citizens hope to protect the nation from such a catastrophe. As soon as the New Dealers bring themselves to put the nation's safety and welfare above their party's and their own advantage this movement will fade out.

GERMANY TAKES WHAT IT WANTS.

Back of Hitler and his armed might is an economic fact. It is as dynamic as he and the Nazi army. A man less malevolent and less purposeful, more approachable by human appeal, and more imaginative to other people's sufferings, might find that fact irresistible. Germany has two things which when combined will be dangerous to other people. It has both strength and unsatisfied desires. It is martial, has a powerful caste naturally inclined to regard war as noble, and it lacks many material things required for a satisfactory life and by a sense of national importance.

Even if Herr Hitler were not the strange psychopathic case he is, with what amounts to a magnetism for the most emotional of his subjects, he might even then be leading this aggressive movement against peoples to obtain not only the territory which will satisfy imperial dreams but the resources to round out German economy. When Hitler said, "We must export or die," he gave the German people a battle cry which they can understand and which would justify the extravagances of his conduct against the weaker neighbors.

"We have to export," said Hitler, "in order to buy foodstuffs and, moreover, as these exports require raw materials, all of which we do not possess, we are forced to export still more in order to assure ourselves of these extra raw materials."

The nations have pursued a policy of trade prohibitions and restrictions until they have closed many doors through which they might satisfy their necessities by peaceful means. Consequently they have opened other doors through which armed forces will emerge to take what they want by force.

For good or bad economic reasons the European system is a colonial and imperial one. The Germans think they were robbed. The Italians think they haven't enough. The great possessing powers illogically say that colonies are not national assets—and never fail to pick up anything that can be pried loose. They say that Germany woud not profit from the restoration of its colonies, but find that it is profitable to retain them.

Europe, with such ideas and in conflicts, is unwell. It is dishonest intellectually. Its morality is hypocritical. Its practices are tricky and deceitful. Its economy is sick. The powerful will take what they can without scruple. Germany is conscious of new power and of old wants. Hitler raves, but he also acts.

Editorial of the Day

A NATIONAL DIVORCE LAW.

[New York Daily News.]

Senator Arthur Capper [R., Kas.], noting a recent News editorial on the Montana-Nevada divorce residence period uproar, has his office force send us copies of some proposed legislation he has introduced in congress.

One of these is a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the federal constitution, to read as follows:

"The congress shall have power to make laws, which shall be uniform throughout the United States, on marriage and divorce, the legitimation of children, and the care and custody of children affected by annulment of marriage or by divorce."

The other of the Capper documents is a detailed national marriage and divorce law which the senator from Kansas would like to have congress enact after the necessary thirty-six states had ratified the enabling amendment quoted above.

To us the whole layout seems extremely interesting and important, and we are grateful to Senator Capper for sending it along.

However, there are some debatable items, we think, in the proposed national marriage and divorce law.

We question, in the first place, whether a uniform national marriage law is anywhere near as desirable as a uniform national divorce law.

A provision in this proposed law lights up the point; namely, a clause forbidding first cousins to marry. There are states where such a law might be wise—states containing a lot of isolated and backward communities where families intermarry to the verge of incest. But there are numerous first cousin marriages among more fortunate people which turn out perfectly all right as regards both themselves and their children.

The best biological opinion is that first cousins can safely marry and have children if neither party has any serious inherited defects. Certainly it proves out that way all the time in animal breeding.

We think that if we're to have a nation-wide marriage law at all ample latitude ought to be left in it for different views and prejudices prevailing in different parts of the country.

Getting around to Senator Capper's proposed nation-wide divorce law, we like it better, though with some exceptions noted below.

Divorce would be granted on any of six grounds "and no other"—adultery, cruel and inhuman treatment, abandonment or failure to provide for a year or more, habitual drunkenness, incurable insanity, conviction of an infamous crime.

Our objection to this part of the Capper proposal is mainly on the point of adultery. The bill seeks to preserve what is to us an incomprehensible fallacy, but a fallacy which is nevertheless in full force and effect in the New York state divorce laws. It would grant divorce for adultery—except when the offense has been committed with the consent, connivance, or condonation of the party seeking the divorce, or when the party seeking the divorce has also been guilty of adultery under such circumstances as would have entitled the opposite party, if innocent, to a decree.

In other words, when one party is guilty, grant a divorce; but when both parties are guilty, force them to go on living, he with his mistress[es] and she with her paramour [s], while remaining legally wed to each other. It doesn't make sense, and it does promote collusive divorces, of which to New York courts unveil hundreds of loud smelling examples every year.

And the bill leaves out the most frequent divorce cause of all, which is plain mutual dislike. That is what leads to most divorces; the fact that the parties dislike each other so much that neither can overlook the other's adultery, cruelty, habitual drunkenness or whatever his or her faults may be.

However, Senator Capper has opened for discussion a most vital question, and we're glad he has. Somehow, some way, we think this country must iron out the conflicts, injustices and indecencies bred by the fact that we have forty-eight different divorce laws.

NOTE—A uniform national divorce law would compel no one to get a divorce. It would be invoked at need only by people whose consciences approve divorce as a remedy for unsuccessful marriage.

A SAFE OLD AGE.

WE CANNOT defy time—at least as far as our mortal bodies are concerned. But we owe to our families and to society the conservation of physical and mental well being until natural old age heralds the tidings that cells are wasting and that our organs are dropping in efficiency. In large measure, however, we can prevent premature changes by observing the relatively simple and common sense rules of health. Not only will we preserve a mass of wisdom which the world can ill afford to lose but we will avoid much suffering.

"For in my youth I never did apply
Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood,
Nor did with unbashful forehead woo
The means of weakness and debility;
Therefore my age is as a lusty winter,
Frosty, but kind . . . ."

As a rule, activity—if not too strenuous—is far more conducive to longevity than a career spent in idleness. We can but sympathize with the one who, with incentive gone, without a purposeful objective, watches the approach of the melancholy shadows. Rather is it given to us to be contented with a program which demands little exertion but which can be grasped with courage. It requires a great deal of farsightedness to decide when the younger men in the firm shall take over the reins—the planning for the future, the formulation of policies.

There are numerous signs of oncoming years. Memory for names becomes less keen. Recent events may not be retained vividly, while those of a generation ago may be recalled with accuracy—perhaps somewhat glorified. This trait no doubt accounts for the flood of doctor books now on the market—"How I did it," "My buggy and my mule," etc. There is a tendency to go back to the past, to think of the noble qualities of the companions of one's youth and the decadence of moral and spiritual virtues among the moderns.

But in the last decade of thousands upon thousands there can come a vast amount of personal satisfaction and a kind of productivity which is of superlative value. Benjamin Franklin reached 84 and—at the age of 75—was one of the peace commissioners subsequent to the revolutionary war. Thomas A. Edison survived to nearly 90 and the output of his genius—for the last twenty years of his rich life—the world could scarcely do without.

The querulous, faultfinding, hateful old man or woman should be pitied rather than despised. The chances are that the symptoms arise as a manifestation of a type of dementia which constitutes one of the tragedies of existence. The body maintains its functions but houses a crumbling mentality. The whole episode is characterized by increasing irritability, a weakening of moral fiber, and the onset of a form of obstinacy which is unreasoning.

I am well aware that the ailments of the elderly have little attraction for the average physician. Their complaints are likely to be chronic, to occur over and over again, and frequently little can be done for relief. On the other hand, a true physician-friend can convert the picture from discomfort to comfort. We cannot replace old arteries with new ones, but it is possible by diet, exercise, massage, and baths to dissipate unfavorable symptoms.

In one of our large clinics, in the entire group of visiting patients who were over 70, the problems were essentially those of circulation and elimination. A surprisingly high percentage were aided materially. This was accomplished neither by whipping up the heart with stimulating drugs nor by reducing the blood pressure with chemicals, but by easing the load on the pumping organ with heat to the skin. Warm to hot baths—remaining immersed for twenty minutes—were followed by a like period of gentle massage and then a rubdown with olive oil. Because of lessened effort, the intake of food should be reduced. Some restriction in water drinking after 4 p. m. is usually helpful, although plenty of fluids are allowed during the balance of the day.

EAR INFECTION.

A. F. writes: I had a streptococcic ear infection. The drum was punctured and I am deaf on that side. Will this defect be permanent?

REPLY.

If the delicate structures within the middle ear—the bones that transmit vibrations—have been destroyed there is little hope for relief. If the difficulty is due to swelling which has not subsided completely, your sound perception will be improved. A skilled ear specialist should be in charge.

ALL TESTS FOR SYPHILIS.

J. L. writes: Are the Klein, Kahn, and Wassermann tests alike?

REPLY.

These tests are all used to determine the presence or absence of syphilis. They are equally reliable, although they differ in the manner of arriving at the answer. The first two are more generally employed. There are several other methods.

SKIN TABS.

J. A. W. writes: What causes skin tabs after an operation for hemorrhoids? Will they disappear eventually or is surgery necessary?

REPLY.

Certain swollen areas may persist. If they give trouble they may be removed painlessly under a local anesthetic.

SEND FOR LEAFLET.

M. T. writes: Are dementia precox and schizophrenia the same? What are the symptoms? Is it curable?

REPLY.

They are. We have a leaflet answering your questions in some detail. This may be obtained by sending a stamped, addressed envelope with request.

SPINE CURVATURE AND PREGNANCY.

H. writes: Would a slight curvature of the spine prevent a normal pregnancy?

REPLY.

If the pelvis has not been affected there is no reason to expect trouble during delivery.

IT LIGHTENS THE HEART'S WORK.

L. D. writes:

1. In a heart attack, why is the patient placed in an oxygen tent?

2. How long must the patient remain under oxygen?

REPLY.

1. To save work on the part of the heart.
2. Until he can breathe easily without it.

THREE DAY VACATIONS.

Winnetka, Ill., March 15.—In a letter printed in the Voice of the People on March 13 Sidney S. David advocates that Decoration day be assigned regularly to the last Monday of May and Thanksgiving day to the last Monday of November, in order to increase the number of Monday holidays and hence the number of three day week-ends.

United States Senator Edwin J. Johnson of Colorado undertook to effect this desirable reform two years ago when he introduced a bill providing for the celebration of all national holidays on the nearest Monday. Presumably it failed of passage not because of opposition [for who would be against it?], but for want of organized support.

Last year provided us with the most week-end holidays possible under the present haphazard system. Decoration day and the Fourth of July fell on a Monday, and Christmas, falling on a Sunday, was celebrated on a Monday. Thus, with Labor day, there were four Monday holidays—which meant four extended week-ends, four baby vacations of three days' duration.

The calendar isn't so accommodating this year. Decoration day and the Fourth of July come on a Tuesday, so that the trip to the woods or the lake cruise which was possible last year will be frustrated by the interposition of a working day.

The celebration of all holidays on the nearest Monday is a simple and supremely sensible solution. Every year will then offer half a dozen three day vacations.

Everybody stands to gain from such an arrangement. Employers should approve it because it will eliminate midweek interruptions by combining holiday closings with normal week-end shutdowns; employés should hail it because it will provide them at frequent intervals with three day vacations, and the transportation services and resorts should welcome it for the increased patronage it will produce.

JOHN FRASER ROOS.

A REPUBLICAN GOVERNMENT.

Madison, Wis., March 10.—More and more we are being reminded that the United States is a democracy, and that our government is democratic in form. Communists of the soviet union, imperialists of England and France, and the Loyalists of Spain are all claiming that their countries are democracies.

Read the constitution of the United States and you will not find any reference to either democracy, or the democratic form of government. However, when you read section 4 of article 4 you will find the following: "The United States shall guarantee to every state in this union a republican form of government. . . ."

Now is a good time to start calling our country and our government what they really are. JOHN E. WATERS.

MONDAY FOR HOLIDAYS.

Chicago, March 13.—Sidney S. David rings the bell when he suggests Monday for holidays in his letter of March 10 in the Voice of the People. The President need only change the date in his proclamation of Thanksgiving and the job is partly done. That should be effective next year, however, because calendars show the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving day this year, but I would suggest the third Monday in November, so as to bring this holiday a week nearer to Labor day and a week further away from Christmas.

B. F. AFFLECK.

THANK YOU, SIR.

Chicago, March 11.—In your editorial of March 6, 1939, "We Point with Pride," you state that the increase of THE TRIBUNE's circulation was gratifying to you. Permit me to state that it was also gratifying to me and millions of Americans who have the welfare of their country at heart. It is gratifying to know that we have a paper which is not afraid to tell the truth when the interests of our beloved country are at stake. MAX SCHMIDL.
President South Shore Lions club.

SHE KNOWS HER CONGRESS.

Chicago, March 11.—In looking back over the years in which I have seen the various measures and bills come up, I now realize how very vague they all were to me. I never really followed them; I merely glanced at the headlines and blindly trusted in congress to do the right thing.

Today I know how much I lost by not studying these measures from the first moment they were mentioned in the newspapers. To study a measure is to form an opinion. And once this opinion is formed we are often impelled to write to our congressman or other congressmen. The congressman receives the letter or card or telegram and thus he finds out what the American people are really thinking. And he acts accordingly.

It may be of help to others like myself to hear how I have pulled myself out of this indifference toward my government. I read the paper every day. I read it on street cars as I go to work. I check with my pencil the articles and editorials bearing on legislation or on European news that concern us all.

When I get home I cut out these articles and re-read them. I either send them away in letters or file them. I find it very helpful to copy off the names of congressmen, their party, and the measures for which they stand. Senator Pat Harrison, for instance, "Democrat, Mississippi. Immediate economy. Grave warning of bankruptcy." I have copied out a good many names of men who are battling for the right down there in Washington and the issues for which they are battling. Just a line to identify them.

Sometimes I write a letter to these men thanking them for their stand. As you see, all this is helping me to understand how the fur is flying down there and to help it fly faster. I am feeling a personal interest in government as I cut out my clippings, make my notes, and re-read every clipping as I would study a lesson.

Try it, friends! It's a grand game. And it will lead you toward a coöperation with your Uncle Sam that you never believed possible. A CHICAGOAN.

INCOHERENT BABBLE.

Chicago, March 11.—The words liberty, freedom of speech, etc. are all incoherent babble and of no importance to the hungry. There is but one vital issue at stake, unemployment. The ways and means of conquering it are mere trifles; the important thing is to do it. Germany has conquered it, thanks to a realist, Mr. Hitler; and although his methods may be a bit unethical he gets results. The American way is to size up the problem from every angle, then to mutter tsk, tsk. Can any one blame the hungry and jobless from idolizing Mr. Hitler? The patented answer to this type of letter is, "Well, why doesn't he go back to Germany." Unfortunately I am an American and without a job to earn money to get there. You people who value ethics above results can rest assured that I and others like me will go there at our first opportunity.

TEDDY AUGUSTYN.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

PROBATE PROCEEDINGS.

Chicago, March 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Mother passed away recently leaving a two flat building and about $500 in cash. My sister and myself are sole heirs.

1. Must we have an attorney to probate this for us if there is a will?

2. If there is no will is it necessary to have an attorney?

3. Is there any way the money in the bank can be used for funeral expenses without going through court?

4. What are the fees charged by an attorney assuming the real estate to be valued at $5,000, there being no personal property other than the cash in the bank? This is entirely in Wisconsin.

When a mortgage falls due and the principal is not paid [5] does the mortgage automatically renew itself if the interest payments continue to be made?

6. This is also a case in Wisconsin.

H. J.

1. Yes, in the sense that probate proceedings would be necessary in order to produce a readily salable title. No, in the sense that you can wait and if you wait long enough and the value is small enough, you might find a purchaser who would waive probate.

2. Ordinarily it is advisable to employ an attorney for probate proceedings. The presence or absence of a will is unimportant in this connection.

3. The bank officials can insist on probate. They are the best source of information as to the terms on which they will waive probate.

4. The actual charge depends largely on the attorney employed. We suggest that you talk the matter over with the attorney of your choice.

5. In general, yes, but Illinois has passed legislation aimed to wipe out old clouds on real estate titles.

6. We suggest that you take up all of your questions in a personal interview with a Wisconsin attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE.

Chicago, March 9.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I invested $2,000 in a first mortgage. There is a small bungalow, and no other mortgages on same. Owner could not pay when it matured.

I foreclosed, and when doing this I found that [2] another man placed $500 on my $2,000 and called it a first mortgage of $2,500. I was not aware of the fact.

3. Is this legal?

4. Can such a thing be done without notifying the holder of the first mortgage? J. P. N.

1. If, at the time your trust deed was recorded, your $2,000 was the only note secured, then no other lien could subsequently come in ahead as security for a subsequent loan.

2. This is inconsistent with your statement above. We assume that what you mean is that you purchased a $2,000 note secured by a split mortgage but that you did not know of the existence of the other note.

3. Depends upon the facts as to misrepresentation and fraud in the sale to you.

4. You state that it has been done, which would seem to be an answer to your question. We suggest that you go over your facts in a personal interview with an attorney. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CUBS' 3 HOMERS BEAT PIRATES, 9-6; SOX LOSE, 13-9

TOBIN SHELLED FOR FIVE RUNS IN FIRST INNING

Marty's Drive Comes with Two On.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 18.—Joe Marty, Steve Mesner and Phil Cavarretta jolted Pittsburgh's first string pitchers today with homers, enough dynamite to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9 to 6.

Marty's big shot was made off Jim Tobin with two on in the Cubs' five run first inning, Mesner led off against Russ Baures with an enormous drive and Cavarretta accounted for the Chicagoans' last two runs when he clipped Bauers in the fifth. The Cubs did not score off Mace Brown, the fellow who threw that pennant homer to Gabby Hartnett in the dark last autumn.

Two of the Cubs' excellent oldsters, Charley Root and Jack Russell, took care of the pitching responsibilities. Each gave up three runs. The attack on Russell included a pinch homer by Maurice Van Robays.

They Play Again Today.

In addition to the champions' home run stroking Stan Hack and Augie Galan contributed doubles for a run off Tobin in the second inning.

The teams will play again tomorrow. Gene Lillard and Roy Harrell, who appear to have won regular employment on Hartnett's staf, have been invited to pitch. Pie Traynor, the Pirate manager, has nominated three of his best boys, Cy Blanton, Rip Sewell and Bill Swift.

Pep Young's gumming-up of a cinch double play ball and some sturdy hitting gave the Chicagoans five runs before the Pirates accomplished their first putout of the afternoon. Hack opened with a single to center, after which Herman bounced a double play setup to Young. Young, however, lobbed the ball over Vaughan's head, Hack reaching third and Herman stopping at first. Galan then lined a single to right, Hack scoring and Herman reaching third. Leiber singled to deep short, Herman scoring. Marty smacked one far over the left field wall, scoring behind Galan and Leiber.

Root Encounters Trouble.

They bruised our Charley a bit in the second. With one out, Young, Handley, and Mueller hit successive singles to produce a run. Tobin then fanned, but L. Waner singled to right, scoring Handley, and when the ball shot between Marty's heels to the screen Mueller also scored and Lloyd reached third. Leiber ended the inning when he made a diving catch of Manush's drive to right center.

Doubles by Hack and Galan gave the Cubs a marker in the second inning, and Mesner, first batter to face Bauers, led off the fourth with a 410 foot homer over the center field screen.

Cavarretta's homer with two out was good for two runs in the fifth, Galan having previously walked.

An error by Herman and a single by Handley gave the Pirates a run against Russell in the sixth, and Van Robays' homer gave the Pittsburghers their fifth run in the seventh. A single by Vaughan, a pass to Suhr, and Handley's sacrifice fly was good for another Pittsburgh run in the eighth.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ontario, Cal., March 18.—William Dietrich—the boys call him Bill for short—didn't do so well today while making his first formal effort to show that life had returned to his right arm. Bespectacled Bill put himself on exhibition after the White Sox had firmly established themselves as winners over the Los Angeles Angels, but in two innings the lad who missed more than half of last season because of his elbow complaint surrendered nine runs. This was more than enough to trim the major leaguers, 13 to 9.

What ailed Dietrich wasn't exactly a scarcity of foolers. He was exceedingly fast, indicating that he wasn't holding back. His speed, however, lacked control and when he eased up in quest of a strike the Angels took their swings. Altogether they amassed nine hits in the last two innings, but the series of sad happenings might have been cut down considerably if Henry Steinbacher hadn't dropped a fly ball and Dietrich hadn't made a bad throw in aiming for a play at second base.

Angels Get to Herring.

Art Herring, rookie from St. Paul, also had some trouble with his assignment. The Angels slapped him for four runs in the first inning, but he took care of himself in the two remaining sessions. The Sox also took care of the handicap by hitting consistently until at the end of their half of the seventh they were leading, 9 to 4. But this was where Dietrich came in as successor to Jess Dobernic who for three innings had held the assorted major league castoffs to one hit.

Although the Sox picked up fourteen hits in their nine rounds of battling none of the members of the cast collected more than two. There also was a scarcity of long hits. Joe Kuhel took careful aim in the fourth while Dutch Leiber was pitching and sent the ball over a distant scoreboard in right field. The only other extra base hits were doubles by Marvin Owen and Larry Rosenthal who got his drive as an aid to a three run surge in the seventh.

Herring Has His Troubles.

Herring's first inning was unprofitable, for the Angels connected with four successive hits after accepting a pass. The pass went to Statz. Stringer beat out a single to deep short and when Appling threw wild Statz went to third and Stringer to second. Rothrock's single to left sent Statz home. Moore singled in the same direction and Stringer scored. Hurst doubled past third, Rothrock and Moore scoring. Herring then put an end to his troubles.

Berry limited the major leaguers to one hit, a double by Owen, in the first inning, but they collected three singles in the second, thus acquiring two runs. Kreevich led off with a bounding single too tricky for the shortstop to handle. After Kreevich had been forced by Kuhel McNair singled to left. Rensa also singled to left, Kuhel scoring and McNair taking third. McNair scored while Rensa was being forced by Herring. The Sox weren't heard from again until Kuhel welcomed Lieber into action in the fourth by slapping his 360 foot homer over the right field fence.

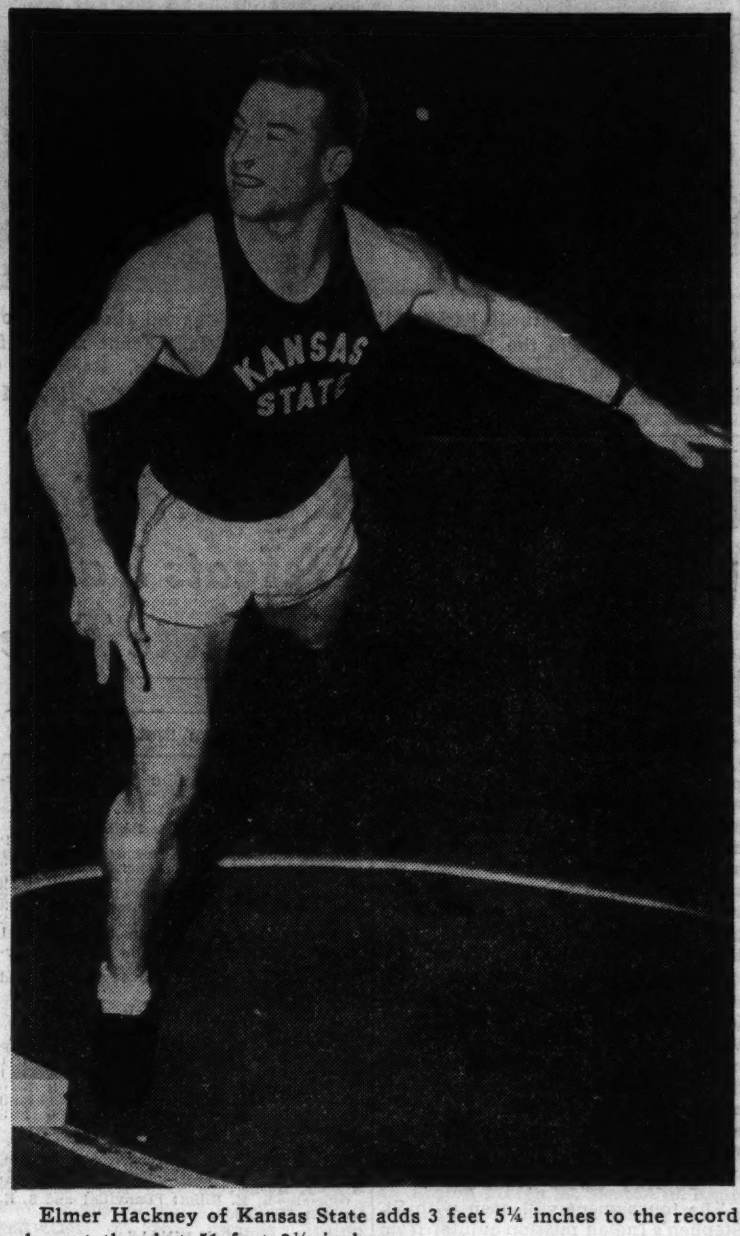
A NIGHT OF STARS AT ARMOUR RELAYS

Walter Mehl, distance star, breaks the tape far ahead of Yarcho of Illinois and Pruski of Marquette as Wisconsin wins the two mile relay at the Armour relays. The winning time was 7:58.3. Illinois was second.



Elmer Hackney of Kansas State adds 3 feet 5¼ inches to the record as he put the shot 51 feet 9¼ inches.

Ed Thistlethwaite of Northwestern goes over the top to set a meet record of 13 feet 11⅛ inches. He added 1¾ inches to the old mark.

Four Records Are Broken in Armour Relays

Four records fell and a fifth mark was equaled in the annual Armour Tech relays last night in the University of Chicago fieldhouse. Thirty midwest colleges and universities competed in the eleventh running of the event.

Michigan State Normal college piled up 56½ points to win the collegiate title from among twenty-one schools in that division. North Central of Naperville, defending champion, was second with 42 and Grinnell placed third with 38.

Other Point Scorers.

Other point scorers in the division follow:

Iowa State Teachers, 15; Coe, 13; Milwaukee Teachers, 11; Western State Teachers, 10; Carleton, 10; Northern Illinois State Teachers, 9 5-6; Wilson Junior, 8½; Cornell, 5; Illinois Normal, 4; Armour, 2 1-3.

No team championship is awarded in the university division, but an unofficial tabulation gave Marquette 56½ points; Wisconsin, 50½; Kansas State, 32; Illinois 25 1-5; Northwestern, 19½; Michigan State, 14; Chicago, 11½, and Nebraska, 6.

Almost before the crowd had assembled Elmer Hackney, compact Kansan who holds the national collegiate shot put title, started the record breaking. Hackney pushed the iron ball 51 feet 9¼ inches, more than three feet farther than the Armour record of 48 feet 4 inches made by Davis of Hillsdale four years ago.

Betters Watson's Effort.

Hackney, whose feats as a full back last autumn won him the soubriquet of "Kansas State's one man gang," broke the record in each of several successive tries. Out of doors he has bettered 54 feet.

His effort last night was an inch better than the new Big Ten mark made by Bill Watson of Michigan a week ago.

Ed Thistlethwaite of Northwestern, son of Glenn Thistlethwaite, former Purple football coach, cleared 13 feet 11⅛ inches in the pole vault, breaking the one year old mark made by Milt Padway of Wisconsin. Padway competed last night in the Butler re-

Ohio State Five Wins, 53-36, to Enter U.S. Final

Philadelphia, Pa., March 18.—[U.P.]—Ohio State, Western conference champion, tonight smothered Villanova, 53-36, to win the eastern division of the National Collegiate Athletic association basketball tournament.

Capt. Jim Hull led Ohio State to victory by scoring 28 points for a new individual tournament record. He broke the one day old mark of 25 points his teammate, Dick Baker, set as the Big Ten champions routed Wake Forest in the semi-finals last night.

Villanova, regarded as one of the outstanding teams in the east and victor over Brown in the semi-finals, was no match for the Buckeyes. The victory permitted Ohio State to qualify for the national championship finals against the western finalist at Northwestern university on March 27.

The western qualifier will be determined in a two day tournament between Utah State, Texas, Oregon, and Oklahoma beginning Monday in San Francisco.

Ohio State's offense rolled up points with machine like precision from the opening tip off. One of the important factors in giving it a 25 to 10 half time lead was Villanova's inability to make free throws.

Hull was on his way to a remarkable scoring record when he injured his ankle with eight minutes to play.

New York Counts on Native Sons in Bouts with Chicago

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Thirty-three amateur boxers, including the eight champions crowned last Tuesday night in Madison Square Garden, now are in training in the east preparatory to invading Chicago for the twelfth intercity matches between New York and Chicago which will be held in the Stadium March 29. That Coach Arthur Thomas of the New York team, which hasn't whipped the Chicago Golden Glovers since 1934, is intensely in earnest in his search for the boys who can win from the westerners is best indicated by the number of boxers on his squad who participated in the early rounds of the New York tournament.

The eight New York champions will fight, but Coach Thomas has evidently taken many from New York's own tournament in the belief they can be developed for the secondary positions in the intercity matches. Two boys in each weight will fight for each city.

23 New Yorkers on Team.

Twenty-three of the 33 boxers on the New York team are from New York. This is in contrast with the fact that New York won only three of the eight championships in the Tournament of Champions completed last Tuesday night. For that matter, with the exception of the two champions from Philadelphia and Ennis Johnson, the lightweight champion from Richmond, Va., Coach Thomas has gone no farther than across the Hudson to Newark and Jersey City, or up the river to Newburgh. Statistically New York is bringing a New York team to Chicago except for the vital help expected from Philadelphia.

New York's squad will leave Manhattan Friday, arriving in Chicago the next morning. The boys will train daily thereafter in two rings in the Medinah club of Chicago. The personnel of the New York Golden Gloves squad follows, the first name listed in each eight classes being that of the champion:

Have Five Bantamweights.

New York's determination to win this year is best proved in the fact that five are now listed in the bantamweight class. The champion is Bill Speary of Philadelphia, who twice has won intercity bouts from Chicago and who has held National A. A. U. titles for the last two years. Certainly Coach Thomas can not improve on this selection to fight rugged Chester Ellis of Kansas City, the Chicago champion. Four others are seeking the alternate position on the New York team including Ed Forsner, champion in New York's own tournament and who was forced to quit in his Tournament of Champions match with Speary because of a cut on his head.

If the New York team has a weakness, and we've not given up hope for the Chicago boys by any means, it may be in the secondary group. Admittedly New York will be strongest in the championship flight in the Champaign, Ill., March 18.—[Special.]—Rockford's fast breaking basketball team outraced Paris, 53 to 44, to win the Illinois high school championship here tonight. It was a reckless, free scoring game in which a new modern scoring record for championship games was set. Back in 1911, a Rockford team notched sixty points in winning a title from Mount Carroll, which made only 15 points.

The championship was Rockford's third. In 1911, the Rabs defeated Mount Carroll and in 1919, Springfield was defeated, 39 to 20. Rockford teams finished second in 1921 to Marion and in 1923 to Villa Grove. They placed third in 1922.

Third place in the tournament went to Wood River, which scored a 34 to 28 victory over Centralia.

Stanley Stasica paced the Rabs, just as he had in earlier games. It was his last game for Rockford, and he had been on the team which came here last year, only to lose out in the first game.

Stasica Is Spark Plug.

Stasica accounted for 14 Rockford points with six baskets and two free throws. But, more than that, he directed his team's field play.

Stasica was not the only star for the champions, though. Robert Wallin handled the rebounding under both baskets while marking up four baskets and five free throws.

Paris fought a desperate uphill battle all the way. Its two hot shots, Floyd Henson and Ralph Hooker, marked up 15 points each.

Rockford ended its championship season with a record of twenty-three victories and two defeats. Only La Salle-Peru and Elgin won from the Rabs, but both also suffered defeats from them.

Rockford Tournament Record.

Rockford opened its championship tournament drive by eliminating Canton, 50 to 24. Ziegler was the quarter-final victim, 47 to 34, while Wood River lost out in the semi-finals, 43 to 27.

Coach Ernest Eveland's Paris Tigers were the fifth he had brought to the tournament.

Carbondale and Clinton, Ind., were the only other teams to defeat Paris this season.

Paris did win one honor, however, as Floyd Henson, forward, accumulated 60 points to be high scorer of the tournament. His teammate, Ralph Hooker, made 56 points, one more than Rockford's Stasica.

Attendance fell below last year's record. The turnstiles clicked but 44,934 times this year, due to the new plan of ticket distribution. Rockford was crowned champion as 6,961 looked on.

Centralia Presses Paris.

Last half sharpshooting by Henson and Hooker of Paris sent Centralia out of the tournament in the afternoon semi-final round, 39 to 30. Centralia led after a seesaw first half, 14 to 13. Then the two Paris shot makers went to work and built up a nine point advantage, Henson making four goals during the rally. This display didn't discourage Centralia, which drew up to 25 to 20 at the end of the third period.

The downstaters crept up further as the final quarter started on a field goal and a free throw. With the score 27 to 24, Hooker dropped in a long one and his teammate, Burton, scored to clinch the game. Henson scored twenty-two points in all, while Eddleman, Centralia's star, was held to five points.

Rockford encountered difficulty solving the Wood River defense and had only a 9 to 8 lead at the end of the first quarter of the other semi-final game. The Rockford ace, Stasica, was well covered, but countered by doing some fancy passing to his teammates and the lead grew to 23 to 14 at the end of the half. It was stretched to 34-21 at the close of the third period and to 43 to 27 at the finish. Stasica was held to nine points and increased his tournament total to 47 points.

Dehner Given Trophy.

Between halves of the Centralia-Woodriver game, Lewis [Pick] Dehner was presented the Ralf Woods trophy for the University of Illinois basketball player with the highest percentage of successful free throws over a season's play. The Woods trophy was named in honor of an Illinois

Wagner Runs 440 in :49.4.

In the quarter mile run Orville Wagner of North Central college, Naperville, Ill., ran the distance in the fast time of :49.4, despite the fact that he was competing in the supposedly weaker collegiate division. His performance broke the Armour mark of :50 flat set in 1936 by Sunny Heg of Northwestern. His time also equaled the best effort of the Big Ten meet last week.

The fourth record was set by the two mile relay team from Michigan Normal, which covered the distance in 8:06.5, chipping one and four-tenths seconds from the mark set by Illinois State Normal in 1934.

Walter Shelton, Marquette sprinter, tied the 70 yard dash record of :07.1, first made in 1933 by Johnson of Illinois State Normal and later equaled by Herman of Carleton and Grieve of Illinois. Milt Kauffman of Wisconsin also equaled the mark in a preliminary.

CARNERA COMING BACK TO AMERICA AS A MOVIE ACTOR

ROME, March 18.—[U. P.]—Primo Carnera, former heavyweight champion, is planning a trip to the United States, but not to fight. He is going to Hollywood to crash the movies.

"I'm through with the ring," said Primo clutching the hand of his bride. "No more trading punches for me. Besides, today's fighters are a bunch of hams, there isn't a one who really can be called a champion."

Carnera has just completed one Italian movie and is under contract to appear in four more, but he said when they were completed "I'm going to Hollywood where I have been invited to make pictures by several big American companies."

JACKSONVILLE TO BE SITE OF RYDER CUP TOURNAMENT

Sarasota, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—The Professional Golfers association, through its president, George Jacobus, today announced the Ponte Vedra Golf club at Jacksonville, Fla., had been selected as the site of this year's Ryder cup matches.

The dates for the British-United States competition have not been set, but will be some time in November. Jacobus pointed out the topography of the Ponte Vedra seaside course is similar to English courses and should be favorable to the Britsh team.

The United States team, captained by Walter Hagen, will defend the cup, as the result of beating the British in 1937 at Southport for the first victory of either team on foreign soil. Hagen also was captain of the 1937 team.

Sox Beaten by Angels, 13-9; Dietrich Fails

for a 5 to 4 lead. Radcliff launched this assault by singling down the first base line. He sprinted to second on Owen's infield out and traveled over the plate on Steinbacher's single to right. Steinbacher went to third on Appling's single to right and home on Kreevich's sacrifice fly to Rothrock. Kuhel concluded the inning with a tap to Stockman. The Sox increased their edge by one run in the sixth on McNair's second single into left field and a single to right by Dobernic.

Stefani showed up for work in the seventh and was promptly hammered by nine batters, three of whom scored. Three were left on the bases. With one out Steinbacher walked and Appling singled. They sprinted home on Rosenthal's double to right center. Kuhel singled off Hurst's shin and the bases were filled on a pass to Bejma. Tresh walloped a sacrifice fly to center and Rosenthal scored. Thompson, who batted for Dobernic, refilled the bases by getting a pass, but the full house faded when Radcliff lofted to Moore.

Angels Come Back.

By the time Dietrich got through the seventh inning the Angels had the tying run on third base. Stefani started the disturbance with a double. Successive singles bounced off the bats of Hargraves, Stringer, and Rothrock. This much accounted for two runs. Moore forced Rothrock, Hurst fanned, and the inning should have ended on Cihocki's long fly to right. Steinbacher, however, dropped the ball, Stringer and Moore scoring. Stockman then scratched a hit to short but Sueme tapped to Dietrich.

The misery showered on Dietrich in the decisive eighth began with Stefani's grounder which took a trick hop over Appling for a single. On Hargrave's bunt Dietrich tried to force Stefani at second but the throw pulled Appling off the bag. Stringer sacrificed and Rothrock was treated to an intentional pass. Novikoff drove all three home by tripling to center. Hurst walked and Cihocki doubled, Novikoff scoring, but Hurst being cut down at the plate. The five run splurge was completed when Cihocki scored on Stockman's single.

Meet San Diego Today.

Except for about three hours the Sox will use up tomorrow's daylight and a few hours of darkness on a round trip bus ride between their Pasadena camp and San Diego, where they'll play an exhibition game with the Coast league Padres. For this affair Manager Dykes will give three inning pitching turns to Jack Knott, Thornton [Lefty] Lee, and Clint Brown and will start most of his regulars in the other positions.

The Sox will have another session in their air conditioned bus on Monday, this jaunt being to San Bernardino, where Pittsburgh's Pirates have been training to recover from the severe case of pennant dropsy they experienced last September. The present pitching plans for this argument call for three inning turns by the venerable Ted Lyons, John Rigney, and Vic Frasier.

HUTCHINSON JUST ANOTHER PITCHER AS DETROIT LOSES

Orlando, Fla., March 18.—[U P]—Fred Hutchinson, the Tigers' $50,000 rookie pitcher, made an unimpressive major league debut today as the Senators scored a 4 to 3 victory over Detroit.

Hutchinson, pitching the first five innings, yielded seven of the Senators' eleven hits, and two of their runs. He was in trouble in every inning but the third. The chunky right hander walked only one batter but his curve and the few fast balls he threw were far from baffling.

Overshadowing Hutchinson was Roberto Ortiz, giant Cuban rookie of the Senators who was facing a big league batting order for the first time. Pitching the last three innings, Ortiz held the Tigers hitless with his blazing fast ball. He scored the tying run in the seventh inning when he led off with a triple against Harry Eisenstadt and scored the winning run in the ninth.

The signing took place in the offices of the New York state athletic commission. Day agreed to scale 138 pounds or more for the welter fight. STAHL-HARBERT TURN IN ANOTHER UPSET, GAIN FINAL

St. Augustine, Fla., March 18.—(AP)—Marvin Stahl and Chick Harbert knocked off another favorite today and advanced into the finals of the national amateur-professional best ball golf tournament.

The Lansing, Mich., pro and Battle Creek, Mich., amateur whipped Ralph Guldahl, the national open champion, and Morton Bright of Daytona Beach, Fla., 2 and 1, and will play Denny Shute of West Newton, Mass., and Bill Stark of Jacksonville, Fla., for the title. Shute and Stark defeated Jack Grout of Hershey, Pa., and Maynard Ramsey of Tampa, Fla., 4 and 3.

Play 36 Hole Final.

Tomorrow's final, like the matches today, is at 36 holes. A $1,000 check awaits the pro member of the winning team and the losing professional will collect $500. Guldahl and Grout received $200 each.

Since they won the medal Wednesday with a 17 under par 127 for 36 holes, Stahl and Harbert have advanced steadily at the expense of favored opponents. In the first two rounds they disposed of the 1938 winners—Frank Moore and Bobby Dunkelberger—and the 1937 victors, Henry Picard and Frank Ford.

Stahl's Putt Clinches It.

Stahl ran down a 40 foot putt on the 34th hole today to clinch victory. Harbert's outstanding contribution was a pair of birdies which won the sixth and seventh holes.

Shute had plenty of help from his husky amateur partner, Stark, who chipped in from 40 feet for an eagle three on the 26th. Ramsey came to the aid of Grout, also, particularly when he erased the two down morning round deficit by winning the 21st and 22d holes with birdies, but they couldn't withstand the steady play of their opponents.

CarnegieHears Kern Will Quit as Head Coach

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 18.—(AP)—The Sun-Telegraph said tonight Carnegie Tech's entrance into the football turmoil which has engulfed Pitt and Duquesne within the last two weeks and cost them their head coaches would result in resignation of Bill Kern, former Pitt tackle and Tech coach, at the end of next season.

"Kern's resignation now is almost certain with the question of material —which in the final analysis was the real reason why Dr. Jock Sutherland quit Pitt two weeks ago—coming to a boil," the newspaper reported.

"Members of the Tech sophomore and freshmen groups of scholarship players, disgruntled because they have been forced to go to work to help defray expenses, are talking of striking. A protest meeting was held Friday and there are indications that the players won't report when Kern calls spring practice a week from Monday."

Alumni Change Aim.

The Sun-Telegraph said Kern hesitated about signing his contract for the coming season and insisted it be for one year only, adding:

"He feared the inroads on his squad with the collapse of the so-called Doherty plan, which had brought about a renaissance in Tech football during Bill's two years as head coach."

The Doherty plan called for financial sponsorship of Tech football by the alumni, but the Sun-Telegraph said there was little response to a call for aid. Instead of raising enough money to bring in a few freshmen players next year officials of the fund drive are hoping they can raise enough to keep the present players in school, reported the newspaper.

Grades Cause Trouble, Too.

"Tech's football future is taking a knockout blow, not only because of financial conditions," added the Sun-Telegraph, "but also because of stiff scholastic requirements that have been set up.

"One varsity player has been dismissed since the beginning of the second semester. Two freshmen prospects have been dropped because they couldn't keep up in their grades. At least ten other varsity men are on the probationary list and may not be able to practice when spring drills get under way."

STAGG'S ELEVEN GETS 1940 DATE AT NOTRE DAME

Coach A. A. Stagg's College of Pacific team, which was originally scheduled for 1941, will open the 1940 schedule here Oct. 5. Arizona, originally scheduled for 1940, will open the 1941 campaign here Sept. 27.

Layden also announced the indefinite postponement of spring football drills which were scheduled to start Monday. Last night's heavy snow made the delay necessary. Snow plows partially cleared the field today.

NEW YORK RELIES ON NEW YORKERS AGAINST CHICAGO

first three weights, 112 pounds, 118 pounds, and 126 pounds, and also in the lightweight and heavyweight classes. John Forte, Speary, and Ray Robinson form a trio of agile, speedy, and hard punching champions who will give an excellent account in any arena. And it must not be forgotten that while Chicago whipped New York 9 to 7 last year, Chicago lost the first four bouts.

Buddy Moore Can Hit.

Too much, perhaps, has been written already about Buddy Moore, although we could wish for nothing better than have him face Tony Novak thinking he had an easy task ahead. At just about that time Novak probably would blast the New York champion out of the ring. But Moore can hit and in a three round fight a puncher always can come from behind and win with one blow. Scotty Sylvano, Chicago's 1931 lightweight champion, won an intercity title in just that fashion.

Henry Jones, New York's light heavyweight champion, is another puncher. Henry's idea of the shortest distance between the start and finish of a blow is a hook, for he throws round house punches with both hands. But this sepia Tony Galento can deal out trouble and also stand up under fire. He literally swarms over an opponent, punching incessantly. No opponent in New York either had the power or could find the bullseye to stop this miniature hurricane. Jimmy Reeves of Cleveland, Chicago's 175 pound champion, may be just the lad to stop Jones.

Unable to Leave School.

It is an accepted fact that Chicago will have a well conditioned team. The major absentee from the list originally chosen by the coaching staf is Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati, the middleweight champion. Charles is only 17 years old and was unable to gain permission to leave his high school classes. Last year Chicago also lost the services of its middleweight champion when Cornelius Young of the C. Y. O. was unable to compete because of injury.

A strenuous week is ahead of the Chicago boxers, for by next Sunday the coaches, Johnny Behr, Paddy Kane, and Fred Caserio, will have brought their charges to near peak condition prior to easing up before the bouts.

Although Chicago has won six times in the intercity rivalry and lost only three times [two were tied], Chicago leads only by twelve bouts in the total fought in eleven years. Chicago has won ninety-four bouts and lost eighty-two. Only by beating Chicago 14 to 2 this year could New York even the count. And that's an impossibility.

Ancona Carries Wallop and Chicago's Featherweight Hopes

BY HOWARD BARRY.

"It will take a mighty good fighter to win that featherweight championship," Golden Gloves fans used to say when they watched the Chicago preliminaries. They said it again when they saw the Tournament of Champions. Out of the finals came a vindication of their prediction in the person of Tony Ancona, aggressive, hard-hitting Detroit youngster.

Now Tony is working every day with Chicago's Golden Gloves squad in the Illinois Athletic club. He's getting ready for another tough assignment in the Stadium a week from Wednesday, when Chicago meets New York in the annual intercity Golden Gloves matches. Against his eastern opponent he'll throw the punches that carried him through one of the greatest tests in amateur boxing. After Ancona's performance in the recent Chicago tournament his followers are confident no New Yorker will be able to stop him.

"If He Can, So Can I."

Three years ago one of Tony's friends went to the finals of Detroit's Golden Gloves eliminations. This gave Tony the idea that he might be able to do something in that line himself so he took up boxing with the C. Y. O. in his home town. He was quick to learn. After mastering the novice field, he went into open division fighting, taking the C. Y. O. title last year and coming out on top in this year's Detroit Golden Gloves eliminations.

The toughest going of all confronted him when he came up to Chicago for Joe Dupont, Homer Williams and other strong fighters also were battling for the featherweight title. Dupont eliminated Williams in the semi-finals, while Ancona was putting out William Parson of Danville. Then came a terrific slugging match—the Ancona-Dupont final. This bout had the whole crowd cheering, for both boys are popular fighters. A knockdown in the third round assured Ancona of the decision.

Only Beaten Six Times.

Tony has had approximately fifty fights in his career, and has lost only six. He never has been knocked out. In the Tournament of Champions, and the finals he fought six times, winning twice by knockouts, and four times by decisions. He said Eddie O'Connell of the C. Y. O. gave him his hardest fight. This was in the quarter-final.

Tony, who is eighteen years old, has lived in Detroit all his life. His parents were born in Italy. He was graduated from high school last January, and now works for a Detroit auto parts company.

While in high school he won three letters in track as a member of the cross country team.

FLY FISHERS GET EARLY PRACTICE WITH BLUEGILLS

BY BOB BECKER.

Central states fishermen are unable to close their eyes and ears to the many signs of spring and seasonal activities on the various fishing fronts. Already hundreds of fly fishermen are hustling to northern Illinois waters to use long, whippy rods and flies on the crappies and bluegills. Anglers catch these panfish during the spring run and when schools are moving and have a lot of fun with both wet and dry flies. Fishermen who want to learn the fly fishing game will find this early spring angling practice invaluable. There always are willing instructors around the fishing spots to help a beginner.

Another sign of early spring is the appearance of the steelheads on the sandy flats at the southern end of Lake Michigan.

The professional fishermen north of Chicago report many smelt out in the lake in about thirty-five feet of water. It appears this prolific little fish is increasing in the southern part of Lake Michigan. As one of the commercial fishermen remarked to us a few days ago. "If we only had clean rivers flowing into Lake Michigan so the smelt could ascend them to spawn we'd have a smelt run such as they get around Marinette and Escanaba every spring."

BUDGE, PERRY RENEW FEUD ON STADIUM COURT

Donald Budge of California, world professional tennis champion, will play England's Fred Perry in the Stadium tonight in their seventh encounter since they opened their national tour in New York.

Although Budge has won all six matches on the tour in straight sets from the man who beat him four out of six games in amateur matches, he admitted upon his arrival in Chicago yesterday from Pittsburgh that the Briton is a slow starter and is gradually getting into his stride.

"I expect our match tonight will be the toughest since we started play," Budge said. "But I am confident of another victory."

Perry Looks for Turning Point.

On the other hand, Perry, who is accompanied on the tour by his wife, the former Helen Vinson, movie star, announced that he expected the turning point in the matches to occur in the Stadium.

Perry, interviewed in his suite in the Drake hotel, said he expected to play back to his usual form tonight for the first time since the tour opened.

"From now on," Perry said, "I'm out to subdue Budge completely."

Perry, who is reported handicapped by an injured muscle, said he was instructed by his trainer not to bear down heavily in the early matches.

Sail for England in May.

Budge, Vines, and Perry will sail on the Queen Mary to England in May, where with Bill Tilden they wil ltour Europe in a doubles tournament.

The opening match tonight will be a singles affair between Ben Gorchakoff, west coast champion from Los Angeles, and Walter Senior, Canadian champion. The program will be concluded with a doubles match between Budge and Senior vs. Perry and Gorchakoff.

Last Night's Results.
Toronto, 2; N. Y. Rangers, 1.

The last games of the National Hocky league season will be played on three fronts tonight, after which there is a breathing spell of one day before the Stanley Cup playoffs start.

Tonight the Canadiens engage the Bruins in Boston, the Hawks play their final game in Detroit against the Red Wings, and the Rangers and the Maple Leafs close in New York.

Although the Bruins had the choice of towns in which to open the four of seven game Stanley Cup playoff series, they exercised the right of league champions, choosing to play the first game against the Rangers on New York ice. The Boston-Rangers, Toronto-Americans, and the Montreal-Detroit cup playoffs all open Tuesday.

Other Playoff Dates.

Other dates of the Bruins-Rangers series are New York in Boston Thursday and next Sunday; Boston at the Rangers March 28, and if more than four games are necessary the Rangers in Boston March 30, Boston at Rangers April 1, and Rangers in Boston April 2.

The Toronto-New York Americans and the Detroit-Montreal series are to be decided when one wins two out of three matches. The Maple Leafs-Americans series will start in Toronto. The second game will be played in New York. Should a third game be necessary it will be played in Toronto.

Where the Canadiens-Red Wings series will start depends on the outcome of tonight's Hawks-Wings and Canadiens-Bruins contests. Should the Hawks defeat the Wings and Canadiens win in Boston the series will start in Montreal. If Boston triumphs over the Canadiens the series will open in Detroit regardless of the outcome of the Hawks-Wings clash.

Winner Has Choice of Ice.

March 26, 28, and April 1, are the dates set for the two out of three series between the winners of the Toronto-New York Americans and the Detroit-Montreal clashes. The winner of this series will be the opponent of the winner of the Rangers-Boston series in the Stanley Cup finals. In the four out of seven finals the winner of the Rangers-Boston series will have choice of ice for the first game.

TORONTO, 2; RANGERS, 1

TORONTO, Ont., March 18.—(AP)—A second period penalty to Lynn Patrick proved costly to New York Rangers tonight as they dropped a 2 to 1 decision to the Toronto Maple Leafs. Both Toronto goals were scored while the big left winger was serving time for slashing. When Patrick was chased the Rangers held a 1 to 0 lead on the strength of a goal by Neil Colville early in the first period. Murph Chamberlain quickly tied the score on a play with Gord Drillon and Syl Apps. Just as Patrick was stepping back on the ice Doc Romnes scored the winning goal.

This map shows the race course outside the English village of Aintree, near Liverpool, where on Friday 250,000 persons will gather to watch the 100th running of the Grand National steeplechase. Interest in the outcome of the race is widespread because of the millions of tickets sold on it through the Irish hospitals sweepstakes. The course is perhaps the most difficult in the world. The Grand National is run over thirty fences, five of which have figured so importantly in the race's history that they have been named. The field goes twice around the course, taking 16 jumps the first time and 14 the second, omitting the 15th and 16th jumps the last time around in order to make a straight stretch run to the finish line. Favorite in Friday's race is Kilstar, owned by Dorothy Paget, which is quoted at 11 to 2.

England's Grand National Will Be Run 100th Time Friday

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

On the 26th day of February, 1839, a band of English and Irish horsemen gathered their mounts at the starting line of the crude course outside of the English village of Aintree, near Liverpool. Only a few thousand spectators saw that first running of a race which was to make Aintree the capital of world steeplechasing.

Friday, at the same grueling course, an anticipated throng of 250,000 will sit in the stands and group themselves around the Aintree course to watch the centennial running of that 1839 grind, now famous as the Grand National steeplechase, regarded as the most difficult race in equine competition.

By one of those coincidences peculiar to the turf, the winner of the first Grand National was a ten year old brown gelding named Lottery. It is significant that today finds interest in the race at its height because of the millions of tickets on the Grand National sold through the Irish hospitals sweepstakes.

An average of $8,000,000 is paid each year to holders of lucky tickets throughout the world. Prizes of $150,000, $75,000 and $50,000 are awarded to buyers holding tickets on the first three finishers and smaller purses go to the holders of horses who start. Last year Americans collected a total of $4,671,946 from the race, half of that amount going to residents of metropolitan New York. From this, it is easy to discover why thousands of Americans will be up early Friday morning to tune in their radios for the result of the race and why the switchboards of metropolitan newspapers will be flooded with calls.

First, there is the matter of its age. Few races, on the flat or over barriers, can boast of a century's record. Not even the world war could interrupt the continuity of this classic, for it was run three times—in 1916, 1917, and 1918—at Gatwick, in the south of England.

Hazards Are Another Story.

Next in support of the Grand National's genuine greatness is the course over which it is run, a layout which would seem suicidal to the average yoicks-and-tantivy rider. The actual distance of the race is approximately 4 miles 856 yards. In mere yardage, this route would probably hold no terrors for the better type of steeplechase horse. But the hazards that confront every Grand National entrant who would finish—that is another story.

There are thirty fences on the Grand National course. Most of these are numbered, but five have figured so importantly in the race's history that they rate names. They are Becher's Brook, The Canal Turn, Valentine's Brook, The Open Ditch, and The Water Jump. The last named is the longest water barrier at Aintree, spanning 12 feet 3 inches of water.

Most famous of these hazards, of course, is Becher's Brook. It is named for Capt. Becher, the English rider who was up on Conrad in the first running of the race. Conrad, running second from the start to the first jump, gained the lead when the Irish horse, Daxon, halted momentarily at the first fence. From there on Conrad and Capt. Becher held the lead to the sixth jump. There Conrad refused, and Capt. Becher found himself unhorsed and looking at the onrushing field. His only escape was to dive into the brook, about six feet at its deepest, until the field had gone by him. The captain is reported to have regretted later that the iciness of the water was not tempered by whisky.

Battleship Wins at 40 to 1.

The records of the Grand National are studded with a thousand stories, but one of the most stirring of them all was written only last year, when Battleship, a son of Man O' War, won the big race at odds of 40 to 1. Battleship, owned by Mrs. Marion du Pont Scott of Montpelier, Va., was the first American bred and owned horse ever to win the Grand National.

Most famed jocky in Grand National history was George Stevens, who ranks in the minds of English steeplechasing fans with Steve Donoghue of the modern flat. Stevens rode five winners, more than any other rider in the records of the long haul. He won in 1856, 1863, 1864, 1869, and 1870.

The greatest starting field in the Grand National went to the post in 1929, when sixty-six got away and ten finished. The smallest finishing field arrived in 1928. It was composed of Tipperary Tim and the American owned Billy Barton. They were the only two to go all the way, following an accident to Easter Hero, who stuck at the brush of the Canal Turn and then fell back into the ditch, causing a dozen other horses to refuse to continue. Tipperary Tim was a 100 to 1 shot, and with Gregalach, the 1929 winner, shares the honor of being the longest priced winner. The shortest was Huntsman, the 1862 victor who came home at 3 to 1.

Chief interest in Friday's running of the old race attaches to a horse whose parentage is dubious and who was purchased for $1,500. With such a background, it would appear unlikely for a Grand National entry to be the 11 to 2 favorite to win the race, but such is Kilstar, the property of Miss Dorothy Paget. The latter, granddaughter of an American woman and cousin to John Hay and C. V. Whitney, owns Golden Miller, the 1934 winner. Her stable is valued at $3,000,000, yet now she finds herself with a Grand National favorite which cost only $1,500. Kilstar was trained in Ireland by a Swiss dealer and bought by Miss Paget's trainer "on a chance."

MANHATTANS MEET KICKERS IN PEEL CUP PLAY

Sparta Faces Vikings in Half of Double Bill.

BY OFFSIDE.

Hopes of an all-Chicago Western cup final between the Sparta A. B. A. and the Manhattan Brewers Soccer clubs vanished last Sunday when Sparta met defeat in Pittsburgh at the hands of the Morgan Sport club. Fans are now looking forward to a possible meeting of the Manhattans and Sparta in the Peel Cup finals. These teams will oppose the two survivors in the amateur division today in a Peel cup double-header in Sparta stadium, 21st street and Kostner avenue.

The Manhattans meet the Chicago Kickers of the International league in the first game at 1 p. m. The Brewers, present holders of the cup, and who also have gained a place in the western finals for the national cup, have lost the services of their star defender and captain, Wack Henney, who suffered a fractured jaw in the game with the Cleveland Slavias last week. SEC SUPPRESSES CHARGE AGAINST OWN OFFICIAL Involves L. A. Pettit and Victor Emanuel.

BY JOHN FISHER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 18.—The Securities and Exchange commission has "mysteriously" dropped collusion charges against one of its officials, it was learned today. The other person involved is an influential New Deal utilities magnate. The official in the public utilities division of the SEC was tried secretly by the commission last October and November, but the transcript of the hearing and the report of the examining committee have been carefully suppressed.

Robert E. Healy.
Suggests investigation.

The SEC official involved, L. A. Pettit, has been retained and four subordinates in his own department who testified against him have been removed from the scene of friction. Two resigned and the two others were transferred to other divisions.

Fear Public Knowledge.

SEC officials are jittery, lest the facts be made public. William O. Douglas, chairman of the SEC and reportedly the No. 1 candidate for appointment by President Roosevelt to the United States Supreme court, will neither discuss nor comment upon the case, his office reported today. Furthermore, he will say nothing on whether the official has been definitly cleared of the charges against him.

An aid to Douglas said that "the SEC still considers that its laundry is in its own back yard," inferring that it is not a matter of public importance.

The charges involved Pettit, who is assistant to C. Roy Smith, director of the SEC's public utilities division, and Victor Emanuel, New York financier, who is president of the Standard Power and Light corporation, chairman of the Standard Gas and Electric corporation, and president of the Aviation and Transportation corporation, old Cord concern. All are Chicago companies.

Testifies for Pettit.

Emanuel came from New York to testify on behalf of Pettit and opened his remarks by expressing astonishment that he, a good New Dealer, was being questioned in view of his activity in President Roosevelt's 1932 campaign and the vast amount of money he raised. A report to congress on Democratic contributions shows that Emanuel personally gave $8,500 to the cause in 1932. There were three instalments—$1,000 on May 23, $5,000 on Oct. 10, and $2,500 on Oct. 22.

Testimony before the SEC during its investment trust investigation last summer also revealed that Emanuel accomplished through the SEC what he unsuccessfully tried to attain prior to the SEC's creation—control of the Standard Gas and Electric corporation.

Pettit, who was brought into the SEC through Emanuel's influence, was accused of trying to gain favorable action by financial analysts in his department on a petition in 1937 of Northern States Power company of Minnesota, a subsidiary of Standard Gas, for reclassification of its preferred stock, a procedure which would have benefited Emanuel.

Admits Recommendation.

Emanuel admitted that he had recommended Pettit for a job with the SEC when Ward Perrott, who was director of personnel for the SEC when the public utility division was set up in 1935, asked a partner of Emanuel & Co., investment bankers of New York, where he could get some good men for the utility division. Pettit, who had been associated with Emanuel's father, Albert Emanuel, for many years, was recommended and got a job. Perrott later left the SEC to go with Emanuel & Co.

Pettit was assigned first as zone supervisor in New England, but his associates said he showed an increasing interest in affairs of the Standard groups which has no New England properties. He was credited with gradually gaining increased influence in the public utilities division.

In February, 1937, Northern States Power sold to underwriters, including Emanuel, 275,000 shares of $5 cumulative preferred stock, and $75,000,000 of 3½ per cent bonds. Public offering was made by the underwriters. The bonds were sold, but about that time the market for utility preferred stocks weakened. The offering price was cut from $103 a share to $98.50.

Underwriters Are "Stuck."

The underwriters were left with about 100,000 shares on their hands when the company went to the SEC in July, 1937, and asked permission to reclassify the stock to include a provision for conversion into common stock, intended to make the stock more attractive.

The SEC investigation brought out that in August, 1937, while the SEC analysts were considering this petition for reclassification, Pettit approached Robert Kern Williams, one of the analysts under him, and, according to Williams, offered to get him a good job with Emanuel & Co. if he would influence the analyst group favorably on the reclassification.

Williams presented these charges

Staples Near Lowest Level of Depression

Commodity prices declined further within the last week. Many of the leading staples traded on the futures markets maintained only a slim margin over the depression lows in 1932 and 1933. All were far below their high points of recent years.

The price of Rio coffee was only ¼ cent above the record low. At 4.03 cents a pound, it compared with a depression minimum of 3.78 cents.

Cocoa futures sold at 4.49 cents a pound, against 3.13 cents six years ago. Sugar futures brought 1.93 cents a pound, against 1.74 cents the lowest price last year, and 0.52 cents, the depression low.

Basic Metals Decline.

All of the basic metals lost ground during the week. Copper for future delivery sold at 9.4 cents, against a low of 3.75 cents between 1928 and 1937.

Sugar was the only staple to make any significant advance last week. The price was up 0.02 to 0.03 cents a pound on buying stimulated by rumors of possible action on proposed Cuban sugar tarif reductions.

The following table shows the range of cash prices of various staples. It gives yesterday's close, the 1938 high and low, and the range for the years 1928 to 1937.

The declines have proved largely ineffective the efforts of various governments to maintain prices of leading commodities through regulation of production and other means.

NEW ILLINOIS OIL WELL DESCRIBED AS 'BEST OF YEAR'

Centralia, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—Near completion of the Cochran-Blankenship Oak Grove cemetery No. 1 test for oil, hailed as the year's biggest development in Illinois, occupied the attention of oil operators this weekend. The Washington county strike was six miles south of Nashville.

Harry Hubbard, who has an interest in the well, said it was better than any well he had drilled in the Centralia area. The test alone will require four or five offsets and a big drilling campaign is expected.

Four other widely scattered wildcat wells vied for the attention of Illinois operators. The most likely test in this group was the Aylward and Corn well on the Wabash railroad right of way in Shelby county, two miles north of Stewardson. It was shot with nitroglycerin Wednesday and was cleaning out this weekend, to be put on pump by Monday.

Urge Dollar's Value Based on Cost of Living

Support of a plan for establishment of a "market basket dollar" is being sought by a group of economists including Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale university.

Prof. Irving Fisher.

Some of its provisions, as disclosed yesterday in the group's "program for monetary reform" sent Chicagoans, were discussed and discarded in the early days of the New Deal when the "rubber dollar" was in the economic limelight.

The plan involves establishment by congress of a "monetary authority" whose duties would include the creation of "a constant average per capita supply of money," and maintenance of its value by adjustment to factors contributing to the cost of living.

Would Change Bank Practice.

One of its provisions is that banks pledge with the federal reserve system full reserves—dollar for dollar—against funds deposited in checking accounts. This is the medium through which 90 per cent of the nation's business is transacted. The other 10 per cent is represented by currency in actual circulation and was described by one economist recently as "the loose change" of business.

Establishment of the "100 per cent reserve" system would mean that banks could not employ in loans and investments any demand deposits.

According to this group, there is little likelihood of a return to the full gold standard, as advocated by some New Deal critics who have opposed inflationary moves at Washington.

"Even those who advocate some degree of a return toward the former gold standard," their program says, "are now convinced that it must be 'managed' and never again left to work 'automatically.'"

Other Purposes of Plan.

Reminiscent of some of the numerous ideas set forth early in the Roosevelt régime the economists would:

"Keep the dollar equivalent to an ideal 'market basket dollar,' similar to Sweden's market basket krona. This market basket dollar would consist of a representative assortment of consumer goods in the retail markets, thus constituting the reciprocal of an index number of the cost of living."

Regarding the proposal to maintain full reserve behind checking account funds, the Fisher group's program states:

"The chief loose screw in our present American money and banking system is the requirement of only fractional reserves behind demand deposits. Fractional reserves give our thousands of commercial banks the power to increase or decrease the volume of our circulating medium by increasing or decreasing bank loans and investments.

Hold Circulation Haphazard.

"And as each bank exercises this power independently of other banks, and without any centralized control, the resulting changes in the volume of the circulating medium are largely haphazard. This situation is a most important factor in booms and depressions."

A statement accompanying the program as sent to Chicagoans claims support of 140 economists. Other professors included in the Fisher group are Paul H. Douglas of the University of Chicago, Frank D. Graham and Charles R. Whittlesey of Princeton, Earl J. Hamilton of Duke university, and Willford I. King of New York university.

Their program was set forth briefly at Washington several days ago when the group went on record in opposition to an administration move to extend President Roosevelt's power to devalue the dollar further.

"If the money problem is not solved in the near future," the economists warned, "another great depression, as disastrous as that of 1929-1938, is almost sure to overtake us within a few years.

"This seems the more likely as in the absence of monetary reform inflation may be pursued as an escape from the present depression. Or a great inflation may come as a mere consequence of surplus reserves.

"If these disasters should occur our opportunity of even partially solving the depression problem by removing its monetary causes may be lost, and, like France, Germany, and other countries where this opportunity was lost, our country could expect, if not chaos and revolution, at least more and more regulation and regimentation of industry, commerce and labor—practically the end of free enterprise as we have known it in America."

TRIBUNE'S WANT AD SECTION LARGEST IN NEARLY NINE YEARS

Today's issue of THE CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE carries the largest volume of want ads of any edition since April, 1930. Approximately 7,000 individual ads are published in the classified advertising section of twenty pages.

The volume of classified advertising is considered by business statisticians as a reliable barometer of business conditions and prospects.

Last Sunday's edition contained approximately 6,700 want ads, and the increase shown this week embraces virtually all classifications.

Indicating employers are looking for workers in larger numbers, the volume of help wanted ads from March 1 to March 15 increased 20 per cent over the corresponding period of 1938. Gains in other classifications were: Real estate, 10 per cent; rental, 39 per cent, and "business opportunities," 19 per cent.

CATTLE, SHEEP PRICES ADVANCE; HOGS ARE LOWER

New high price levels for the season were established in several classes of cattle and sheep at the Chicago stockyards last week, but all hogs sank to the lowest March levels in five years. The steer top at $13.75 equaled the highest mark in the trade since December, 1937. Top lambs at $9.60 were highest since Nov. 30, and the top old ewe sale at $5.35 was highest since April last year.

The various classes of hogs closed unevenly 15 to 40 cents lower than a week earlier, with heavy stock carrying the most lard showing the sharpest downturn. The average for the week at $7.40 was off 30 cents.

CHICAGO STEEL MILL OUTPUT TO RISE THIS WEEK

Chicago district steel mills scheduled their production starting tomorrow at 54.7 per cent of theoretical ingot capacity, recovering 1.1 points from last week's drop. This was reported yesterday by the Dow-Jones survey.

The gain in output represents a resumption of the upward trend which had been broken last week when the mills scheduled a decline of 2 points from the peak of 55.6 per cent. This week's rate is 2.8 points above that of four weeks ago and compares with 31.8 a year ago.

MEXICO CITY, March 18.—(AP)—President Lazaro Cardenas announced tonight that Mexico "accepts discussion" of the foreign oil industries' plan for settling the year old expropriation controversy. The precise meaning of Cardenas' statement was not clear and there was no elaboration from the president's office or the government press agency.

Gold Supplies of U. S. Lifted to 15 Billions

The United States treasury reported yesterday that the country's supply of monetary gold had passed the 15 billion dollar mark as a result of shipments received from Europe in the last few days. Imports received in the last ten days were estimated at nearly 100 million dollars. Gold has been pouring into the country at an unprecedented rate for the last nine months. The last billion has piled up in a little less than five months.

On Jan. 1, 1938, the United States had approximately 12¾ billion dollars of gold. The supply increased gradually during the first six months of the year, passing the 13 billion mark in July. During that month the critical condition in Europe stimulated tremendously the shipments to the United States.

Movement Continues Heavy.

From July to October a billion dollars of gold was sent to this country. The movement continued in heavy volume after the signing of the Munich peace pact. After passing 14 billions late in October the inflow did not shrink appreciably. Imports have risen sharply in the last few weeks as a result of the new crisis in Europe.

Individuals as well as governments are sending their gold to this country for safekeeping. Since September Holland is reported to have transferred about one-fourth of its recorded gold reserves to New York. Switzerland also has shipped gold to New York and to London.

Some of the gold that has been received has been placed under earmark for foreign account in New York. This is not included in the treasury's holdings.

Holland Sends 225 Millions.

Holland, one of the largest holders of gold, is said to have sent 225 millions to New York in the last six months. The amount sent by Switzerland is not known definitly, but is believed to be substantial. Both countries have long been regarded as the safest refuges for capital in Europe because of their traditionally "neutral" position in international politics.

Germany's gold reserves are small in comparison with those of Holland and Switzerland. Holland holds 995 millions of the metal and Switzerland 699 millions.

Before the acquisition of Austria Germany had 28½ millions of known gold reserves. The absorption of Austria boosted this by about 46 millions. The 100 millions of gold and foreign credits seized in the annexation of Czecho-Slovakia will more than double Germany's gold supply. Even the latest seizure leaves Germany with a relatively small supply, considering her position as a major power.

'PORT OF ENTRY' TRADE BARRIER TO BE STUDIED

The national conference on interstate trade barriers, which meets here April 5, 6, and 7, will give special consideration to the port of entry system effective in eleven states. This system is used to enforce varied and frequently discriminatory state motor vehicle regulations. Legislators from all states, and several governors and other state officials are expected to attend the sessions. They will consider ten types of major trade barriers.

"Although port of entry laws represent a deliberate attempt by states to collect 'just' taxes, enforce motor vehicle codes, and in many cases to protect home enterprises against outside competition, a wide variety of additional trade barrier laws has arisen from the hodge podge of state motor vehicle regulations enacted solely in the interest of public safety," Dr. E. F. Melder, economic adviser, said.

STOCK DECLINE IS EXTENDED BY HEAVY SELLING

All Classes Weaken, Rally Slightly.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 18.—Alarming developments abroad brought steady selling into the stock market today and prices of many issues declined fractions to 3 points. In the last hour a slow recovery lifted quotations above their lowest levels.

Board rooms were crowded with anxious traders, who scanned the bulletins from Europe, and the more jittery ones hastened to lighten their commitments. Sales of 1,007,240 shares were the largest for a Saturday in four months. In the first hour alone 600,000 shares moved.

When the list started to steady volume fell off, and observers said that the undertone of the market was weak. It was believed that covering by shorts who had put out some lines yesterday in advance of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's speech was of much help in rallying the market.

Report British Sell.

The London Stock exchange was closed as usual on Saturday and it was reported that Britons had turned to the New York market and sold heavily at the opening. Numerous blocks of 1,000 and 5,000 shares were sold at quotations substantially lower than those of the preceding close.

Wall street occupied itself solely with European news and developments in other directions were ignored. The news that France and Great Britain acting in concert had presented a protest to the German government declaring the military invasion of Czecho-Slovakia a "complete repudiation of the Munich agreement" did not become known in Wall street until after the close of the market. However, the condemnation of Hitler's action by the United States and Great Britain, the recall of the French and British envoys from Berlin, and reports that the fuehrer would next turn his attention to Rumania were sufficient to increase the concern of the financial district.

All Sections Decline.

Not a section of the list was spared. United States Steel opened two full points lower on a block of 3,000 shares, extended its loss in subsequent trades to 2½, and then firmed slightly to close at 56, off 1¼ points net. Bethlehem started 2⅞ points lower on a block of 6,000 shares and finished with a loss of 2½. Youngstown and Continental each lost more than a point.

The behavior of the steel group was typical of the rest of the market. American Telephone, a target of selling in recent sessions, felt the pressure again today and dropped 3 more points. Du Pont could do not better than come back a fraction above its low mark and closed down 3¾ points.

General Motors gave up only a fraction, but Chrysler was knocked down 2⅝ points. Losses in the farm implement section averaged a bit more than a point. Aviations were no more than fractionally lower.

Johns-Manville lost 2 points in the building section, U. S. Gypsum was hammered down 6¾ points and Masonite lost 2¼. Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward each lost more than a point. Westinghouse was marked down 2½.

EUROPE'S MARKETS CAUTIOUS.

Cautiousness pervaded the markets of Europe yesterday as traders for the most part waited to see where Germany's activities were leading. Only in Amsterdam was there evidence of excitement among stock market operators.

On the bourse their prices were hammered down early, but rallied later to close irregular. The London stock market was closed as usual on Saturday.

CITIES REPORT BUILDING GAIN FOR LAST YEAR

Building construction in 1,790 cities throughout the United States last year increased 3 per cent over the 1937 level to a total of $1,753,194,546, Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins announced yesterday.

New residential building made the best showing, advancing 13.7 per cent to $868,149,175. Nonresidential construction was up only 0.4 per cent to $567,069,225, and additions, alterations and repairs to existing buildings declined 15 per cent to $317,976,146.

The smaller cities made relatively the best showing in comparison with 1937 the report said.

Western Rails Rebel Against National Group

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Middle west and western railroads are rebelling against certain policies of the Association of American Railroads, it was learned yesterday. Several leading railroad men said privately that they approved the sharp criticism which Patrick H. Joyce, president of the Chicago Great Western, made before Representative Lea's interstate commerce committee in Washington on Tuesday. Joyce declared the association's work is futile.

Patrick H. Joyce.

The middle west and western roads believe that the association is dominated in the east and that their interests are not adequately served.

"When we went into the Association of American Railroads we deluded ourselves with the hope that something would be done concerning things about which we had been complaining," Joyce told the house committee. "But it soon became evident that the roads benefiting from these practices are in the saddle and are not going to permit anything to be done to remove their advantages.

Fails To Get Relief.

"The Association of American Railroads has failed to bring about any improvement in the railroad situation. This is probably because the majority of the men who sit on the board of directors and on its executive committee have too many interests that prevent them from acting to straighten out the affairs of the railroads."

The middle western railroads object particularly to the program for railroad relief prepared by the committee of six appointed by President Roosevelt. Many of the principles expressed in the program of the committee of six have been supported by spokesmen for the Association of American Railroads.

Specifically, the western railroads object to the recommendations that a new transportation board be appointed and that a special court be set up to handle the cases of railroads in reorganization.

Oppose Further Expense.

The western railroads declare that the establishment of these bodies will add further expenses to the already overburdened managements and will increase burocratic control over them. Among the roads known to be hostile to these proposals are the Chicago Great Western, North Western, Rock Island, Frisco, M-K-T, and Missouri Pacific.

The grievances of the western roads were to have been discussed at a meeting called by R. V. Fletcher, chairman of the legal section of the association, for last week in Chicago. The meeting was to have discussed proposed railroad legislation, but it was called off after it became apparent that congress was unlikely to do anything about the railroads at this session. However, a meeting of the Western Association of Railway Executives will be held next Friday and Fletcher is expected to attend.

Friction On Other Points.

There are numerous other points besides the proposed transportation board and special railroad bankruptcy court over which friction exists. Among those mentioned by Joyce was that covering the division of freight charges on transcontinental hauls. Joyce said that the middle western roads have been in the wringer between the large eastern and western systems. The Great Western, he declared, gets only 16½ per cent of the transcontinental rate although it hauls freight about 22 per cent of the mileage. And when it comes to paying damage claims it is assessed 21½ per cent of the damage award.

Many roads are in urgent need of relief, he declared, and this should come through control over numerous "objectionable practices within the industry." Joyce wishes the railroads to be granted greater flexibility in making rates. He wants them to be able to raise rates when wages are increased.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS GAIN IN LAST WEEK

An increase in Chicago bank clearings last week was reported yesterday by the Chicago Clearing House association. Clearings were $306,400,000, against $261,200,000 in the preceding week and $280,200,000 in the corresponding period last year. The association's report follows:

INDUSTRY VEERS TO CHILL WINDS ABROAD, IN U. S.

Nazis' Acts, Federal Policy Disturbing.

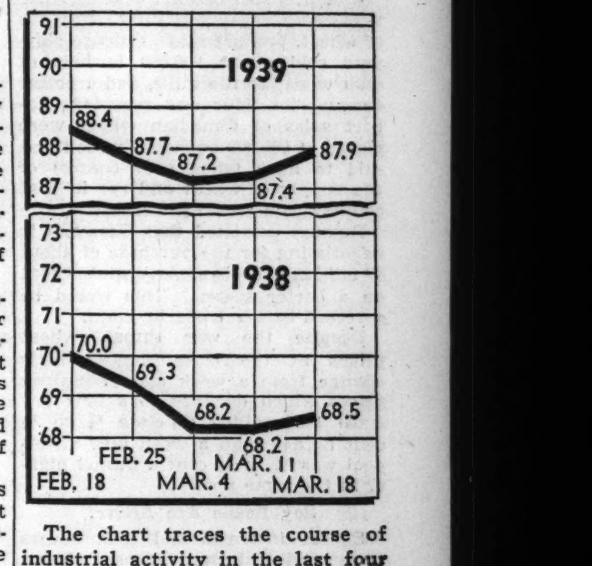
BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Industry in America left an uneven trail last week, but inched upward on the whole while the sensitive markets were reeling from the effects of Germany's seizure of Czecho-Slovakia. Meantime, retail and wholesale trade gained less than expected, and business gave evidence of misgivings concerning the Roosevelt administration's "appeasement" program.

Branches of activity for which latest reports showed increases were automobile and steel production, cotton textile making, engineering construction awards, bank clearings and commercial loans by Chicago and New York banks.

Other Lines Decline.

Freight car loadings, electric power output and new financing declined, but the freight and power totals remained higher than in the corresponding 1938 period. The building of homes and apartments barely held steady.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and shows the corresponding activity a year ago (1929-'30 average equals 100).

Automobile production totaled 86,725 units, against 84,095 in the preceding week, and 57,555 a year ago. The rate of steel output rose slightly to 55.7 per cent of mill capacity, compared with 55.1 per cent in the preceding week, and 32.1 per cent in the corresponding 1938 week.

The steel industry was reported to be disappointed at the hesitant manner in which sales have expanded this month. However, Edward R. Stettinius Jr., chairman of the United States Steel corporation, told stockholders there had been "an improving tendency" in the industry in the first two months of 1939 which was "gratifying."

Heavy Building Awards Rise.

Engineering construction awards gained 27 per cent for the week, but were 9 per cent below a year ago.

Freight loadings by railroads in the week ended March 11 amounted to 591,691 cars, or 7,000 cars less than in the preceding week but 34,961 more than in the 1938 week.

New financing dwindled to $15,585,200, compared with 19 millions a week ago, and also a year earlier.

Unfavorable weather hampered consumer purchases. Retail trade was reported 3 to 7 per cent above the levels of a year ago, but the gain as compared with the preceding week was less than seasonal. A similar trend prevailed in wholesale markets, where orders were 4 to 8 per cent larger than a year ago.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity rose to 87.9 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. A week earlier it was 87.4 per cent and a year ago it was 68.5 per cent. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follows:

	Latest wk.	Pr. wk.	Yr. ago.
Composite index	87.9	87.4	68.5

German Grab Sways Markets.

The most spectacular motivator of market trends was Germany's newest territorial grab, but developments involving Roosevelt administration policy also were an influence.

The bond market was especially sensitive to the latest Hitlerian episode. In New York Czecho-Slovakian obligations went begging for buyers, and prices cracked wide open. Other bonds felt the shock, and stocks weakened also.

THREAT OF WAR CAUSES FLURRY IN WHEAT TRADE

But Market Soon Reacts to Close Steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

Closing prices of the May delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday:

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .68⅛	$ .68	$ .87⅛
Corn	.47½	.47¾	.59⅞
Oats	.28¾	.28¾	.30¼
Rye	.42½	.42¼	.68
Soy beans	.88½	.87¾	1.00¼

War talk caused a flurry in world wheat markets yesterday. A wave of buying swept prices on the Chicago Board of Trade up about 1 cent a bushel during the early trading, but the market reacted later and closed about steady. Commission houses reported more public interest in the market than at any time in more than two months.

Professional speculators, however, were cautious in buying on the bulge, and week-end selling wiped out the larger part of the upturn. Closing trades on wheat futures were unchanged to ⅛ cent higher. Winnipeg was ⅞ to 1⅛ cents higher, and showed a rally of about 3 cents from the low on Friday. Liverpool wheat futures were ⅝ to 1 cent higher.

Concerned About Supplies.

Conditions abroad are causing some uneasiness regarding future supplies of wheat, brokers said. Chicago shippers sold about 200,000 bushels of cash wheat to the mills, and a better demand for flour was reported. Export sales of Canadian wheat were placed at 500,000 bushels. Sweden was said to have taken over control of the supply of wheat and rye in that country as a security measure.

Rumors persisted that Germany is negotiating for the purchase of about 37 million bushels of Argentine wheat on a barter system. This would be a record barter trade in grain.

Despite the war threat, wheat prices at the close showed little change from a week ago. Winnipeg prices which declined to a new low since 1933 rallied to close ¼ to ½ cent higher than a week ago. Liverpool was ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel higher in the same period.

Soy Beans Are Active.

Export interests and cash houses were active buyers of soy beans futures yesterday and the May and July deliveries advanced to new seasonal high prices. Gains were ¾ to 1⅛ cents a bushel. Exports of soy beans from Manchuria are being delayed by the right of way given troop trains on their way to the Manchurian-Siberian border, it was said.

Corn was firm early in sympathy with wheat but reacted to close ⅛ to ¾ cent lower. Oats were unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Shipping sales aggregated 102,000 bushels, the largest single day's business in about eight months.

SEC SUPPRESSES CHARGE AGAINST OWN OFFICIAL

at the SEC investigation, and three other witnesses — Carlile Bolton-Smith, SEC attorney, working on the reclassification; C. R. Martin, senior utilities analyst, and Norman Frees, junior utilities analyst—testified that Pettit had talked in favor of the reclassification to them, but had made no offers.

Since the charges have been hushed, Williams and Martin have resigned. Bolton-Smith was transferred to the SEC's monopoly study, and Frees was transferred to the reorganization division.

Despite the alleged attempts of Pettit to influence favorable action, the petition was denied. In its order of Nov. 8, 1937, the commission said, "We find that the issuance of the security in question is not 'necessary or appropriate to the economical and efficient operation' of the business of the applicant.

Benefits Not Considered.

"These conclusions are reached without deciding whether it would be proper to give any consideration to the benefits which the underwriters might derive from the proposed addition of the conversion privilege and to the close relationship which exists between certain of the principal underwriters and the issuer. The latter circumstance has caused us to be especially careful to determine whether the proposed changes meet the statutory standards."

Williams did not mention the Pettit incident to the commission until last fall when a story came out telling how Emanuel had been placed in the chairmanship of Standard Gas and Electric through the active intervention of Pettit.

It was disclosed that the election of Emanuel to replace Bernard Lynch as chairman was worked out between the SEC and interests in the company. SEC officials said at the time that they looked favorably upon the change as 'Emanuel is a little more progressive, a little more inclined to go along with our views.' Lynch was retained as president, but control was vested in Emanuel and associates.

Mentioned to Healy.

Williams then mentioned the alleged incident of August, 1937, to Commissioner Robert E. Healy, chairman of the public utilities division. He suggested that charges be made and the hearing resulted. The commission appointed an investigating committee consisting of Robert H. O'Brien and Robert E. Kline Jr., assistant counsel, and Francis T. Greene, assistant director of the trading and exchange division. Their report along with the transcript covering approximately 700 pages, was forwarded to the commission, where it died.

Under examination Pettit admitted that he had communicated frequently with Emanuel, but declared that he had not discussed utility matters.

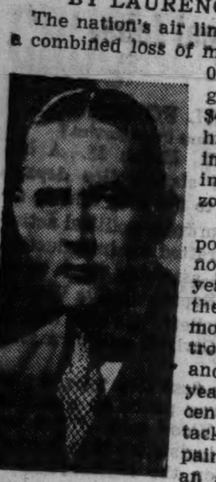
AIR LINES HOPE TO CLIMB INTO PROFIT STRATUM

Lay Plans to Overcome Adverse Factors.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

The nation's air lines, having taken a combined loss of more than $2,000,000 in 1938 on a gross business of $41,000,000, have high hopes of flying their way into the profit zone in 1939.



W. A. Patterson. Wants pay for "service rendered."

The air transport industry was not lagging last year in spite of the fact it lost money. Its main trouble in 1938 and in its earlier years of adolescence was an attack of growing pains. It is still an adolescent business, but there are signs that some of the pains that have resulted from its mushroom expansion can be doctored out of existence this year.

Last year was a year of new records as well as of losses. The air lines carried 1,340,000 passengers, 20 per cent more than in 1937. They flew 15 per cent more passenger miles. They increased revenues from passenger fares by $2,500,000, and from air mail by $1,100,000.

Travel Below Estimates.

One of the chief reasons that the air lines did not wind up with profits was that the use of airplanes by travelers did not pick up as much as company officials had estimated.

The result was that the air lines had to pay the cost of flying many planes that had lots of vacant seats. The number of seat miles for which the lines collected fares was only about 50 per cent of the seat miles available. In 1936 passengers paid for 57 per cent of the seat miles flown, and the results of this greater use of capacity were apparent in earnings reports.

Profits were made in 1936 by all three transcontinental lines, American, United, and TWA, and by Eastern Air Lines and Pan-American Airways, the other two major companies. Last year United lost $997,000 and TWA lost $773,000. Profits were made by the other three lines.

The Solution Has Drawbacks.

To help solve the problem of overcapacity, some of the major companies are now going slow on new equipment purchases. They are concentrating on building up travel to use the capacity of planes they already have.

This policy, however, cannot be strictly followed in many cases. Air transportation is a seasonal business. The number of planes that can comfortably handle all the air travelers that want to go places in January and February on most lines is about 35 per cent less than the number needed to handle passengers in June and July.

So a $100,000 Douglas twenty-one passenger plane that is likely to be obsolete four years after it is built may spend a quiet winter idling toward obsolescence or may be flown in winter months while less than half filled with passengers.

Obsolescence Less Important.

Obsolescence is another reason that the air lines have trouble making money. Planes may not wear out, but they become outmoded in a few years. To provide for this, companies take heavy depreciation charges, which boost their operating costs.

Obsolescence, in the opinion of many air line officials, however, will be somewhat less important in the next five years than it was in the last five.

Passenger revenues, moreover, have shown some tendency to fluctuate less with the seasons. For the first two months of this year passengers paid about 25 per cent more in fares than in the same 1938 period.

The question of mail pay is just as important to the air lines as passenger trafic. Practically all of the lines in the country carry some air mail, and practically all of them think that they should receive more air mail pay from the government than they are now receiving.

Lines Find CAA Reassuring.

For a mail pay adjustment and for help in solving many of their problems, air line officials are looking hopefully to the Civil Aeronautics authority, the new government agency which was authorized by congress last June to supervise the aviation industry.

The CAA has the job of coördinating the air line busines.s It will try to doctor some of the industry's ills. First of all, it is giving the lines an assurance of permanence that they have never had before by granting them franchises, called certificates of convenience and necessity, to operate the routes they have developed.

Next, the CAA is considering the mail pay question. Rates of payment now in effect were established under the air mail act of 1934, and have since been revised in some cases by the interstate commerce commission. The 1934 act set a maximum rate of 40 cents a mile on payments for mail carried, but at the same time required the lines to take all the mail that was ready to go. This has meant that some lines on some trips have had to carry extra mail loads with no additional compensation. Space and load capacity have had to be used for air mail instead of passengers, and the 5.5 cents a mile paid by the average revenue passenger has been lost in many cases.

Limit on Pay Removed.

The 40 cent limitation has been removed under the CAA and proposals for a fair basis for payment are now being studied by the air lines and the CAA.

Last week, the two largest mail carriers, United and American, explained their position on the mail pay question. United in its annual report suggested that it be paid on a pound-mile basis. This would compensate United for the actual "service rendered," W. A. Patterson, president, said.

American Air Lines in a petition last week to the Civil Aeronautics authority, which now has jurisdiction over rates of mail pay, asked that its base rate of pay per mile flown be raised on transcontinental routes to 32 cents. It is now paid 23 cents and on some parts of the route 25 cents. American is asking pay based largely on plane miles, regardless of weight carried in contrast to United's request to the CAA for a pound-mile basis.

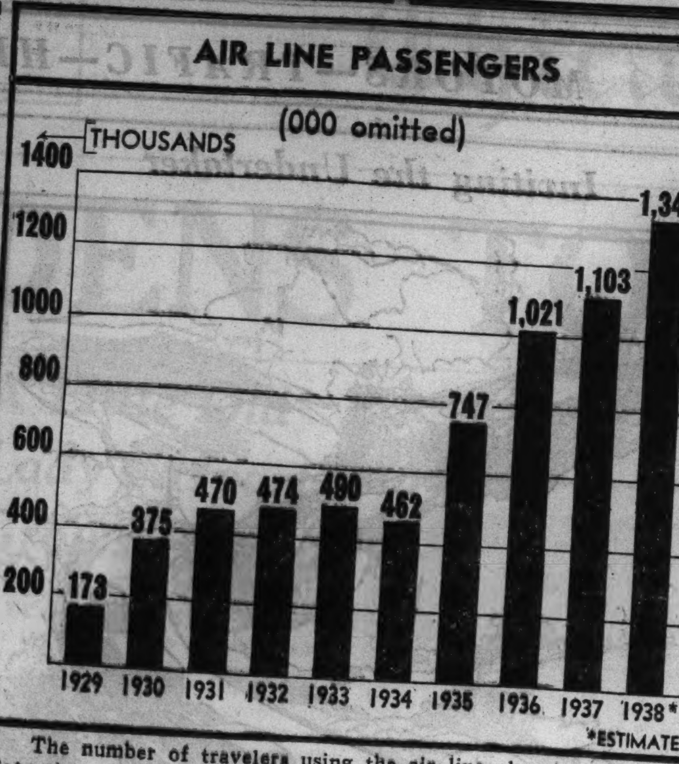
Uncle Sam Gains on It.

United officials grant, however, that pound mile is not practical for small feeder lines. On many feeder lines the volume of mail is so small, they say, that a pound mile rate, which would be fair on transcontinental hops, would bring little revenue to feeder companies.

The postoffice department in the 1938 fiscal year received $15,300,000 in air mail postage. This was the first year that the postoffice took in more than it paid to the air lines for carrying the mail. The excess amounted to about $1,000,000.

Air line officials have estimated that a total boost by the CAA of $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 in annual mail pay is necessary to put the industry in good health.

The CAA has made no mail adjustments yet, and has warned the air lines that it is not going to "function as a sort of governmental Santa Claus. But CAA officials have shown an understanding of the problems of the industry and some increase in mail pay for many of the air lines is expected.



The number of travelers using the air lines has increased by eight times in the last ten years. The stepup in air travel has not however, put most air lines into the money making class, because air transportation has suffered from the ailments of a young industry.

Cotton Problem

Cotton is one of the big economic problems of the United States. The federal government by making available loans of eight cents a pound is underwriting the present market prices. Cotton is moving into consumption so slowly, however, that the prospect is for a further increase in the present cotton supplies.

The United States harvested a smaller than average cotton crop in 1938, totaling twelve million bales. Indications are this cotton will not be used up before the harvest of the 1939 crop begins next August. Part of it will be added to the previously existing surplus which totaled 13½ million bales before the 1938 crop was harvested. The carryover supply is enough to supply all domestic requirements for more than a year.

The slow rate of consumption is due chiefly to a severe decline in exports. Exports dwindled to 2,192,285 bales in the six months ended Jan. 31, 1939, a decline of 42 per cent from the average for the comparable period in the preceding five years. January exports amounted to 290,000 bales, 55 per cent less than in January, 1938.

Because of big supplies available, foreign users are restricting purchases to immediate needs. The market outlook encourages this policy. Cotton for delivery next October is selling a cent a pound less than the price quoted on cotton for immediate delivery. This is the reverse of the normal price situation when contracts for future deliveries command a premium.

SOCIAL SECURITY DRAIN TOO GREAT, INDUSTRY WARNS

Illinois Manufacturers Ask Revision of Act.

The social security act is a drain on Illinois employers and employés which has gone far to impoverish industry, the Illinois Manufacturers' association told congress yesterday. The warning, along with proposals for revision of the act, was contained in a brief filed with the house ways and means committee by David R. Clarke, general counsel for the association.

The manufacturers urged that the old age benefit system be put on a pay-as-you-go basis and that increased tax rates scheduled for 1940 be deferred at least until 1942.

Takes Millions Yearly.

As presently handled, the old age benefit and unemployment compensation provisions "take from the working capital of Illinois employers and from the pay of Illinois employés tens of millions of dollars each year," the brief said.

This money, "taken from impoverished employers and employés under the pretense of building reserves for employés in their old age," actually is used for current expenditure by the government, the association's protest said.

Neither employers nor employés, it asserted, can afford the continuation and the increase of the drains on their working capital and pay envelopes that are contemplated.

Destroys Firms' Operations.

"These levies have resulted, and their increase will further result, in such a drain on many smaller business concerns that their ability to carry on or to extend their operations is destroyed," it argued.

Declaring the levies drain the rapidly diminishing working capital of many companies which provide jobs for thousands, the brief said these companies cannot continue to operate and employ these thousands unless burdens are reduced.

Congress was urged to avoid any increase in benefit schedules which would require larger payments from employers and workers.

INDUSTRY VEERS TO CHILL WINDS ABROAD, AT HOME

Nazis' Acts and Federal Policy Disturbing.

ditional refuge for funds fleeing from war or threats of war, slumped in foreign exchange transactions. German expansion has made Switzerland uneasy, and it became known that Swiss authorities have transferred much of the nation's gold to London and New York. This news weakened the Swiss franc, one of the most stable of European currencies.

While the markets were floundering in an effort to make adjustments to the German developments, American business men tried to interpret the latest Washington clews to administration policy on regulative and tax matters. Two incidents were viewed as casting a chill on the recently publicized appeasement program.

Twice during the week President Roosevelt indicated doubt that any substantial reduction of taxes can be accomplished at this session of congress. Business men consider tax relief to be one of the most important factors in any effort to help industry. Many viewed the President's stand as a serious backing down of the New Deal from its pledge to encourage private enterprise—a pledge implied in good will statements made to business recently by Secretaries Morgenthau and Hopkins.

SEC Action Disturbing.

The second disquieting event involved the Securities and Exchange commission. Investment bankers, exchange leaders and brokers made a proposal that certain federal regulations affecting the flow of new capital into enterprise be eased.

William O. Douglas, chairman of the SEC, rejected the plan with sharp words. The recommendation was a "phoney," he charged. Its supporters, he said, want to go back to the old days of market riggers and manipulators in Wall street. The brokers and exchange leaders said they merely wanted to modify regulations so that "venture" capital would be emboldened to come out of hiding and into productive use.

PRICES OF BONDS TUMBLE AGAIN ON EUROPEAN CRISIS

Week-End Sales Largest in Eighteen Months.

New York, March 18.—[Special.]—Prices in the bond market tumbled again today. Trading volume was the largest for a Saturday in the last year and a half, amounting to $6,157,550, against $5,517,500 the preceding Saturday. Losses ranged as high as 3 points.

The flood of offerings was ascribed mostly to the critical situation in central Europe. Another factor, however, was selling by holders of South American bonds who sought to turn paper profits into cash. Some of these bonds have risen in the last week and a half, since Brazil and the United States agreed on efforts to promote trade.

Government Bonds Lower

For the first time United States government obligations began to show the effects of this week's threatening turn in European affairs. Uneasiness in investment circles over Germany's conquests was sufficient to drag federal treasury issues down as much as 18-32 point in fairly large volume.

Corporation bonds, especially those with low yields, were weak. Issues closing with large losses included International Hydro-Electric 6s, Western Union 5s, American Waterworks 6s, Southern Railway 4s, American and Foreign Power 5s, and Western Union 5s.

Foreign Issues Decline.

Losers in the foreign section included Italian government 7s, Milan 6½s, Czech 8s of 1951, Colombia 6s, Brazil 8s, and French stamped 7½s. German dollar bonds were in plentiful supply, but their losses were not large.

One of the weakest spots in the domestic corporate list was the railroad group. Illinois Central refunding 4s were among the issues in this section which gave ground.

Investors' Guide

BABY BONDS.

"What about government baby bonds?" is a question frequently asked the Investors' Guide.

The question usually comes from investors who have small amounts of money that they don't want to risk losing if they can help it. At the same time they do want more than the 1.5 per cent interest paid by many savings banks or the 2 per cent on a postal savings account. Many of us are in exactly the same boat.

The government began to issue baby or savings bonds four years ago. Nearly a million and a half investors have paid more than two billion dollars for them.

What are these baby bonds? They are, first of all, bonds of the United States government and as such have the highest investment rating among securities.

But they differ in several ways from ordinary government bonds issued by the treasury. Here are the chief differences:

1. They can be issued in small denominations. You can pay from $18.75 to $750 for a baby bond.

2. Interest is not paid regularly, but is all paid at maturity ten years after you buy the bond. In ten years you will receive $25 for an $18.75 bond, $50 for a $37.50 bond, etc. The interest rate you receive at maturity is about 2.9 per cent. If you cash your bond before maturity, however—and you may do so at any time after the first sixty days—your interest return is smaller. This table shows the interest rate if you cash at certain times before maturity [with interest compounded semi-annually, as the banks do].

A $75 BABY BOND.

Cashed after—	Cash recd.	Int. rate.
One year	$76	1.3%
Two years	78	2.0%
Five years	83	2.3%
Eight years	92	2.6%

The table is not complete because the cash-in value actually increases every six months after the first year. The table simply shows the interest return at representative "cashing" dates.

3. Baby bonds are not transferable. You may turn them in to the government, but you cannot sell them to any one else.

4. Because the government is the only buyer and its buying prices are unchanged, baby bonds are not subject to any "market fluctuation," as ordinary government bonds are.

The freedom from price fluctuations means, of course, that you can at any time get back what you paid plus some interest, regardless of the bond market or of the trend of interest rates.

It probably would not be wise to buy baby bonds if you think you may need your invested cash again within a year or so.

On the other hand, if you are planning ahead and know that you will probably need funds ten years hence, but probably not before, you may be interested in looking into baby bonds.

200,000 DRIVERS' LICENSES SENT OUT BY STATE

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 18.—Secretary of State Hughes' office this week mailed 200,000 drivers' licenses. It was the last of an accumulation that caused many complaints of delays in filling applications.

"Hereafter," said John J. Nash, chief clerk of the license bureau, "a driver will be able to get his permit within two weeks after mailing his application if the application is filled out properly."

No Illinois resident will be permitted to drive an automobile in this state after May 1 without his own driver's license.

1,030,000 Licenses Issued.

To date 1,030,000 of these licenses have been issued. It is estimated that there are 2,500,000 drivers in the state.

The secretary's office was not able to handle the driver applications promptly during the rush for automobile plates in December and January. The office was without any appropriation for the drivers' work. The appropriation in the license bill passed last year was declared unconstitutional. The office received an appropriation of $300,000 from this current session of the legislature last month.

Office Is Shorthanded.

With the extra work the office has also been shorthanded in issuing automobile plates. This accounts in part for the additional delay this year in the always tardy enforcement of the automobile license laws. Under the statute, the legal deadline for acquiring 1939 plates was Jan.1.

To date 1,200,000 automobile plates have been issued.

It is estimated that there are still 300,000 Illinois automobiles lacking 1939 plates.

Alton Road Discontinues Illinois Branch Service

Alton, Ill., March 18.—(AP)—The Alton railroad's local freight train between Alton and Springfield, which has been operating since 1852, left today on its last run. Decline of business at way points was given as the reason for discontinuing the service after eighty-seven years.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

NO CONTROVERSY.

Chicago, March 8.—I don't see why there should be any controversy between the advocates of a Congress street parkway and the proponents of a city-wide elevated highway system. They are not talking about the same thing. The attainment of one would not prohibit the attainment of the other. There isn't enough in common between the two plans for there to be any conflict founded on reason.

The Congress street group wants a neighborhood improvement in which there would be an incidental public benefit. There is no doubt that it would be of value to abutting realty and of particular value to those owners of the realty that would be sold to the public for right of way. They can't ask that these benefits be given to them without at least part payment for them. So the special assessment, such as used in other local improvements would be applicable.

On the other hand the public would receive some benefit from the Congress street parkway as a new trafic artery. Therefore it seems to me that there should be no objection to paying a portion of the cost through the gasoline tax revenue.

As for the elevated highway system, I don't see why the Congress street proponents should object to a plan for the construction of rapid and safe motor transportation facilities to serve all sections of the city. The elevateds are not intended as local improvements; they are intended as general improvements. There would be no special benefits and therefore should be no special assessments. Their sole purpose is to service trafic and therefore the entire cost should properly be borne by the gasoline tax levied against motor trafic. P. C. W.

DANGEROUS AND UNLAWFUL.

Chicago, March 2.—Preventing some children from being injured by a car recently has induced me to offer this protest against motorists using alleys in which they have no business.

In our neighborhood on the north side an alley parallels Sheridan road for several blocks which many motorists use in order to evade the trafic signals in Sheridan road. Frequently many of these drivers do not even sound their horn when approaching the street intersection. It does not seem to occur to them that their vision as well as that of the pedestrian is blocked by apartments or other buildings abutting the sidewalk. They dart out of the mouth of the alley without warning endangering any one approaching the alley at the time.

The driver seems to be concerned only in whether the street is clear for him to cross. The practice should be prohibited. P. E. E.

DANGEROUSLY WIDE STREET.

Chicago, Feb. 28.—Will you use your influence to help the children who attend Westcott High school? The crossing at 81st and Vincennes has neither a policeman nor a patrol boy. A number of children have been seriously injured there in the last several months. Vincennes is a wide street and has lately become a veritable speedway. PAUL FUEHLIN.

RIDGE AVENUE BOTTLENECK.

Chicago, March 4.—Parking restriction is needed in Ridge avenue between Clark street and Broadway. With cars parked on both sides of the street, there is room for only one lane of trafic in each direction for this connection between the Outer drive and broad Peterson avenue. S. T. LONSTER.

INCONSISTENT SPEED SIGNS.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Why not investigate some of Chicago's speed traps? All west side boulevards are 25 miles per hour zones. North avenue, Addison, and other streets are 30 mile zones. Why are street cars and trafic on street car lines allowed 30 miles whereas the boulevard is only 25 miles per hour? PEEVED.

FAVORS SLOWER CARS.

Park Ridge, Ill., March 1.—We hear so much about automobile accidents. The only way to remedy this is to have a law passed not allowing any car to be able mechanically to go faster than 45 miles an hour. Police and fire cars would be the only exceptions. M. J. GORDON.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In this section of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE a week ago appeared two charts that were intended to show the rapid increase in automobile operation costs as speeds are stepped up. An artist in preparing the charts for publication transposed two of the numbers, making the erroneous statement that it is cheaper to drive 55 miles an hour than it is to drive 45 miles an hour.

DRAFT A BILL TO PUT STATE POLICE ON MERIT BASIS

Men Would Resign from Political Jobs.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 18.—A bill to increase the state police department from 350 to 500 men and to remove all of them from political activities has been drafted for introduction in the general assembly next week. The author is Representative Warren L. Wood [R., Joliet]. He said that A. B. Lager [D., Carlyle] will be a joint sponsor.

"This is the first step toward placing the highway police on a strictly merit basis," Wood said. "The sole object of this legislation is to improve enforcement on the highways so as to reduce trafic accidents; once the police department is removed from politics, future legislatures can enact more strict qualification requirements for appointment to the force and perhaps inaugurate civil service."

Must Give Up Party Jobs.

Present members of the department, under this bill, would be required to resign from any political party jobs, such as precinct committeemen. They would be barred from any future electioneering. They could devote their full attention to their jobs as policemen.

A police board, serving without salary, would be created. It would consist of four members of the legislature and four policemen. The legislators would consist of a Republican and a Democratic senator and a Republican and a Democratic representative. The policemen themselves would select four fellow police to sit on the board.

This board would pass upon qualifications of appointments. It alone would have authority to discharge a man. The chief of police could suspend, but his suspension would be subject to review by the board.

Register Party Affiliation.

The party affiliation of every member of the department would be registered with the board. Under the plan outlined in the bill, new men would be of the party with less members on the force. Eventually there would be an equal number of Republicans and Democrats in the department.

This provision may block passage of the bill. Jobs in the state police department would be removed from the patronage enjoyed by the governor. Furthermore, the 150 additional jobs to be created by the bill would go to Republicans because the present force is mainly Democratic.

Under the bill, additions to the force would be made from the party having the less number of men on the police pay roll. After the two parties were equally represented in this constabulary, the balance would be maintained as vacancies occurred.

"This is not a move to get some jobs for Republicans," said Wood. "As far as jobs are concerned, Democrats also would benefit from this legislation. It would assure present Democratic policemen that they would not lose their jobs for purely political reasons with the election of a Republican governor."

NEWS AND VIEWS

Dodge's "international good will truck" has arrived in Lima, Peru, its goal, after a long and hard trip that included many miles of perilous roads in southwestern Mexico. Because highway facilities are lacking, the car was transported by steamer from Acapulco, Mexico, to Callao, Peru. Edson Smith, driver of the truck, said that on the 300 mile road from Mexico City to Acapulco he became "height shy" because of the 2,000 foot drops. There were no guard rails. The truck is to bring back a load of Peruvian antiquities to New York. It is scheduled to go through Chicago on the return trip.

Lynn S. Snow of Snow Brothers, 1011 South Boulevard, Oak Park, last week celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary as a Ford dealer. He has been with the Ford organization thirty-three years, having started in the shop of the Ford company's Chicago branch in 1906. He opened his first agency at 4358 Drexel boulevard and has been in Oak Park twenty-two years. Snow's brother, Earl, joined him in 1916.

In one section of Cadillac-La Salle's sixty acre plant in Detroit is a department where instead of building they seek to destroy. That is the department of metallurgy, headed by L. A. Danse. "We use twenty-two kinds of steel and fourteen kinds of rubber in Cadillac-La Salles," Danse said, "and we want to know how each will stand rough treatment. Our job is to determine whether each material will conform to our standards of safety and service. This is accomplished by subjecting samples of each material to destructive forces in the metallurgical laboratory."

Plymouth is adding to its 1939 line the largest car it has ever built. This is a seven passenger de luxe four door touring sedan. Its wheelbase is 134 inches and it measures just over 234 inches from bumper to bumper. It has folding seats and will comfortably carry nine passengers.

Automobile engineers have progressed much faster than road and trafic engineers in developing safety features, C. P. Simpson, general sales manager of Pontiac, declares. He points to the improved steering, lower bodies, better brakes, and greater visibility of the 1939 models as safety developments. For improved highways he suggests wider roads, with separate lanes and fewer curves.

GARDENS TO DEPICT STATE HISTORY

DE PRIEST FACES CRUCIAL BATTLE IN LONG CAREER

Out to Overtake His Council Rival.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

Aldermanic runoff battles last week were in full swing in the three wards on the southwest side where no candidate received a majority of the votes in the Feb. 28 election. The two leaders in each ward are now in a second contest which will be settled at the polls on April 4.

In the 3d ward, former Congressman Oscar DePriest, colored, stands at the crossroads of the comeback trail. Years ago he was a member of the city council. He also served on the county board and as an assistant Illinois commerce commissioner. Then in 1928, he was elected to the national legislature, the first of his race so honored in more than a quarter of a century.

But the Democratic landslide of 1934 carried him out of office and since then he has held only the job of G. O. P. committeeman of his ward. His efforts to regain public office recently failed.

City Hall Backs Rival.

His fortune turned in the aldermanic campaign, however, when he squeezed into the current runoff. His opponent is Deputy Coroner Benjamin A. Grant, the regular Democratic candidate, who led the ticket by a wide margin last month. Ald. Robert R. Jackson, veteran Republican member of the council, was forced out of the race when he ran third.

It is doubtful, according to observers, whether DePriest, nearing 70, will ever have another chance as good as this one. Grant is much younger and is waging an aggressive fight for the 3d ward seat. The latter also has in his favor the support of the strong city hall machine.

The present administration is the main issue. DePriest, asserting that it has denied his people proper benefits, promises to work for them. Grant points to improvements since Mayor Kelly has been in office and promises to see that they are continued.

Grievance Against G. O. P.

It is reported that the Jackson organization has been aroused by the closing of its headquarters by the city G. O. P. central committee. By this action, the central committee failed to recognize the organization's work in behalf of Dwight H. Green, the Republican mayoral candidate, it is claimed. Members of the organization have threatened to withdraw their support from Green in the election.

By choosing one of the aldermanic candidates and uniting behind him, the Jackson organization can make his election a certainty, its spokesmen contend. But if it is forced out of the regular G. O. P. ranks DePriest will face almost certain defeat through the loss of the 4,955 votes which it polled in the primary. This development, upon which the result of the election might hinge, was one being watched with interest by both political camps.

Assistant State's Attorney John S. Boyle is pressing his strong campaign for the 16th ward seat. By a narrow margin he won a place in the runoff against Ald. Terence Moran, regular Democrat. The young state's attorney was one of the few Courtney candidates to survive the first election.

Both Offer Rewards.

Mayor Kelly's record is also the chief issue in this campaign although there are several local questions which have captured the attention of voters in the section of the city. The battle between these two has been one of the bitterest in the city.

There have been charges and countercharges of violence, attempts to intimidate voters and high pressure campaign methods. Boyle offered a reward for the arrest of persons who allegedly tore down his campaign signs; Ald. Moran offered a reward for the conviction of vandals who smashed windows bearing his campaign stickers.

Boyle's platform calls for reducing taxes, improving transportation facilities and removal of politics from the schools. Ald. Moran's platform calls for governmental economy, solution of the traction problem with a pension system for traction company employés a requirement for obtaining a franchise from the city.

Both Claim Labor.

Both men claim the support of labor groups and civic and improvement organizations. Moran, of course, has the backing of the regular Democratic organization with the prospect of additional help from those Courtney supporters who scramble back on the Kelly band wagon. Boyle, because of his close connection with the state's attorney, can hope to retain a large share of these in his organization and he can expect support from the Republicans supporting Green.

Saloons have become one of the major issues in the campaign. It is reported that various civic groups and parent-teacher organizations are unfriendly to the present administration, charging that taverns have remained open after the legal closing hours and have been selling liquor to minors. Boyle is campaigning on a local platform of making the saloon keepers conform to the law. In reply, Ald. Moran said last week:

"I'm not a law enforcing officer.

A Little Old Lady's Heart Grows Too Big

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

In the gloom of a musty, poorly heated rummage shop in Blue Island the embers of a life's work are dying out. Seventy-eight year old Deaconess Mary Patterson, a one woman social center, has only to the end of this month to rekindle them.

Deaconess Mary Patterson.

For 20 years the deaconess has been a familiar figure to the residents of Blue Island. To some she is only a tiny, black robed religieuse who can be seen quietly entering her Thrift shop at 131st street and Western avenue early each morning and leaving it just as unnoticeably at night. To others, the poor of the vicinity, she assumes a larger stature, as would any one who saw to it that there were soles on their shoes, coats on their backs, and smiles on their faces.

An Ideal Nears End.

But Deaconess Patterson can no longer run her Thrift shop as a gift shop for the needy. There is rent to pay, coal to buy for the stove, bills to meet at stores where she has allowed the poor to run up her accounts, and lastly, food and lodging for herself. These items, little as they seem in the scheme of a big ideal, add up to the end of the deaconess' efforts, unless before the end of March the shop is adopted as a community or woman's club project.

The shop stands as an old, time-scarred corner stone of another Chase house which was laid with great fanfare and then forgotten. In 1919, when the deaconess, an energetic little woman, bright eyed with a vocation and a brilliant education, came to Blue Island the St. Aidan Episcopal mission was in its infancy. The congregation worshiped in the old Universalist church. The deaconess had come to teach for the mission. She was a graduate of the University of New York with a master's degree and could also claim a doctorate of pedadogy on the completion of a thesis.

Vision of Social Welfare.

In the basement of the Universalist church there were articles unsold from a former rummage sale which were gathering dust. One day the deaconess undertook to clean the basement. Perhaps it happened when she shook out an old overcoat, but suddenly she glimpsed her appointed mission in Blue Island. Primarily interested in teaching, she did not relish this new task that she now thought had been set before her. The inspiration, however, seemed to offer a thread for the weaving of a great web of social welfare work.

What she envisioned that day centered in a Thrift shop whose funds would be used for a social center. This center would be the hub of a wheel which would encircle and connect the city's social service system, medical institutions, schools, recreation centers, and churches. All the needs of the poor could be completely catalogued at the center and directed to the proper source for correction.

Novelty Wears Out.

Through her enthusiasm the idea caught fire. In July of 1923 an organization was formed to sponsor the Thrift shop. The present store was rented and it became fashionable among the women to be volunteer workers every day. For two years the project flourished and at one time $500 was donated from the treasury to the Blue Island welfare. For several seasons afterward the shop's donations to the welfare ran about $100. Then came the depression.

The novelty of the shop wore off. Helpers no longer came. Wayfarers straggled in, shoeless in the midst of winter, hungry, and many homeless. The deaconess no longer thought of profit. To all who needed them she gave clothes or bought new ones when the shop's stock proved insufficient. She cooked oatmeal and soups over the tiny stove for the hungry and often at night, after she returned to her lodgings, allowed the homeless to sleep in the store.

New Outlook on Needy.

The shop's revenue declined, but the deaconess managed to find dimes for soles to renew old shoes, quarters to buy wool stockings for barelegged children, and nickles for earmuffs to give transients whose beds were the cold boards of a box car.

"You cannot ask for money when it would mean depriving them of an evening meal," she explains patiently to inquirers. "But sometimes," she adds, "there are people who will pay a quarter for a pair of shoes. It's not enough, however, and I can no longer maintain the shop without assistance.

"I can no longer continue to shovel my own coal, be janitress, saleswoman, welfare worker, manager, all in one." Then she smiles, half complimented as a woman would be and half sadly because of the truth of her statement, "My people do not realize that I am an old woman."

Chorus to Sing.

The Philomel Ladies' chorus under the direction of George Rees will be guest artists at a concert of the Beverly Symphony orchestra next Sunday afternoon in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. The public is invited.

Two "Waiters" and a Gossip

When two women wait thirty-five years for sweethearts they are likely to have difficulty finding them. This situation provides the plot for a quaint, old-fashioned drama, "Lavender and Old Lace," to be presented by the Hamilton Park Woman's club for drama day, Tuesday, March 28, in Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard. Enacting the roles of the too patient lovelorn ladies are (left to right) Mrs. Stanley South as the Lavender Lady and Mrs. Robert G. Schram as her neighbor. Mrs. Forest Buel, the village gossip, manages to complicate matters for her friends in the play. Mrs. Buel is drama chairman of the club and James Bradley Griffin is the dramatic coach.

CHURCH TO HOLD 25TH YEAR FETE IN MORGAN PARK

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the Morgan Park Christian church, Homewood and Prospect avenues, will be celebrated today with special services at 9:45 and 3 o'clock.

The congregation was founded on Feb. 8, 1914, in the home of Prof. and Mrs. M. B. Wells, 11252 Oakley avenue, by the Rev. C. G. Kindred, pastor of the Englewood Christian church. The present house of worship was purchased from the Morgan Park Methodist church, remodeled and dedicated on Sept. 18, 1917. The Rev. Homer C. Boblitt is pastor.

Prof. S. M. Spears, superintendent of the church school, will conduct a service at 9:45 o'clock. G. E. Killie, secretary, will read the history of the church. The Rev. Clayton W. Wilson of La Porte, Ind., will deliver the anniversary service at 11 o'clock. An informal meeting will be led by D. L. Davis, chairman of the board, at 3 o'clock. Prof. Wells will be special guest.

CITY-WIDE DRIVE FOR GIRL SCOUTS HAS $50,000 GOAL

Two Rallies Scheduled in South Sector.

The city has been divided into five districts for the first city-wide drive to raise funds for the Girl Scouts of Chicago, April 3 to 17. The goal is $50,000.

Hundreds of volunteers will engage in a personal interview campaign, and proceeds will be used largely for improved leadership and for increased facilities at the camps operated by the Scouts.

Rally meetings, attended by all workers and captains, will officially open the campaign. The southeast district rally will be held at 7:30 o'clock, Wednesday, March 29, in the Grand Crossing fieldhouse, 76th street and Ingleside avenue, and the southwest district session, at 7:30 o'clock, Monday, March 27, in the Ridge Park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. E. F. Elwood, national controler of Girl Scouts, Inc., will come from New York to address these meetings.

Leaders in Areas.

Gilbert S. Johnson, 7112 Greenwood avenue, is chairman of the southeast district, and Charles H. Davis, 10515 Longwood drive, of the southwest area. The city has been divided for more efficient organization and closer coördination of effort.

Mrs. Stanley Gibson will be the campaign chairman, assisted by Mrs. Morton Bassett, and J. C. Vynalek, adviser.

The trend in Girl Scouting has been toward increased training and development of the quality of leadership of the troops of Chicago, rather than an increase in the number of troops, according to Mrs. Gibson. The only organization of new troops has been in communities where the need has been imperative because of over crowding.

Tells of Value.

"Girl Scouting is doing valuable work in supplementing both the home and the school in helping to develop an appreciation of democracy and enabling girls to grow into useful women of the community," she said. "A contribution to Girl Scouting seems a modest premium to pay for citizenship insurance."

Eight hundred students now attending the Holden and the Graham branches of Englewood High school will be transferred to the new school.

GEORGE D. GALE, 24, 1575 East 54th street, last week laid claim to a transcontinental record of some sort. Taking out only one hour for sleep in Amarillo, Tex., he drove from Los Angeles to Chicago in 46 hours and 25 minutes. For his "solo flight" of 2,340 miles he used 113 gallons of gasoline and his total bill for gas, food, bridge tolls, and incidental expenses was $23.11. This was the sixth time that he drove the route and he made the endurance grind just to satisfy his curiosity that it could be done.

ILLINOIS CLUB PLANS DISPLAY ON NAVY PIER

Pioneer Days Are to Be Recalled.

Illinois, despite its modest symbol, the violet, has a history that can be told with dense forests, jutting rocks, verdant valleys and gracious gardens. Women of the Illinois Garden club will bring the whole panorama into view at their annual flower show opening Saturday to continue until April 2 on Navy pier.

With the theme, "Illinois Through the Years," the show will hark back to the days when the Illini Indians traveled the forests and courageous pioneers built stockades for protection. Prim lawns of the early '40's and the sentimental gardens of the civil war period will bloom like delicate Watteau sketches. Modern landscapes will be planted with neat artistry.

The Chicago Flower show, which annually rivals the New York and Philadelphia exhibits, is the only major display in the country that is wholly amateur and managed by clubwomen. It is made up primarily of entries from local garden clubs.

Will Picture History.

The entries this year will reveal the history of Illinois. Visitors to the show will pass through a verdant forest entrance to discover the simple herb gardens of the pioneers, with background of stockade and evidences of such early home industries as candle and soap making.

In 1840 a revival of Greek architecture swept across the country and created a vogue of dignified gardens. A section of the show will recall the period with its quaint ornamentations. Models used for the Greek exhibit were found in Waukegan and along the river towns where the first settlements were made.

As a background for civil war floral fads, a reproduction of Gen. Grant's home in Galena will be shown. A Siberian crabtree, similar to the one still growing in the Grant garden, will be in bloom and an old fashioned beehive will add an authentic touch.

Will Show Aldine Square.

Chicagoans will be taken back to the time of the World's Columbian exposition with a reproduction of Aldine square, now De Sable square, which was once a famous residential area on the south side. It will serve as an elaborate stage setting for fashionable plants of the decade.

"Illinois of Today," showing present day gardens of varying styles, will cover the largest area on Navy pier, while the "Gardens of Tomorrow" will depict the futuristic trend in horticulture.

Enhancing the beauty of the show, exhibits will be entered by the Chicago Park district, the forest preserve of Cook county, the Morton Arboretum and outstanding horticultural societies in the state.

Potted plants and cut flowers will be contributed by the Allied Trade organizations, Growers and Florists, under the direction of George C. Weiland, chairman of the Allied Florists executive committee. The growers each year compete for cash awards given by the Garden Club of Illinois.

Clubs Plan Displays.

Seven south and southwest garden clubs will have prominent displays in the show. To catch the true picture of a civil war time garden, Mrs. Charles F. Pratt and Miss Janet Donkers, co-chairmen of the Thimbles and Thumbs Garden club display, recently made a trip to Galena.

Their exhibit will be a little hill with an outcropping of rocks typical of the district. Galena pottery will sit on the Grant doorstep and foxglove, bleeding hearts, and pink will flood the garden. The bee hive and the Siberian crabtree will also be part of their contribution.

The Beverly Hills Woman's club garden department and the Greater Garden club will share part of "The Present" exhibit. Their gardens will contain a little summer house furnished with modern equipment and flanked with bathouses. Potted plants will be entered by both clubs.

Mrs. Ben E. Buttles, chairman of the Beverly Hills garden department, will be assisted in the arrangements by Mrs. Robert J. Lawrie and Mrs. N. D. Hoyt will be chairman of the Greater Garden club exhibit.

Revive Greek Period.

The Greek revival period will be recalled in exhibits by the Morgan Park Garden club and the Garden Club of South Shore. The carriage entrance of a typical 1840 home, with its hitching post and carriage block, will be made colorful with lilac bushes, yellow roses and honeysuckle vines offered by the South Shore women. The front porch, with its hanging basket of petunias and ivy, its ornate bench and formal garden, will be the Morgan Park contribution.

Co-chairmen of the arrangements for the Garden Club of South Shore are Mrs. Wilbur E. Fribley and Mrs. Fred Gieselman. Mrs. Frederick Julstrom is president of the club. Morgan Park's exhibit is planned by Mrs. Stuart Murdoch and Mrs. Homer Whitcomb, co-chairmen.

The garden department of the Chicago Heights Woman's club will take part of the 1865 section under the direction of Mrs. R. A. Schulze, chairman, and Mrs. Thomas O'Nell, presi-

Out to Overtake Grant in Council Race.

All I can do is ask the aid of the police when such conditions are brought to my attention. In every case where there has been a complaint recently I have investigated. No violations were found in the 16th ward."

Perry Runs Behind.

Ald. Harry E. Perry has a struggle ahead in the 18th ward race to overtake his rival. He is another Courtney candidate, having been representing the state's attorney's home ward in the council for the last six years. Opposing him is Bernard J. O'Hallaren, regularly indorsed Democratic candidate, who ran far ahead of the incumbent in their first encounter.

O'Hallaren resides at 8052 South Wood street and has been active for several years in ward politics. Recently he served as secretary of the ward's Democratic organization. This is his first bid for public office.

He is a lifelong resident of Chicago and has lived in the 18th ward for thirty-two years. Since 1918, he has been employed by the Illinois Central railroad as a lease agent in the real estate department.

Ald. Perry is in the real estate business. He is a war veteran and has served the public as an engineer for the county highway department and as assistant county treasurer. He is running on his record for improvements.

Being spokesman for a powerful anti-administration figure, his task these last few years has not been easy. On one occasion he was forced to complain on the floor of the council over the alleged reluctance of department heads to coöperate with him. Again when the council was considering the 1939 budget, he had to plead for restoration of a sharp cut in the appropriation for the railway terminals committee, of which he is chairman. Residents of the ward are said to have become aroused over his failure to procure the same amount of benefits which, they assert, go to wards represented by administration adherents. O'Hallaren promises to obtain these improvements if he is elected.

Wins Honors

Miss Claire Branit, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Branit, 2331 West 113th place, recently was elected to membership in Alpha Mu Mu, junior music society at Lindenwood college, St. Charles, Mo., where she is also on the honor roll for attaining a high rank in scholarship. A freshman in the college, Miss Branit was graduated from Morgan Park High school in 1937.

DAVID REIMERS TO HEAD SCOUT FUND CAMPAIGN

David H. Reimers, president of the Live Stock National bank, last week accepted reappointment as South West district chairman for the 1939 annual finance drive to be conducted by the Chicago council, Boy Scouts of America. The drive will open Wednesday.

The goal for the district is set at $10,000 and local campaigns will precede loop solicitation. Other districts in the council will seek amounts which when combined are expected to realize $90,000. The South West district, composed of South West Center, Bridgeport, Archer Road, Ridge, Englewood, West End, and Tri Parks communities, will be divided into zones, headed by chairmen.

Mr. Reimers, who is also a member of the district executive committee, served as district head for last year's drive which raised $7,575.

WOMEN TO HEAR TALK ON FLORAL ARRANGEMENTS

Third District Group to Meet Tomorrow.

Tuesday, spring's birthday, will mark the beginning of a season in which flowers will be as fashionable as frocks and gardening will be as important a social item as golf. Preparing for these spring modes, Mrs. C. O. Wright, garden chairman of the 3d district in the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will call a meeting of her department to order at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in Hamilton park fieldhouse, 72d street and Normal boulevard.

Mrs. E. R. Walter.

"Floral Arrangements" will be the subject of a talk by J. Irwin Johnson, horticulturist. Mr. Johnson will point out that knowledge of gardening and the growing of flowers lose their crowning achievements unless there is also an understanding of how to make artistic bouquets and centerpieces.

A one act play and an open discussion on drama will make up a program for a district literature department meeting at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in state headquarters, 30 West Washington street. Mrs. E. R. Walter, chairman, has requested that all drama as well as literature chairmen attend the meeting.

Offer Many Manuscripts.

Forty-two manuscripts have been entered in the short story, drama, poetry, and essay competitions from 13 clubs in the creative contests being sponsored by the literature department. One hundred twenty-eight essays on "Books that I Have Liked Best" were received from 7th and 8th grade school children from 14 schools.

Judges will be members of the faculty from the English department of Woodrow Wilson Junior college: Miss Lucille Gafford, Mrs. Rowena Hicks, and Marvin Laser. Awards will be made to winners at the annual district meeting April 11 in Tinley Park.

"Pneumonia in Children" will be the subject of a radio dialogue broadcast between Mrs. S. C. Kehl, district public health chairman, and Dr. Joseph J. Greengard at 2:45 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on W-G-N.

District Juniors.

The annual meeting of the junior clubwomen in the 3d district will be called to order Tuesday by Miss Helen Stoll, chairman, in Ridge Park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. Reports will be heard from presidents of the 17 junior clubs and 13 junior departmental chairmen. A vice chairman and secretary will be elected for two year terms.

Miss Margaret McLean, drama chairman, will present a silver loving cup to the Beverly Hills Junior Woman's club as winner of the one act play contest. The club's name will be engraved on the cup. Mrs. P. M. Muller Jr., drama chairman of the Beverly Juniors, will be in charge of another performance of the play April 11 at the annual meeting of the district in Tinley Park.

Other clubs prominent in the play contest were the Englewood Juniors, second place; Chicago Heights Junior Woman's club, third place, and Hamilton Park Juniors, honorable mention. Miss Ruth McHenry, Mrs. Edward L. Cornell, and Miss Kathryn M. Geary acted as judges.

The Blue Island and Midlothian Juniors will be hostesses today and Mrs. Thomas Gifford, senior president, will pour tea.

BEAUTIFIED AREA IS GOAL OF NEW WOODLAWN DRIVE

Business Men Ask Aid of School Children.

The campaign for beautification of Woodlawn was advanced last week following announcements by Leo T. Heid, president of the Woodlawn Property Owners' league, and Frank O'Brien, chairman of the East 63d Street council.

John W. Gorby, business manager of the league, will speak in the elementary schools of the section during the next few weeks seeking the coöperation of children in the clean-up campaign the organization will conduct in connection with the city-wide "clean-up, paint-up, light-up," drive, April 17 to 29.

Plan Children's Prizes.

This campaign will culminate in the annual lawn and garden contest sponsored by the Property Owners' league. Efforts of school children will draw more attention this year, and prizes will be awarded to the school with the most entrants and the one with the best entry.

"White Wing" service has been started to keep the 63d street business area free from refuse of all kinds, Mr. O'Brien said. Through the coöperation of Harry Seeberger, 5th ward superintendent, and W. J. Galligan, division superintendent of streets, three men have been assigned to daily duty to keep the streets clean.

Mr. Gorby, who is also executive secretary of the council, has initiated a system of periodical inspection by automobile.

Prepare for Summer.

During his talks at the schools Mr. Gorby will ask the children to see that their own lawns and gardens are raked and prepared for the advent of grass and flowers and that they help their neighbors.

As a part of the preparation for the lawn and garden contest, children will be instructed on the types of plants which can be grown in the soil of the area and will be encouraged to plant not only flowers but vegetables also. SYSTEM MEANS SIMPLY NOTHING TO AMOS, ANDY Careless, Carefree, They Let Others Worry.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Amos and Andy, like taxes, go on forever. It even looked as if they might go on forever on NBC. But last week—after a decade on that network—it was revealed that they are to transfer to CBS, effective April 3.

While no explanation was made as to the reasons for the move one fact remains. Amos and Andy would like to have a vacation in the summer time. On NBC they wouldn't be sure of getting back the same hours, if they vacated them. On CBS that has been assured.

The record of Charlie Correll [Andy] and Freeman Gosden [Amos] is amazing. They are the oldest team continuously on the air since the early days of broadcasting. Starting out as Sam and Henry on W-G-N fourteen years ago, and as Amos and Andy on WMAQ several years later, they have had only one substantial vacation in all that time.

Push Up Their Pay.

While many listeners today never tune them in—or mention their names—they have steadily increased the size of their pay checks. Two years ago they reached stratospheric proportions—comparable to those of the biggest names in Hollywood.

But fame and fortune have not changed them much. They maintain no pretentious offices; they have no writing staf. Louise Summa, their secretary for a decade, is still with them.

They write their stuff just as they did back in their W-G-N days. They stick a piece of carbon paper between two sheets of onion skin paper. Then they sit down and talk about the episode for the day—the same day they are to present it.

Correll Types Scripts.

After they have figured out the plot details they start suggesting lines. Correll may make suggestions for lines that Gosden will ultimately speak on the air, and vice versa. Correll does the typing.

When they have finished each one takes a copy for himself. There are no extras for secretaries, agents, advertising agencies, sponsors or the network. After the broadcast each one shoves his copy in his pocket carelessly. Later one is retrieved for their own files and one goes to Washington for copyright. The only note of system about the whole writing arrangement is that at the top of the script they place the number of the script. Right now their numbering is around 3070.

A Five Foot Shelf.

They have had all their scripts since the beginning bound. They make about a five foot shelf. Lately Charlie and Freeman have taken to looking into the family trees of Amos and Andy, the Kingfish, Henry Van Porter and their other Harlem associates. They have engaged five girls to read all the scripts and find out family details and to trace the careers of the various characters. On many of these details they are rather hazy.

"Sometimes listeners write in asking, "Does Henry Van Porter have any children," said Gosden. "Well, we don't remember. But back in the script we found out that in 1933 we made some mention of his children."

This search into the records is expected to reveal a fantastic story of the loves of Andy through the years.

Just Keep Rolling Along.

Except when their scripts come hard, Correll and Gosden have never contemplated giving up Amos and Andy on the air. But they would like to ease up a little, take longer vacations.

They have made several pictures but haven't cared much about it.

"It's hard for us to make a picture," Gosden explains. "Charlie wears four inches of inner soles in his shoes and stands on a pedestal for shots. And I have to shuffle around in moccasins." [Gosden is the tall one.]

They get a lot of offers, some of them pretty funny.

"A chap in Dallas wrote us lately," said Gosden, "and said he could do Amos and Andy pretty well. He could get a sponsor, too, but the advertiser wouldn't sign until he got our permission to use the names."

Their trip to New York recently gave them a touch of the jitters they have been giving broadcasting technicians, producers and announcers for years. Grover Whalen was to appear with them.

"We got out to the place early," said Gosden. "Twenty minutes before broadcasting time he wasn't there yet. We began sweating blood. Finally he arrived. Only then did we remember that we hadn't been in a studio 20 minutes before broadcast time for years."

Rural School Chorus Gets Assistance Through WLS

To further music education in 10,000 one room rural schools in Illinois, WLS, in coöperation with the University of Illinois and other agencies, is promoting a Rural Schools chorus which will be heard at the State fair this summer. Quiz for Married Folks

Chuck Acree and Peggy Fuller, inquisitors on the W-G-N and Mutual, "We, The Wives Quiz," shoot questions at two members of the studio audience, Eleanor Behrens and Morton Fischel. At the moment nobody is wearing the symbolic dunce cap, which either Chuck or Peggy must don each week, depending on whose side has won in the preceding broadcast. The show is aired from 3 to 3:30 p. m. Sunday afternoons.

GIRL, 15, DEFIES DEATH; REPLACES FATHER ON RADIO

Daughter of Ernie Hare Steps Into Gap.

Short subjects:

Death broke up radio's oldest entertainment team the other day. Ernie Hare of Jones and Hare, the Happiness Boys, died following an operation in New York. Marilyn Hare, his 15 year old daughter, is taking his place on their program on WMCA, New York. Jones and Hare were last heard on the networks on the Community Sing that featured Wendell Hall and Milton Berle. Jones and Hare had been partners for twenty years and were in radio almost since its beginning.

To succeed today an orchestra must be a "triple threat" organization, according to Orrin Tucker, on the air over W-G-N from the Palmer House. You must have a style suitable for dancing, another to please the supper club customers. And still a third specially suited to the whims of radio listeners.

Bert Lytell has become one of radio's long distance commuters. Each Friday he flies out from New York for his drama series on NBC. And then hurries right back to Manhattan, where he serves as an executive the rest of the week for Actors' Equity association.

Mike Pingatore, the crippled banjoist with Paul Whiteman, last week played his 20,000th performance with the band — without ever missing a one. "I've been sick occasionally," he said, "but always on the bandstand—not in bed." Pingatore says he was with the band before Whiteman. The day it met for its first rehersal twenty-two years ago he arrived ahead of the boss.

That colored chap of the movies, Eddie Anderson, is Jack Benny's dusky radio servant, Rochester. The name belongs to Jack and he is reserving it exclusively for radio.

'CURTAIN TIME' TO OFFER 'ONE ON A HONEYMOON'

Curtain Time will present "One on a Honeymoon," a three act comedy, by Carl A. Buss which lampoons the foibles of Hollywood, on W-G-N and the Mutual network, from 9:00 to 9:30 p m. Friday.

Bill Bouchey will play the part of Mark Winters, a tired and none too happy movie idol who marries his housemaid to escape breach of promise suits and the hare-brained stunts of press agents. Joan Winters takes the rôle of the maid, whom the actor sends off to Europe on a honeymoon by herself. What happens when she returns changes the plans of quite a few persons including those of the screen hero.

"One on a Honeymoon" will be presented in the audience studio of W-G-N under the direction of Blair Walliser.

MISS RICKMAN, EARLE WILKIE ON 'NORTHERNERS'

The Northerners will feature the singing of Bernice Rickman and Earle Wilkie in a special arrangement of the season's hit tune, "Deep Purple," at 9:30 p. m. Tuesday, on W-G-N.

Wilkie will lead the octet in the spiritual, "Water Boy." The octet also will do Victor Herbert's "Dagger Dance," "Sweet Muchacha," and De Rose's "Deep Purple."

Miss Rickman's solo will be "The Wind's in the South Today," by Scott. Other numbers will include music from two famous musical comedies: Friml's "Anina," and De Koven's "The Fencing Master."

Phantom

Lulu Belle, singing comedienne of the WLS National Barn Dance, holding a cat that has inhabited the Eighth Street theater ever since the show opened there in 1932. This is said to be the first time any one has been able to pick up this aloof mouser. The Barn Dance has played to full houses ever since this act invaded the theater; hence it is regarded as a lucky omen.

ALL-STAR CAST CHORAL GROUP TO PRESENT 'FAUST'

The presentation of "Faust" in streamlined form on W-G-N-Mutual has been advanced from Monday, April 24, to Monday, April 17, Director Henry Weber has announced. The broadcast will run from 9:30 to 10:30 p. m.

Ruth Bishop to Be Soloist with Musical Steelmakers

Ruth Bishop, a young soprano, will headline the W-G-N-Mutual network's Musical Steelmakers program to be heard from 4 to 4:30 p. m. today. Ruth will sing "Romance." Another Wheeling Steel employé will show off his musical talents. He is Louis Steenrod from the shipping form department. Louis will sing "Old Folks."

'MINISTRY OF PRAYER' TO BE MIDDAY SUBJECT

"Religion's Ministry of Prayer" is to be the topic for the W-G-N Midday Service program this week. The Midday Service, directed by Dr. John L. Dickson, is aired daily except Sunday at 12:35 p. m. over W-G-N. Speakers will be:

OBOLER DRAMA SERIES TO OPEN NEXT SATURDAY

A new series of plays to be written and directed by Arch Oboler will be presented on NBC at 9 p. m. Saturday, starting March 25. Oboler will organize a company of actors to be used in all the presentations. Unlike the Lights Out series, which he wrote for several years, Oboler will not concentrate on thrillers in this program. He will plunge into the broader scope of the fantastic, and of the imagination.

'Cyrano de Bergerac' to Be Given on Great Play Hour

One of the great masterpieces in the field of theatrical literature will be presented on the Great Plays series when Edmond Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac" is heard over WENR at noon today. PUSH CAMPAIGN TO RESTORE CITY COURT BRANCH

Say Mayor Kelly Could Solve Problem.

Continuing the campaign to obtain the restoration of complete jurisdiction to the 2d district branch Municipal court, the special committee representing more than 100 civic, religious, and improvement organizations has sent a letter to Mayor Kelly requesting immediate action. Bernard M. Finnigan, president of the South Chicago Bar association, heads the committee.

Mayor Kelly promised a delegation coöperation several weeks ago during a conference, but as yet no steps have been taken. All that is necessary, Mr. Finnigan contends, is that Mayor Kelly tell Police Commissioner James Allman to instruct his police captains to send all cases of the area to the 2d district court instead of to the specialized courts.

This restoration fight has been intensified with the approach of the mayoralty election, and observers point out that the response of Mayor Kelly may determine the swing of a considerable number of votes. Dwight H. Green has promised reëstablishment of the court jurisdiction immediately if he is elected.

Installed in 1906.

The branch court was installed in 1906 for the convenience of south side people in civil, criminal, or misdemeanor cases. Under the practice act of 1931, however, the majority of cases arising in all parts of the city are assigned to the specialized courts in the city hall, police headquarters, or the Criminal court building.

The curtailment of jurisdiction followed an order by Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby, according to Alfred O'Connor, another member of the bar association and one of the leaders in the campaign.

Judge Sonsteby is said to have ignored appeals of the proponents for the reëstablishment of jurisdiction. They claim, however, that Mayor Kelly's order to Mr. Allman is all that is necessary.

The chief objection to the present arrangement is that thousands of persons are forced to travel many miles to the specialized courts each year. The trips not only cause great inconvenience, but also take away money which would be spent in the South Chicago business districts, Mr. Finnigan said.

Would Increase Hearings.

At present the South Chicago court handles not more than 100 cases a week, but if it had complete jurisdiction about 1,000 would be tried there.

One of the reasons set forth for the handling of felony cases by the felony court, 26th street and California avenue, is the facilitation in obtaining indictments if the accused are held over to the grand jury which meets in the same building.

SIGNS OF SPRING CALL FOR GAYER BATHROOM TONES

New Fixtures Designed for Efficiency.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Smart bathrooms this spring, newly achieved in some already built home or freshly equipped and decorated in some all new home are as gay and lively in their colors as they are efficient and well planned in their equipment and layout.

If you are anxious to do some small or large thing for your bathroom this spring, or plan to build a new home and want the newest in ideas for your bath and shower, you will find that model bathrooms on display at plumbing showrooms are spots where you can glean ideas without end on where bathrooms are going this spring, and what "they are doing."

You'll find that fixtures are as colorful and exotic as the colors in a tulip bed. There are fixtures in matched sets, with the color, the lines of the tub, the lavatory and the closet, as well as the fittings designed to give a smart ensemble effect to the room.

New Handy Devices.

Numerous new small devices are here to add to the comfort of a family. We can see a tiny outlet for the electric razor or curling iron built into the side of the medicine cabinet . . . combination recessed soap dish and grab bar . . . shower curtains that slide back and forth on a concealed track without benefit of bar . . . flat top tank covers, with a raised groove around the edge, to prevent toilet articles, conveniently placed on the closet tank cover, from slipping off . . . and not so new, but increasingly popular, and seen on all sides,—those tubular side lights which may be integral with the modern medicine cabinet, or attached to the wall separately.

Owners of bathrooms which seem a bit bulky and too large, like owners of large kitchens, need not bewail the fact: there are so many things to do for them.

In Three Compartments.

For instance, in one exhibit, a bathroom has its space divided into three sections. In one section there is a modern cabinet lavatory, and opposite it a dressing table set against a wide glass panel. In this section there is also ample space for storing bathroom towels and supplies.

In the central section there is a little booth for the water closet. The cleverly arranged switch turns the light on when the door is closed and turns it off when it is open.

In the other section are the bathtub, shower, dental lavatory and another large lavatory. The shower is in its own compartment, and has a glass sprayshield door.

And a hint for summer that's ahead. This same shower room is equipped with a finespray body shower which makes it possible to take a shower bath without the slightest danger of getting the hair wet. Then, too, perfect control of the temperature of the water is made possible by the modern thermostatic shower valve used.

Fixtures for Small Spaces.

Bathroom fixtures are now being manufactured which make it easier to fit them into small spaces. Manufacturers have realized how it was often difficult in the past in building and remodeling, and have been turning their attention to offering a variety in sizes in plumbing fixtures as well as a wide choice in beauty of color and line.

Many homes have large bathrooms and in modernizing these rooms it is not difficult to follow a modern trend to plan a bath which is in its arrangement, a triple purpose room.

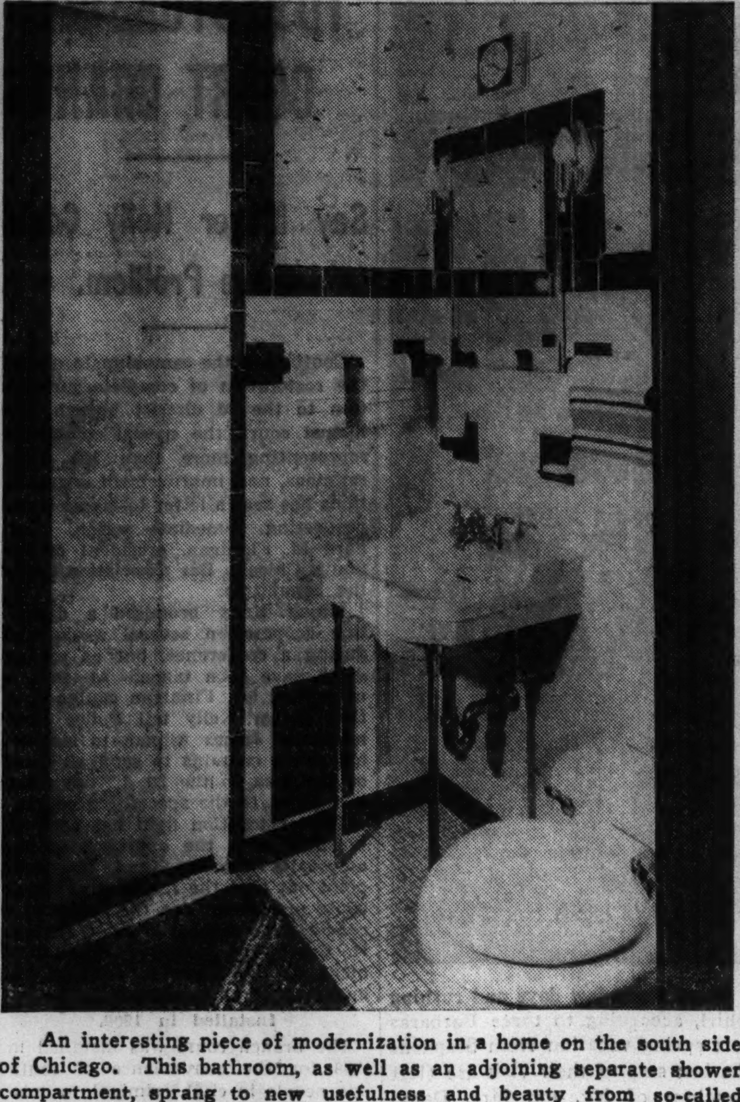
Take the lavatory. If you are shopping for a new lavatory for powder room or bath, there are some two hundred kinds available, new types too, providing maximum amount of usable space, and far greater utility than older fixtures.

Besides new fixtures, there are ways of touching your bathroom with water from the Ponce de Leon fountain of youth. There are paint and wall paper, tile and linoleum, and decorative details without end.

Signs of Spring.

Now that spring is so close there's many an old bathroom about to be transformed so that it can really add to the personality of the home. With the science of modernization in its present highly developed state, a homely bath can have its looks improved, a too large bath can be reduced, a too small bath can be made to seem larger, or even have its size increased,

Bathroom from Waste Space



An interesting piece of modernization in a home on the south side of Chicago. This bathroom, as well as an adjoining separate shower compartment, sprang to new usefulness and beauty from so-called "waste space" in the home.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, March 20.

Do not plant cannas too early out of doors, for the leaves are tender. The hotbed should be inspected each morning. Give a crack of air and see that plants do not suffer from lack of water. Small pot plants dry out easily and it is wise to plunge each pot in the soil, keeping the top of the pot level with the soil. Pansies in cold frames should be aired at all times.

Tuesday, March 21.

If the ground is workable, try sowing a few of the hardy annuals. It is amazing how they will grow if sown early. These include the sweet alyssum, balsam, calendula, cleome, cosmos, four o'clock, kochia, morning glory, petunia, portulaca, zinnia, and snapdragon. The plants should be thinned when large enough to give each one room to develop. Shrubs and trees should be planted just as soon as they can be shipped from the nursery. Low trees, like the hawthorn, sumac, crab, dwarf apple, and chokecherry, are preferable to large trees. Do not plant the soft wood trees, such as the box elder, poplar, and soft maple, for they are short lived and their roots run in all directions, depleting the soil of food and making it difficult to grow other plants near them.

Wednesday, March 22.

Do not neglect pruning. Shrubs permitted to grow naturally are said to present the highest type of beauty, but on the home ground they must be kept in bounds, the dead wood removed, and properly fertilized if they are to do their best. If a shrub is filled with old wood cut it to the ground to encourage formation of new wood. Never cut straight across the top of a shrub unless it is in a hedge. By planting in the right place much of the usual trimming to keep back the tops of shrubs will be avoided. A tall shrub under a low window is certain to cause trouble and it will never be satisfactory.

Thursday, March 23.

Examine the stored geranium plants to see if the stems have weakened. When warm weather comes cut back the stems before planting to obtain a strong, low, compact growth with as many stems as possible. These will be the flower stems. The geranium is one of the best plants to grow, but some varieties are more adapted for outdoor culture than others. Fiat, red and pink barney, Jean Viaud, and Mme. Buckner are good varieties. One of the best red cannas is President, but yellow King Humbert and King Humbert are excellent.

Friday, March 24.

Late March and early April is the time the lawn should be given close attention. If the ground can be worked sow a row of sweet peas, for they flower abundantly and will provide fine material for bouquets. Select a variety of colors and sow each by itself in the row. Try the hardy amaryllis. It has clusters of from eight to twelve flowers of rosy lilac color in August. The leaves appear from March to July, die down, and are followed by the flowers. The bulbs are planted in spring or fall. Other good summer flowering bulbous plants are the gladioli, which can be obtained in a wide variety of colors. The fairy lilies are tender and must be planted in spring, but the bulbs are easily wintered. They grow about ten inches tall and have a delicate pink color.

Saturday, March 25.

Buy only the best plants. This means well grown, sturdy, compact plants with good root systems. Field grown plants are much preferred over year old seedlings. They cost a bit more but are worth it when only a few of a kind are needed. Grow only the best stock of shrubs. Be in no hurry to plant, excepting a few things like sweet peas, smooth garden peas, radishes, onions, spinach, and hardy annuals. Woody, hardy plants can go into the ground as soon as it can be worked.

Prepared in coöperation with Garfield park conservatory.

TWO APPOINTED LIEUTENANTS IN UNIT AT TILDEN

Corps to Start R. O. T. C. Column in Paper.

Arnold Gavin and Robert Wyatt received commissions as second lieutenants in the line of the Tilden Tech R. O. T. C. regiment last week from Staf Sergeant Michael J. Moore, military instructor. Newly appointed heads of the three chief extra duty organizations are Lieut. Frank Stevens, ushers; Maj. Robert Neher, military police, and Capt. Edward Eads, fire guards.

A column to be called "Dugout Dope" will be featured in the school newspaper and will consist entirely of R. O. T. C. news. Contributions to the column will be made by the regimental publicity officer assisted by a publicity officer to be appointed in each company and the drum and bugle corps.

The Tilden ushers have been selected to assist at the Chicago Public School Music festival at the International Amphitheater on March 28, 29, and 30.

—Lindblom—

Appointment of 45 noncomissioned officers was announced recently by Sergt. Edward J. Depke, military instructor at Lindblom High school. They are: First sergeant—Thomas Fuller. Master sergeants — Elmer Douglas and Patrick Raso. First sergeants—Larry Horwitz, Edward Marevka, and Ray Gendreau.

Sergeants—David Carroll, Richard Soltis, Erwin Mieczkowski, Robert Morjnihan, Robert Heermans, George Xenos, Clifford Helbock, Albert Krueger, Stanley Stanltz, Wayne Bosworth, Donald Altenbern, Perry Lusk, Arthur Miller, William Davis, Kenneth Frankenbach, Alex Cook, John Gergel, William Guier, Stewart Archambault, and Victor Bohne.

—Harper—

Through the efforts of Sergt. Charles N. Rea, military instructor, the Harper High school R. O. T. C. battalion has purchased a trophy for inter-company drill competition. At the end of each semester the company having the highest percentage of points will have its name and the name of its company commander inscribed on the trophy. Percentages for the highest rating will be determined by drill, knowledge of commands, attitude, manual of arms, inspection, theory, officers' and noncommissioned officers' knowledge and obedience.

Morgan Park

Lieut. Robert Dodge has succeeded Lieut. Col. Kenneth Hohoff as commander of the ushers at Morgan Park High school. His assistants are George Dasher and Frank Micus, main floor captains; Russell Winkless and Howard Mathis, balcony captains, and Robert Ship, foyer captain. Other ushers are Blake Hooper, Philip Fons, William Minor, Eric Jones, Henry Noetzel, Forrest Clegg, Chalmer Carpenter, Lee Hodson, Robert Haedtler, Justice Eddy, Paul Lauerman, Warren Holm, Robert Ruskamp, Howard Florence, and Stephen Hamilton.

Learn About First Aid

MAY LOOK LIKE FILM STAR BUT HAS NO YEARNIN'

Lieut. Col. Hohhof Yet to Select Career.

The Tyrone Power of Chicago's R. O. T. C. cadet commanders is is Lieut. Col. Kenneth Hohhof of 8817 South Leavitt street and Morgan Park High school. But while Ken's graduation picture bears a resemblance to the movie star, the only thing definite about his future is that it is very indefinite. He hopes to make up his mind during the next few years when he contines his education at Wilson Junior college and the University of Chicago.

Kenneth Hohhof. [Hepburn Studio.]

Beginnnig as a corporal in 1-B, he has been a member of the R. O. T. C. officers clubs ever since. He also has been head of the ushers, president of the stamp and coin club [he has a collection of 450 coins], fire marshal, vice president of the Hi-Y club, and a member of the athletic guards and the board of control.

He has been presented with three Tribune medals, two neatest cadet medals, a noncommissioned officer's medal, and a recruiting medal. Recently he was Morgan Park's delegate to the Illinois state Hi-Y convention in Peoria.

Ken believes the R. O. T. C. is valuable because it corrects posture and gives you friends. In his leisure time he prefers wrestling much more than classical music. Something he desires never to do again is to run the half mile in the city track meet after he has marched for hours in the R. O. T. C. parade on Michigan avenue, as he did last year.

—Kelly—

New leaders of the recently reorganized Kelly High school R. O. T. C. officers' club are Maj. Henry Kaczmarczyk, president; Capt. Ray Czarnik, vice president; Second Lieutenant Eugene Gasior, secretary, and First Lieutenant Sam Vournazo, treasurer. The following were elected leaders of the noncommissioned officers' club: Corporal Anto Stalun, president; Sergt. Raymond Konieczki, vice president and publicity officer; Sergt. James Marshall, secretary; First Sergeant Chester Matevich, treasurer, and Corporal Arthur Schulz, sergeant at arms.

DANIEL WORKMAN OF ROOSEVELT IS NEW COLONEL

Has Command of City's Cadet Brigade.

Daniel Workman, 4542 North St. Louis avenue, is the new cadet colonel and commanding officer of 9,378 R. O. T. C. cadets in the Chicago high schools. A member of the Roosevelt High school battalion, he placed first in a competitive examination given by the local R. O. T. C. headquarters last week for sixty-eight cadet officers in the city units.

Others who won appointments to the cadet corps staf are Ross H. Merritt of Senn and Joseph P. Roth of Lindblom, lieutenant colonels; Kent Cox, Fenger; Richard Mitchell, Hirsch; Sam Kendrick, Lane; and John Williams, Englewood, majors, and John Wagner, Fenger; Robert Little, Schurz; Richard Warner, Lane, and Andrew Hensen, Hirsch, captains.

The examination, part of which was oral, lasted three hours and a half. It was conducted by a board consisting of Maj. John H. Ringe, infantry, president; Maj. William B. Weston, field artillery, and Maj. Joseph I. Lambert, cavalry, members; and Maj. Richard H. Darrell, cavalry, recorder.

The board recommended the following candidates for commendation "for the high military attainment displayed": for colonel, Robert Bukowski, Lane; Damon Flemming, Crane; Larry Krebs, Schurz; Adolph Leberes, Tilden, and Kenneth Hohhof, Morgan Park; for lieutenant colonels, James Davis, Schurz; James Parks, Du Sable; Eugene Schobinger, Morgan Park, and William Hillegonds, Fenger; for majors, Alfred Winkless, Morgan Park; Raymond Kosnecki, Tilden, and Morris Proffitt, Du Sable; for captains, Walter Peterson, Tilden; Robert Bonnifield, Hyde Park, and Eugene Gasior, Kelly.

Plan Luncheon.

Gage park branch of the Woman's City club will serve a luncheon at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday in Gage park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue.

ST. XAVIER ALUMNAE READY TO OBSERVE RECOLLECTION DAY

St. Xavier academy alumnae will observe a day of recollection today, Laetare Sunday, in the convent, 4900 Cottage Grove avenue. The Rev. Albert Durant, Augustinian order, will have charge of the exercises which begin at 10 o'clock with mass.

The Rev. Albert Durant.

After the benediction the Rev. P. J. McGuire, spiritual director of the alumnæ, will bless the Felice Lawson and the alumnæ windows.

Miss Margaret McArdle is chairman and Miss Mary Mooney and Miss Catherine Doyle cochairmen of the committee in charge. Other members of the group are Miss Helen Best, Miss Elizabeth Byrne, Miss Hazel King, Miss Edith Zahringer, Mrs. John K. Haas Jr., president of the alumnæ, and Sister Dorothy Marie, alumnæ moderator.

—DuSable—

Second Lieutenant Charles Flowers and First Sergeant Julius Frazier have tied for the honor of receiving the semi-annual recruiting medal at Du Sable High school. The R. O. T. C. recruiting campaign this semester was headed by Lieut. Albert Logan.

"FOR QUICKER WASHES—WHITER CLOTHES, USE OXYDOL"

—Say Easy Washer Dealers Everywhere

Attention Washing Machine Owners

SEE YOUR EASY DEALER!

No Cost No Obligation

HERE'S important news for every washing machine user! Now—leading washing machine manufacturers are recommending a new soap for use in their washers.

For example: As a result of scientific tests the Easy Washing Machine Company now approves Oxydol for use in its well-known machines: "For quick washes, white clothes, we recommend the use of new High-Test Oxydol in every Easy Washer, new or old."

The new High-Test Oxydol is a revolutionary advance in laundry soap, containing a remarkable new ingredient. An ingredient that multiplies its white-washing power to an astonishing degree, yet keeps it SAFE for every washable color and fabric, safe for hands.

Due to this new ingredient, High-Test Oxydol actually does these amazing things, in new independent laboratory tests against old-style bar and package soaps:

(1) Gets white clothes up to 25% whiter! (2) Gives up to TWICE THE SUDS—even in hard water. Rich, lively suds that stand up 2 to 3 times longer, without going flat or "dying down."

Yet High-Test Oxydol is so SAFE that cotton prints, given the equivalent of more than a full year's normal washing, showed no perceptible sign of fading—stayed brilliant, sparkling, fresh!

What's more, High-Test Oxydol has the power to soak dirt out while the washer is running—gives DOUBLE-ACTION wash—and you don't have to waste a lot of time rubbing grimy spots by hand.

High-Test Oxydol is economical, too. Each cup goes up to 25% farther, washes up to one-fourth more clothes, than equal amounts of old-style soaps.

So whether your washer is new or old, heed what these famous manufacturers say. No matter what laundry soap you use, you owe it to yourself to try new High-Test Oxydol at once. Once you see how much whiter it gets your clothes—how fast it washes—you'll never go back to old-style soaps again!

Your dealer has new High-Test OXYDOL. No advance in price—no change in the familiar orange and blue package. Phone for a package today. Procter and Gamble.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

Advance Agents Arrive.

March 18, 1939.

YOU have to take only a short hike around the big farm pond to realize that all the advance agents of spring have returned. Meadow larks are singing cheerily from the grassy fields. Bluebirds are flashing their vivid color—a shade of blue as deep and beautiful as the blue of a spring sky. The robins join in telling about the arrival of spring. One woodcock, much bolder than most of these migrants, already has come up from the south. We wondered how this quiet, long billed traveler was able to get enough to eat when the temperature dropped and the ground froze.

Seeks Soft Ground.

The woodcock thrusts its long, slender bill into soft, moist earth. It seeks boggy places, especially low patches of woods and alder thickets, for its food. There are many such feeding places around Chicago. But none of them are much good to this unusual and rarely seen species if the ground freezes.

While the first spring birds, such as the meadow larks, robins, and bluebirds, are singing about spring out in the fields, 149 little White Rock chickens carry on the spring chorus in the poultry yard. One hundred and fifty of these birds were delivered to the farm last week. Just one of that number has died. These peepers lead an ideal bird life. They have a snug house, a warm electric brooder that keeps them comfortable when the temperature drops, all they can eat, and plenty of water to drink.

The Canada geese and four of the white swans are now on the big pond, although all of the ice hasn't melted. The birds took advantage of an opportunity and simply walked out of their winter quarters.

Once out, there was a mad rush to their old and favorite hangout, the big pond. The geese were so delighted to get their feet in the water and roam around that their honking could be heard for a half mile.

Rat War Succeeding.

More rats were killed this week by oatmeal and bread that had been soaked in liquid squill. It was the first time that this type of squill had been used on the farm. Until this week all of the baits were treated with the powdered squill. When the flockmaster found that a few rats had moved into some of the buildings near his home he decided to try out the squill liquid. It worked. In order to make sure that all of the grain eating rats are poisoned there will be one more distribution of baits this week. This time a different type of bait will be used.

"How I Got a Loan of $100 without embarrassment or delay."

"I needed $100 in a hurry. I dreaded to ask friends for a favor. And I had no security for getting a loan at a bank. What was I to do? Fortunately, I heard about Household Finance and so went to a nearby office. The manager was courteous and friendly. He merely asked me a few simple questions. The next day I got the money with 20 months to repay. Only my wife and I signed the papers. I was delighted to get a loan so simply and promptly."

Whether you are married or single, if you need a loan of $20 to $300 the manager of the Household office near you will be glad to discuss your problem with you in complete privacy and without obligation. Why not phone or visit him today?

New Models Induce That Warm Feeling Associated with Spring

Creations Fashioned for Clothes-Hungry Shoppers

A—Two-piece suit consisting of flared short skirt dramatically contrasted with a nipped-in-at-the-waistline jacket of big, breezy plaid checks. Any color in the plaid jacket can be repeated in the underblouse or shirt selection. ● B—Very soft wool outfit stressing the combination of various shades of one springlike color and flattering to all personalities. A very short jacket in a light shade fits sungly over the waistline of the darker skirt. A topcoat in chamois yellow would afford an unusual threesome, with glowing copper accessories as a fourth color note. ● C—Another outfit with a short skirt in a sage shade with gay young jacket in checked wool to harmonize and a scarf tucked in at the neckline. ● D—Classic outfit of light flannel, a two-piece tailored suit worn under a bright plaid topcoat. Nearly full length, the topcoat has wide, loose sleeves and a simple silhouette, an all-purpose model for suits or for spectator sports dresses in silk, wool, or linen. ● E—Here is the spellbinder of the newest collections, an outfit borrowing its glow from the glitter of coins. Superlatively tailored and young looking, the clever two-piece suit can be worn with virtually all colors as contrast, including olive green, cornflower blue, or deep brown. With this suit a topcoat of the same stunning color is in order.

By RHEA SEEGER

NO VISIBLE apathy in the color scheme of last-minute collections of gay wool outfits which any clothes-hungry shopper wears to assure some sort of warm spring feeling! Horse blanket sized plaids and checks, three or four harmonizing colors all in one costume, very short flared skirts, pinched-in-at-the-waistline jackets, and blouses or shirts in still another good contrast color provide all and enough shopping excitement.

Dressmaker suits or ensembles, those smart combines of wool and soft details, as well as the sleekly tailored duets of skirt and beautifully fitted jacket, all flaunt heart-warming colors. Nothing drab anywhere in sight, seldom anything muted, but good, cheery, effective magic contrived with vivid accent of clear, strong shades.

Sizable plaids and checks, literally visible for a block or so, make eye-catchers of great interest. Sometimes the entire suit is of the bold plaid material. Usually it's the snappy jacket and the topcoat that contrast the brightly colored solid wool skirt. Sometimes the topcoat has front facings, cuffs, pockets, and collar of the checks or plaid with the same giddy lining to contrast with the solid color.

Suit skirts are as different as the Gargantuan plaids and checks, extremely short and flared with fine abandon. Inverted tucks, gores, and the circular cut manage this young looking style. Waistlines and hiplines are smooth and fitted. The flare is well down around the kneeline and hemline, achieving a different sophistication even though the general effect is extreme and snappy youthfulness.

Five new outfits featured in one collection have been sketched, each model different, colorful, grand buys for any clothes allowance.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

The woman with a mature figure can be just as smartly dressed as her more slender sisters, designers have proved, and these three frocks are illustrations of their skill. All are distinctively styled daytime models for varying degrees of informality, and we think you'll like them, especially if you've been having figure problems.

At the left is an afternoon frock with simple neckline, kimono shoulders, pointed up waistline, slightly flared skirt, and soft fulness in the bodice. The neckline and sleeves may be trimmed simply with braid or other ready made edging, and a corsage may be used at the shoulder. This is a delightfully simple dress to make, and it is fashionable in either silks or cottons.

Sketched in the center is another daytime dress with much the same lines. The sleeves in this model are set in and puffed at the shoulder. Buttons in a prim row may be used down the bodice front, and a self-fabric belt may be used at the waist. Patterned silks, especially the washable type, are perfect for this pattern.

Primarily for the home, the frock at the right has crisply tailored lines. Its V neckline is trimmed with a scalloped collar, which has braid applied to match that used on sleeves and down the front of the closing. The dress has a paneled effect that is eminently slenderizing. Brightly patterned cottons and linens make up beautifully, and it is the type of dress that may be worn on the street, too.

Style No. 3324 is designed for sizes 16, 18, and 20, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3 yards of 39 inch material, with 2 yards of edging.

Style No. 2809 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2632 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material, with ⅜ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Each pattern costs ten cents.

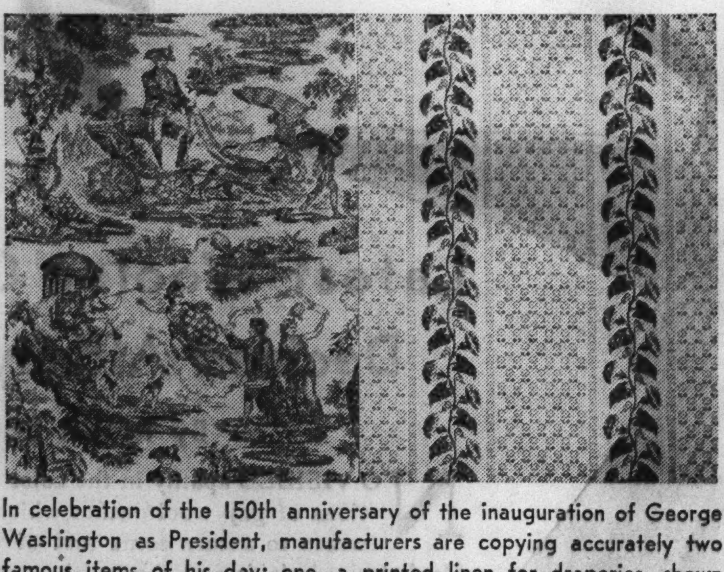
Paper Adorning Walls of Jumel Mansion Copied

What do you know about china? The booklet, "Learn About China Before You Buy," by Claire Winslow, Tribune stylist in interior decoration, gives brief histories of the most important potters and their works. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Claire Winslow.



In celebration of the 150th anniversary of the inauguration of George Washington as President, manufacturers are copying accurately two famous items of his day: one, a printed linen for draperies, shown above, and the other a charming striped wallpaper from the old Jumel mansion, Washington's headquarters in 1776.

Next month marks another milestone in the history of our country. On April 30, 1789, 150 years ago, George Washington was inaugurated as President of the United States. Lovers of Americana can now have, for the first time, accurate copies of authentic wallpaper and fabric closely associated with his days.

Manufacturers, in celebration of this 150th anniversary, have brought out two fascinating items. One is a perfect copy of the wallpaper used in one of the rooms of the famous Jumel mansion in New York City. In the rooms of this house occurred many events of romantic interest and historical importance. It was used as Washington's headquarters in 1776 and it was here that President Washington, Vice President John Adams, and Thomas Jefferson dined on July 10, 1790.

Stephen Jumel, owner of the mansion, went to Paris in 1815 hoping to bring Napoleon Bonaparte to this country. This dream, of course, was not realized, but many mementos of the great Corsican were brought back and ornamented the rooms of Jumel's home.

He died in 1832 and in 1833 his widow, who had been a great beauty of revolutionary days here, married Aaron Burr, her attorney, who was then 78 years old. During the last years of her life Louis, Jerome, and Joseph Napoleon, and other celebrated French exiles were her guests.

An eastern firm was selected this year to reproduce an original wall hanging from the Jumel mansion, a picture of which is shown today. After the completion of the work the blocks from which the pattern was printed were given to the city of New York. This charming striped paper is available now in several colors. In one the morning glories are done in coral pink, with beige leaves on a pale gray ground. In another they are in pale pink with green leaves on a lighter green ground, and in a third the whole design is worked out in soft tones of gray and beige.

The other picture shows a copy of an original fabric now in the American wing of the Metropolitan museum in New York. This toile was originally printed in red on white. The new version, available in red, blue, green, mauve, and bistre, is an excellent example of engraving and printing.

The design, an unusually long repeat, 36 inches, shows Washington standing in a triumphal chariot drawn by two leopards, preceded by two Indians blowing trumpets, from which fly flags, one with thirteen stripes but no stars, the other the early "Don't Tread on Me" emblem of the colonies. Cannon, grape, and war trophies are piled at the foot of "the liberty tree," on the trunk of which a torn copy of the stamp act is derisively affixed upside down. Small battle scenes, Bunker Hill and the surrender of Cornwallis, fill the background.

The other part of the design of this fabric shows Frankin, accompanied by a female figure representing France, with a liberty cap on a pole, the two holding aloft a streamer with the text: "Where Liberty Dwells There Is My Country." They are escorted by Victory to the "Temple of Fame," where a symbolic, winged figure is seen, blowing a trumpet.

In the Metropolitan museum the original material is used as bedspread and curtains on a carved mahogany four post bed, on a wing chair, and on two side chairs. It was made in England.

And the beautiful modern copy of this linen will be ideal for a colonial mahogany bedroom, dining room, or living room, as will the wallpaper of the Jumel mansion. The home owner who enjoys beautiful furniture of the eighteenth century period will now have no difficulty in creating a harmonious room.

On the House

A new and efficient portable incinerator ,a complete unit, comes in different sizes and may be installed in basement, utility room or out of doors. If your heater is fired by gas, oil, or a stoker, this incinerator can be connected directly to the same chimney. Special features are its reasonable cost, no specially located chimney, no expense for additional brickwork, and no excessive heat radiation or objectionable smoke and odors.

Now you can bake Boston beans in a very special electric crock. This crock, which stands 8 inches high, is heavily insulated to hold in the heat, and uses just enough current to bake the beans thoroughly and slowly. This small unit is finished in baked ivory enamel with black and red trim, and can be used for all slow-heat casserole purposes. It is nice for warm days ahead.

For that new home or that home you are doing over, or for some single room that needs "touching up," there are a variety of wood floorings that are pre-finished: Distinctive plank floorings for Colonial and French Provincial interiors. These come completely finished, even to fine waxing and polishing, and it only takes a few hours after the floor has arrived at your home until it is laid and ready to walk on!

French cooks have done more to develop sauces than all the others put together. I know that is a broad statement to make, but being around and among the best of them for only forty years has more than convinced me of this fact. One of the fine French sauces most housewives are scared to death to attempt, but which all would love to master, is Hollandaise sauce. Indeed, this is one of the most delicious sauces in the whole realm and if the housewife can get the knack (it is really very simple) she will have something to brag about to her friends. A real Hollandaise sauce contains only the ingredients you will find in my recipe. I know that there are many recipes floating around under the name of "Hollandaise," but if you had ever eaten the real Hollandaise in a first class restaurant you would detect the difference.

The word "sauté" which is used in French cookery is a French verb meaning "to jump." Now that is exactly what a French cook does to food when he frys it. With a certain motion of the wrist a French cook will take hold of the handle of the frying pan and jump the food in the pan to turn it without using a fork. This is easy, too, and with a little practice you can master it if you want to. The most important thing, however, about sautéed food is to retrieve the little essence left in the frying pan. This is accomplished by adding a piece of butter to the pan after the food is removed to a hot plate in order to loosen up those tiny particles that are the foundation of the sauce.

Do not confuse the idea of this type of sauce which is served with a sautéed food as resembling gravy. Gravy is made by adding flour and water to the pan the meat was cooked in, while sauce is made with meat essence and butter. Consequently it is much richer and only a spoonful is served with the dish. Sometimes additional essence, which is known as glaze viande or meat extract, is added to the pan when there is not sufficient to make a sauce. But then you know something about this, as I have frequently mentioned it in my recipes.

About one year ago there appeared in this column my recipe for Hollandaise sauce. Since then I have received many letters from women telling me of their success in making the sauce. Well, that is exactly as it should be, and just one more word before we repeat the recipe and that is to tell you that Hollandaise should be thick; that is, thick enough to hold its shape or about the consistency of mayonnaise. It is a delicious sauce to serve on hot asparagus, broccoli, cauliflower, and fish.

HOLLANDAISE SAUCE.

4 egg yolks
½ cup butter
2 tablespoons strained lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
Few grains cayenne pepper

Melt butter over boiling water in top part of double boiler. Meanwhile beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Pour beaten yolks into melted butter and stir with a wooden spoon until mixture thickens. Add the lemon juice gradually, stirring constantly and watching until the sauce is of sufficient thickness. Remove from fire, add salt and cayenne pepper, and serve immediately. The secret of making Hollandaise sauce is the blending of the melted butter and egg yolks over low steam heat. Have only about one inch of water in lower part of double boiler and while stirring the mixture lift the top part of double boiler occasionally to allow some of the steam in lower part to escape.

It may never have occurred to you to do more than open a can of sardines when you fancied eating these small fish. Well, that's perfectly all right by me and what I have done myself on many an occasion, but here is a recipe I thought you might like knowing about.

GRILLED SARDINES A LA SEVILLE.

Select large sardines for this purpose. Drain off the oil and heat both sides of the sardines in a frying pan. Handle them carefully when turning them in the pan. Cut the bread the same size as the sardines and toast to a light brown; spread one side with anchovy paste (you can purchase this in small tubes) which has been mixed with a little finely minced parsley. Place a sardine on each piece of toast and return to the oven for one minute to heat. Serve with a drop or two of lemon juice squeezed over the top.

Upside down cakes are popular family desserts and especially nice to behold if an assortment of fruit is used instead of just pineapple slices that we have had so much of. Recently we made one of these cakes and the fruit we used consisted of two whole bananas (small ones), pineapple slices, halves of peaches, and pears and cherries. When the cake was turned out of the large iron frying pan it was a picture, as the fruit and cake had taken on a glaze and this in itself is a mouth-watering sight. These cakes should be served slightly warm. Here is the recipe:

MAPLE SUGAR TOAST.

Thinly slice one day old bread and remove crusts. Toast and spread lightly with softened butter and soft maple sugar. Return to the oven until the sugar melts. Serve each slice with a spoonful of whipped cream.

FRUIT UPSIDE DOWN CAKE.

Bake the cake in a large iron frying pan. Cut one-half cup of butter into small pieces and put it in the bottom of a cold frying pan. Then sprinkle one cup of brown sugar over bottom of pan and arrange the assortment of canned fruit (drained of all juice) on top of the butter and sugar. Don't forget the bananas, as they give the cake a nice flavor. Cover fruit with sponge batter made as follows: Beat three eggs until light, add one cup of sugar and three tablespoons of hot water. Then add one cup of flour which has been sifted with two teaspoons of baking powder and one-half teaspoon of salt. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) 45 minutes.

Remove cake while hot by inverting frying pan on cake plate.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

Today we present the cases of a number of invalids and those recovering from illnesses, all of them persons in need of items which they are unable to obtain for themselves.

The first request comes from a medical social worker in behalf of a needy clinic-patient.

"Dear Miss Brown: May we ask you to help us obtain a back rest for our patient, Mrs. H.? She needs something to prop her up while resting, as she is unable to get her breath while lying down flat on a bed. She has been known to various clinics for many years, and is in very poor health and frequently hospitalized. Among her ailments are ulcers, heart disease, and lung trouble. She lives in one room, where she sleeps and cooks her meals. Although she is on relief, it is impossible for the office to purchase such items."

Mrs. O., on the north side, also is on relief, and is unable to supply any extras for her invalid daughter. The girl is afflicted with Hodgkins' disease, and could be much more comfortable if some reader can supply a rubber ring for her. A small radio [alternating current] would also provide much amusement for her, if one is available.

Mrs. B. has arthritis so severely that she is able to go only to the clinic for medical attention. She is on relief, and although she greatly enjoys reading, she is no longer able to go to the library and would appreciate receiving discarded books and magazines. The address is on the near north side.

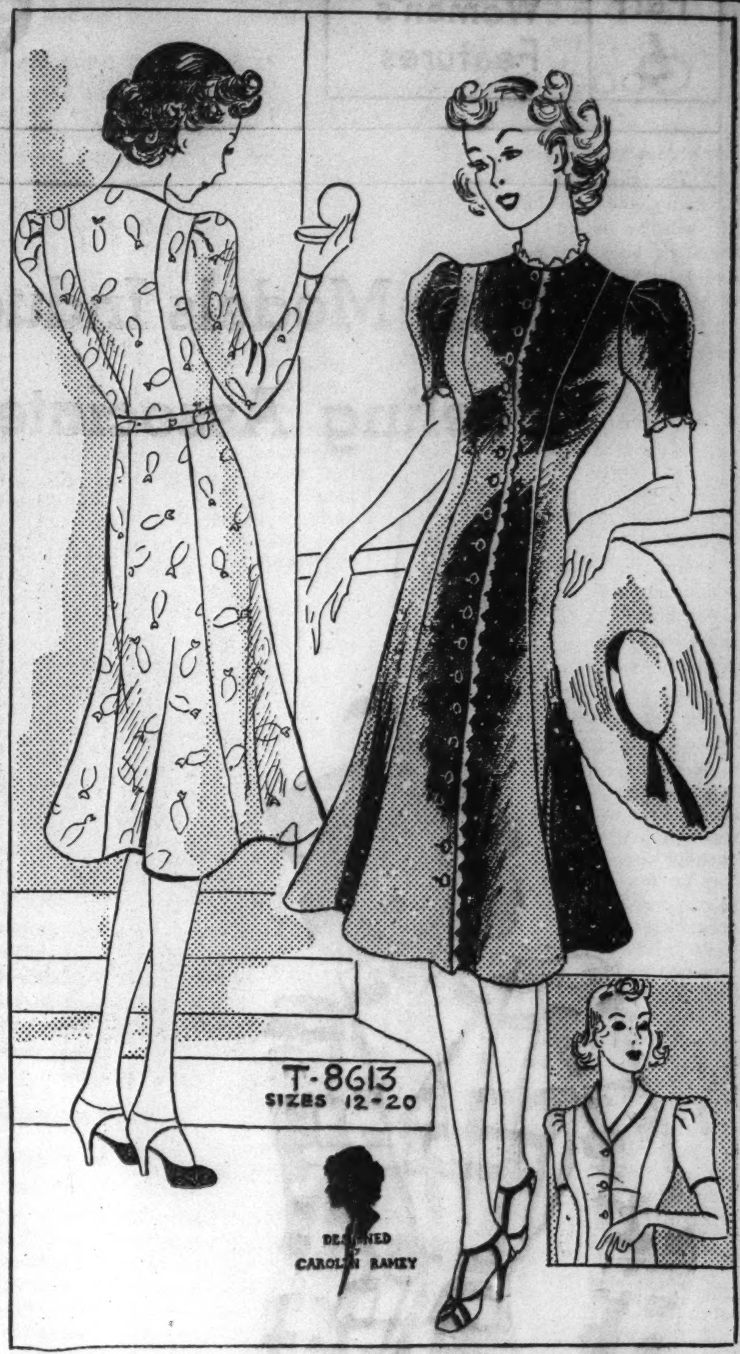
By Ellen Bruce.

Here is a crocheted teddy bear in all his appealing roguery, a perfect companion for any baby. It is a simple matter to create this toy, and when it is stuffed it is brushed with a teazel brush to create the furry quality of the natural animal. Camel's hair wool is an ideal choice for Teddy, but a heavy cashmere, shetland or knitting worsted may be used.

For instructions for crocheting the teddy bear, No. X-221, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed



By Carolyn Ramey.

College social life makes so many demands upon a wardrobe that every frock in it must be chosen with an eye to versatility. A dress that can go to classes, to parties, and to informal occasions of many kinds is just the type every co-ed needs. This princess frock is a design that subscribes to this principle very well.

This is a frock full of spirit and spring gayety. There's something undeniably crisp about its lines, and there's flattery in every inch of it. Choose any fabric you like, and any color, and this pattern will serve you well because it's so simple. The neckline of my own frock is collarless. It's high and round and trimmed with lace, more of which does decorative duty on the short puffed sleeves. If you like, follow my cue and put more of the lace down the entire length of the front closing. I like the idea of buttons lined up closely together as illustrated in the sketch at the right.

Paneling achieves the perfect fit for this model, and you need no belt, although you may use one if you like. The dress I made for myself is navy crêpe trimmed with white.

You may, if you wish, give the frock a V neckline and a collar. If you prefer long sleeves, the pattern provides for them, too. Both prints and plain shades, in either silk, cotton, or lightweight woolen make up well.

Style No. T-8613 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Water Softener.

Unless the water in the locality in which you live is exceptionally hard, a quarter cup of a reliable commercial softener to a tub of water is sufficient to make laundering easier. Add the softener to the hot water, and if you find that the rinse water leaves tiny granules of scum on the clothes, add a little softener to the first rinse, too.

After study of figure proportions, supposed to represent the perfect 1939 Miss or Mrs. America, we have just about decided that any woman who maintains her weight at par, and who can boast of good carriage, may consider her figure perfect enough for all of her needs. We can count on the woman of good proportions studying lines of dress further to accentuate the neatness of her silhouette. It goes with the silhouette upkeep somehow.

But because women are thinking in terms of figure sizes and proportions right now, on account of the spring wardrobe, we will give you a few ideas of what are deemed, at the moment, excellent proportions.

It is interesting to observe the change in standards as applied to the Misses America who have been selected at Atlantic City. The first one, chosen in 1921, was 5 feet 1 and weighed 105 pounds, whereas the 1938 winner was 5 feet 7 and weighed 128 pounds, with proportionately larger bust, waist, and hip measurements. The board of artist-judges gives weight to these Atlantic City decisions whether you like their general flavor or not.

A similar group of judges recently appointed Nina MacDougal, 20, the "Modern Venus." Her measurements read: 5 feet 8 inches; 135 pounds; bust, 35 inches; 36½ inches for hips, and 25 inches for waist. Which would indicate that our beauties are growing up and around, the bust, hip, and waist measurements progressing with height.

On the other hand, a famous model, 20 year old June Cox, walked away with prize contest honors recently, too. Miss Cox is 5 feet 6¾ inches, and weighs 124 pounds. According to life insurance statistics she should weigh 135.

Probably the greatest difference between the perfect 1939 figure and its predecessors is in curves superseding straight lines. Although, if you go back to 1890, when women had full bosoms and round hips, you probably would see in actual measurements that they were no rounder than Miss Cox. They only seemed so because women then were shorter and tightened their waists into the hour-glass effect.

As the American girl stressed sports she grew taller and flatter, beginning her new freedom with the outlandish boyish form. But with the return of the romantic influence on clothes the soft, feminine figure is back again, with the modern provision, however, that, although the ideal figure must have a round, high bosom, a slim waist and gently rounded hips are still demanded.

Miss Cox, who was picked by experts as the average American girl, has a 34 inch bust measurement, 24 inch waist, and 34 inch hips; thigh, 19½ inches.

The girls at the Roxy theater usually are given a place in the scheme of arriving at good figure measurements. We learn from this source that the measurements generally accepted in this famous lineup run: Height, 5 feet 6; weight, 125 pounds; bust, 34; waist, 26; hips, 36; thighs, 20.

Big hips are said to be the modern woman's most serious problem because she sits so much, in automobiles, at desks, at bridge tables, and in the movies.

"On the whole, though," says John Powers, models' bureau leader, "the American women have the sort of figure that prompted Elsa Maxwell to say: 'No French woman should be seen on the beach with her sweetheart. All American women should.'"

In discussing figure proportions, too often the good figure for a matron is lost in the preference for exhibiting charts and measurements that apply to a much younger woman. There is no reason why a mother should accept her debutante daughter's chart and measurements as hers to strive for. Folly, we call it, and outmoded as the freak reducing methods of a few years back when women strove to be mistaken for their daughters.

To Catherine Van Rennselaer, director of physical education, American Woman's club, we are therefore indebted for good matrons' figures as compiled from actual statistics in the department:

Young matron:

Age 28-35	Bust 36	Thigh 21
Height ..5:6½	Waist ...29½	Arm 11½
Wgt...134-138	Hips 38½

Perfection for this type of figure would be:

Weight ...134	Waist 29	Thigh 21
Bust 35	Hips 37	Arm 11½

For the older matron:

Age 35-40	Bust 36½	Thigh ...22½
Height ..5:6½	Waist ..31½	Arm 12¼
Weight ..143½	Hips 39½

Perfection for this type of figure would be:

Wgt....138-140	Waist 28	Thigh 21
Bust 36	Hips 38	Arm 12

In conclusion we are glad to notice that the Hollywood standard, often thinner than doctors advise because of photography's trick of thickening the figure, is not of popular acceptance today.

Miss Donnelly's authoritative articles, counseling women in matters of beauty and charm, appear every day in the feature pages of The Chicago Tribune.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Here's a spring tonic that has sulphur and molasses backed off the boards! Whether your dissatisfaction with your figure is a matter of five pounds or fifty-five, a sane reducing program, started now, will give you a new silhouette and a new outlook on life in just a few weeks!

The greatest spring tonic in the world for the woman who is too heavy is a program that takes off unwanted weight, that makes the divine new clothes a possibility instead of a dream, and that gives her an improved vitality that is virtually a renewal of youth.

The good reducing program does these things. We're firmly antagonistic to drugs, freak diets, and utterly unsupervised methods. Too risky. Supervised diet and exercise are something else again.

One woman we know weighed 255 pounds on the first of last June. That figure, however, doesn't half tell the story. She was a young woman, an attractive woman, but because of her weight she was completely dispirited. She had actually reached the point where she saw no particular point in beginning the day. She hated to see people. She couldn't bear the sight of herself in a mirror. She had, by her own confession, reached the serious state where her self-respect was slipping. Her husband and her family were far from proud of her.

On the first of June she started a reducing course. She'd started many before that lasted a day or a week. This time she persevered. It involved, at the outset, daily visits to a beauty salon and frequent checkups by a physician. There was, understandably enough, considering the tremendous weight and her habits, a blood pressure figure that almost matched the weight figure.

She had a supervised diet, supervised exercise, and massage. The money she would have spent on clothes [that looked awful on her, anyway] went into paying for all this. She followed her program every day of June and July. She quit it, quite deliberately, for the month of August, began again in September, and kept at it until the end of December, when she stopped again for a month. By Christmas she weighed less than 200 pounds. She's at it again now and, by the end of this spring, she'll have lost close to 50 pounds more.

The figures are impressive. Her 45 inch waist was 37 inches by mid-November; her 51½ inch bust was a 44; the upper hip measurement of 54 inches was 45. The change in her figure was proportionate. Her blood pressure was normal!

But, to us, those figures aren't so important. What struck us most forcibly was not the changed silhouette, though heaven knows that was gratifying to her and the people who worked with her, but the change in the woman herself, in her spirit, in her mental balance, her whole outlook. It would take a psychologist, with a gift for the right word, to describe that process and to estimate the enormous value of it.

She is a completely changed person, a walking crusader for weight reduction for the woman who needs it and knows she does but does nothing about it. All the psychological maladjustment has disappeared. She no longer is anti-social, no longer indifferent about clothes or conduct. Every day holds promise of adventure. She can cope with life and enjoy it.

Personally, we wish she could tell other women who are frankly fat and unhappy about it just how much FUN it is to be slim again, and even how much fun it is to tone up muscles, to eat sensibly but never be hungry, and to watch the measurements change for the better week by week. She's the best sales talk for sanity in the conquering of obesity that we've ever found.

Now's the time for the rest of you, the too fat, to start your own private youth-renewing program. You'll love spring, you'll adore new clothes, and life will take on an inviting quality that has been lacking. It's dull to let yourself go, and frankly, it's dumb. Ask any psychologist, or a woman who's done it but snapped out of her lethargy!

City Slickers Go Peasant in French Styles

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The big spring and summer style shows, recently exhibited in Paris, raise the curtain on a masquerade, with city slickers disguised as peasants, very obviously phony and tickled pink to play such rustic rôles. It's all done with clothes, naturally. Groomed, sophisticated women, with bright, lackered fingernails, carefully waved and patterned hair, massaged and madeup faces, wearing pure peasant clothes is the big idea this spring, particularly for daytime. The materials from which the new French styles are made are far from peasant, and do their part to make the masquerade more transparent. Gorgeous satins and exotic printed silks are made up into dresses with milkmaids' fitted bodices and wide, gathered skirts, which fool nobody, not even the cows. They're not meant to.

Mainbocher calls these styles "Paris peasants," which gives the show away at the start. He shows coats cut like workers' smocks, but made of enchanting luxury wools printed with rustic flowers and other patterns. He shows day dresses that have wickedly demure fischu draperies around the shoulders, boned skintight bodices and wide, gathered skirts, just like those the Swiss peasant girls wear, but very citified for all of that. Handbags like wicker market baskets are slung over the arm. Rustic sailor hats tie on with ribbon streamers.

Evening dresses in Mainbocher's show may have gayly embroidered small aprons set into the front of very full gathered tulle skirts, and embroidered peasant bodices. Basque bodices mate with gathered white lingerie skirts in other evening frocks. Schiaparelli puts tiny taffeta maids' aprons on slender day dresses. She trims rustic straw hats with white lace-trimmed streamers that carry further the idea of domestic servitude and humility with its tongue in its cheek. She puts big, draped shawl-like fischus, edged with wool fringe ruching around the shoulders of town coats, and translates the same thing into gold and silks for evening.

Chanel uses the roving gypsy as a model for rustic evening dresses that have gathered skirts of plaid taffeta, white lingerie blouses with sleeves, and tiny plaid shawls around the shoulders. Balenciaga makes dresses of white cotton Swiss embroidery over colored slips which show through all the openwork. Everybody continues using peasant petticoats under day skirts. Alix shows gypsy beach dresses with draped hipline sashes such as fandango dancers wear to highlight swaying hips. She makes a group of gathered dresses for daytime which are full from the shoulders in the manner of the Mother Hubbard, but draped by an old master for sophisticates.

A way of giving a truly rustic air to many of the spring dresses for daytime is by combining two different prints into one model. The combination makes a homemade atmosphere. Mainbocher has many dresses in two different prints. Molyneux uses one print for a wide belt, another for the skirt, and makes the blouse of plain color. Alix divides two prints into a half-and-half dress. White cotton lace, beloved of peasant girls, is used to trim all kinds of day dresses.

A concrete example of the new peasant fashions is a navy blue silk day dress from Mainbocher, with a fitted bodice below fischu-draped shoulders fastened on enamel red cherry buttons, and a wide, gathered skirt. The petticoat is red and white gingham checked taffeta trimmed with white embroidery hem. Gloves match the petticoat. A navy blue wicker basket handbag and a prudent rustic's umbrella may complete the ensemble. The hat is blue straw.

Mainbocher introduces a smock coat of flower printed wool, fastened with flower buttons and having very new, large sleeves. White gloves are worn to eke them out.

The peasant evening gown is what Marie Antoinette might have worn when she played at being a milkmaid. One model has the skirt in black tulle and the apron a part of it, but covered with colored and gold bead embroidery, as is the fitted bodice, which has the bosom filled in with black tulle.

Among the most striking new evening models, also from Mainbocher, is one which has a skintight black silk jersey blouse with a high collar and elbow-length sleeves, and boned basque bodice. The skirt is made of white embroidered organdy, and is gathered onto the waistline. It flares moderately and is the very newest and most exciting type of evening skirt.

Paris Pattern Play Suit Has Matching Dirndl Skirt

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Play suits such as the one copied for this pattern are very popular at the French winter resorts. They stress chic, of course, and that "little girl" air, but they also lay particular emphasis on comfort. We've come a long way since the days of corseted and long-skirted tennis players, but not until this year did we see play suits that really permit one to play without being constantly aware of her costume. It's the one piece affair that turned the tide.

This play costume is cut in one piece, with the skirt as an accessory that affords a dress when it is worn. The shorts and shirt are slim and streamlined. The top has a shirtwaist collar and squared short sleeves. A small pocket for a kerchief may be placed on the bodice. The buttons extend from the neckline to below the hips. While this outfit is styled for slimness, the essential width is not neglected. The shorts are voluminous enough for comfort in active play, but not so full that they resemble the bloomer.

The skirt is a dirndl affair shirred into a waist band. This entire costume makes up extraordinarily well in stripes used vertically. The kerchief in the pocket may be the same color as one of the stripes.

Style No. 5286 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20. Size 16 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material.

The keeper of the United States navy department's logs in the navy building at Washington, D. C., is Miss Ann Dunn. Commanders of navy ships each month send their log books to Washington to be filed by Miss Dunn.

The Clotilde Patterns for the Children

By Clotilde.

The very youngest members of your household take up most of your time, don't they? They have to be bathed and dressed, then undressed and bathed again. After that, it's the bedtime ritual. We think we've helped to eliminate some of this work by designing these pajamas. They are so styled that the tots can get into them without any assistance. And they have drop seats with no buttons, the seat being held in place by a belt in the back.

The garment buttons down the front. The sleeves may be long or short, and there may be a collar or not, as you choose. If a strictly tailored air is desired, give the pajamas a tailored collar and "frog" buttonholes. If the youngster is a girl she'll be enthusiastic about feminine trimming, so put ruffles around the neckline, sleeves, and closing.

You wouldn't want to use flannel at this time of year, so make the pajamas of cotton or washable silk. Both prints and plain shades are fashionable and practical.

Style No. 2148 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 2⅜ yards of 39 inch material, with 2¾ yards of ruffling for the version without collar and with short sleeves.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Keeping Dried Beef.

Dried beef will keep better if stored in a covered glass jar in the refrigerator rather than wrapped in parchment or waxed paper.

Take Off Excess Fat

without suffering a hungry moment, or taking strenuous exercises or harmful drugs

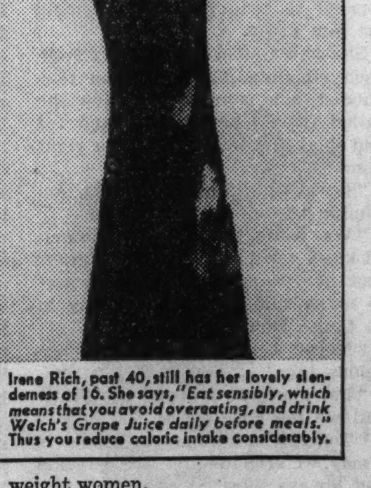
FROM coast-to-coast, you now hear women singing the praises of a thrilling new reducing method. A method which Dr. Damrau of New York demonstrated in tests among a group of intelligent and cooperative people who followed directions implicitly, was responsible for an average loss in weight of 7 pounds per month. Most amazing, this method does NOT call for special diet lists. You never suffer a hungry moment. Nor is it necessary for you to take strenuous exercises, or harmful drugs.

All you have to do is eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating, and drink ¾ of a glass of Welch's Grape Juice, mixed with ¼ of a glass of water, before meals and at bedtime. Thus reducing the caloric intake considerably.

How This Pleasant Way Takes Off Excess Fat!

Nothing could be easier, or more pleasant. Yet!—this is what happens. First, this delicious drink satisfies your craving for rich, sweet foods. You have less desire to overeat fattening foods—but you do feel comfortably full. Second, the grape sugar in Welch's is quickly consumed, and by this process helps nature to consume excess fat.

Thus weight is lost naturally and safely. And this remarkable method is just as beneficial and effective for overweight men, as it is for overweight women.



Irene Rich, past 40, still has her lovely slenderness of 16. She says, "Eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating, and drink Welch's Grape Juice daily before meals." Thus you reduce caloric intake considerably.

Watch One Thing Carefully

Follow this proved way to take off excess fat. Eat sensibly, which means that you avoid overeating—and be sure to use Welch's pure, aged, full-strength grape juice before meals. Always made from the pick of the grape crop. No water added; no artificial coloring. Good Housekeeping approved. Insist upon genuine Welch's Grape Juice for the results you want. For economy's sake—buy Welch's by the case.

NEW TYPE TOMATO JUICE THRILLS THE NATION

If you think all tomato juice is alike, try Welch's new vitamin-rich tomato juice for the thrill of your life. A noted chemist tested five brands and found Welch's Tomato Juice superior—larger Vitamin C content; as much Vitamin A as milk—and rich in Vitamin B. Welch's is so rich and thick, you can add ⅛ water, or ice, and still have a most delicious tomato juice. So it's economical to serve. Get Welch's Tomato Juice from your dealer today. It's pure, pasteurized, laboratory controlled and Good Housekeeping Approved. Double your money back if you don't say it's the finest tomato juice you ever tasted.

THE STORY TO DATE

● Joan Armstrong learns that Adelaide Noonan, with whom she'd attended secretarial school, has collapsed with tuberculosis just as she was about to start work as secretary to William Bowen, executive of an export firm. Dr. Deering, friend of Adelaide's father, has gotten the job for her and has now arranged to send her to his uncle's sanitarium in Arizona. Joan has longed to work, but agreed with her parents that she shouldn't deprive some needy girl of a job. She has refused to marry faithful Tommy Emerson, whom she doesn't love. Now Joan offers to hold down the job for Adelaide and send her the salary. With the aid of Bob Deering she wins the chance in spite of the misgivings of Bill Bowen, her employer. Joan moves into an apartment of her own. From Alice Daniels, Bowen's ex-secretary, who left his employment when she married, Joan learns that her employer is married and that his wife is in a sanitarium, insane except at intervals since the birth of her son. Her elder sister, Anita Hadley, takes care of Bill Bowen's child and household. At Christmas time Joan shops for little Bill Jr., as his aunt is ill, and dines with his father in the latter's den, where Joan has decorated a Christmas tree for her emloyer's son. The friendship between Joan and Bill Bowen becomes more personal. Tommy teases her about falling in love with her boss, and Joan begins to wonder. Yet she is happy in her work and the friendship of Bob Deering. When she tries to promote romance between the doctor and Adelaide, Bob shocks her by telling her that he loves not Adelaide but herself. Because she is rich, however, he does not ask her to marry him. Martha Larkin and Anita Hadley strike up a friendship that has the "defeat" of Joan for inspiration. Martha cultivates Anita and encourages the latter's jealousy of Joan. Joan accompanies Bill Bowen on a business trip to South America. The emotional attraction between them proves too strong. On their last night there Bill takes Joan into his arms, and she responds to his kiss.

INSTALMENT X.

(Copyright: 1939: Faith Baldwin Cuthrell.)

THE ROOM in which Joan stood was furnished in excellent taste. But the high ceilings, the great mosquito net draped over the bed, the latticed windows made it seem strange and unfamiliar. And the floor was cool tile, upon which a risen moon cast pools of silver light.

Everything had changed. When later she lay in bed under the fine gauze of the net and watched the shadows on floor and walls and ceiling, she reproached herself: It was my fault. I asked for it. I might have known.

It became evident to her that she must leave Bowen's employment, and the thought was bitter. It meant not alone ceasing to see the man for which she had formed an attachment, but going back to her old life. She was not in the position of the average girl who leaves her first competently served employer for another. She knew that the arguments her mother had used against her working would now be redoubled. She would no longer have the excuse of Adelaide's necessity.

Yet what about Adelaide? Had she not failed her? She could, of course, continue to send her the "salary," but the girl would be bound to discover the actual source —and besides, when she returned the job would not be there waiting for her. Some one would have filled it. Perhaps Martha, thought Joan with some distaste.

But the hours passed, the moonlit hours before the semi-tropical dawn and when that dawn came Joan had persuaded herself that no real harm had been done. The entire episode had been dictated, she argued, by unusual circumstances. It would not happen again; she would pledge herself that it did not. For it was easy to delude herself with all arguments, excuses, and promises because she so much wished to be deluded.

The Miami plane took off at seven in the morning. Bowen, as he had arranged on the previous evening, had early breakfast sent to Joan in her room. She was grateful for this; it postponed their meeting by a little while. But the encounter had to be faced, and, her bags packed and ready, she went down to meet him.

Tanned from the recent sun and wind, her uncommon pallor was not noticeable and her blue eyes were steady enough. And in the general excitement of getting off Bowen was extremely matter of fact. It happened that he had met a friend in the hotel who was to be a fellow passenger. All the way to Miami Joan had no word alone with him and sat looking out at the panorama of blue water and blue sky, regarding San Pedro and Port au Prince and the green island of Cuba without in actuality seeing anything at all.

Once he came across the aile to ask her if she were quite comfortable, and she fancied that his eyes held appeal and regret. Her own position seemed somehow strengthened by that. She felt in that moment the stronger of the two. Had he appeared to ignore last night altogether she did not know what she would have felt—shame, anger, unhappiness?

Arriving in Miami in the afternoon, they took an evening plane for New York. Most of the intervening time was spent by Bowen in telephoning to the office, to his house, to Remsen Kirk. But once they were on the plane, which carried, as it happened, few passengers on this trip, the inevitable discussion could no longer be postponed.

It began banally enough.

"Joan, will you ever forgive me?"

She said hardily, "It was probably as much my fault as yours."

"No, it was entirely my responsibility." He paused and added childishly, "Do you hate me for it?"

She said carefully, "Of course not."

"I've been a fool," he burst out, trying with an effort to keep his voice down in order not to attract attention from the curious. "I think from the very first I knew how I was going to feel about you."

She said steadily, "I felt that way, too."

There was a long silence. Then he said unhappily:

"I could almost find it in my heart to wish that you did not. You know, you understand my position, Joan."

She understood. The tears were in her throat and behind her lowered eyelids. She said after a time:

"Last night I determined to resign . . . to go back home, never to see you again. It was, it is the sensible thing to do. But today I couldn't bring myself to it. I wonder if you will understand. . . . I do like the work; I can't tell you how free, how alive it has made me feel—to believe that I am accomplishing something on my own. Something which has just to do with me as a person, for which no one else is responsible. I have been happy that I could make good because of Adelaide and my promise to her. Yet much happier on my own account."

"You deserve all credit," he told her swiftly.

"Thanks," she said, smiling a little. "That's nice of you. I have tried, and I honestly believe that if it weren't for all the old objections which still remain I could leave tomorrow and go out and get another job, were one vacant. At least I am sufficiently self-confident. But I like the office. I like the people. Aside from—from anything else I may feel for you, I like you—and to work for you. And it seems too absurd that in this day and age I should give that all up because it was moonlight last night and you lost your head, perhaps, and perhaps I lost mine. For just a minute."

He asked, "Head—not heart?"

Joan looked at him a moment. She said softly:

"I don't think you mean that. I—well, you were lonely, and you don't dislike me, and I was near——"

"Propinquity?" he inquired.

"Something like that. It's all quite understandable." She took a deep breath and said gravely, "You don't love me, you know, not really."

"I've been trying to tell myself that," he admitted, "for some hours. I haven't succeeded. And what about you?"

She said after a moment: "I don't know, Bill. I don't know whether I'm in love with my first job, which you symbolize, or with you. I don't, honestly."

He drew a quick breath.

"That's not very flattering," he said.

"No, I suppose not, but it's true."

AFTER a silence he began to talk to her about Ellen. How much, how passionately he had loved and still loved her — the memory of her as she had been. How the constant sense of loss and grief and resentment at the injustice of life ate at him day and night. "Nothing but unhappiness, Joan. . . . Any escape was seldom and never lasted long. And then suddenly you were there and I felt the years begin to slip from me and there was something more in life than just work, which was a drug, and grief, the antidote."

Talking, he built up a three-dimensional picture of her, not of one woman but of two. Ellen as she had been; of Ellen as she was now, with her brief lapses into the woman she had been long enough for hope, but too brief for hope fulfilled. He said. "I swear that in my heart I have been entirely faithful to her—until now.'

Joan was quite white under her tan. She said, "You mustn't say that, must not even think it."

He said: "I can't endure the thought of losing you—or the little I have of you, too. Your companionship, seeing you every day. If I promise—if I swear myself to silence, if we never speak of this again, will you go on as before?"

She did not say yes at once, although before they had left San Juan she had made up her mind that she at any event would go on as she had before. But the trip from Miami to Newark changed her mind a dozen times. She was clear-sighted; she could not delude herself entirely. Once she told him: "Things don't just stand still and mark time. You either go on — or stop altogether."

But before they reached the airport she had promised.

Bowen's car was waiting to drive them back to town. They sat side by side, not talking very much during the trip. The car stopped at Joan's apartment and Bowen got out with her. She said as the doorman came to take her bags, "I'll be at the office at nine."

"You needn't," he told her, laughing. "I'll allow you to be late under the unusual circumstances."

"I shan't be," she promised.

That somehow sealed their bargain. And curiously her heart lifted as she went into the house. It would all come right somehow. She was too young to look very far ahead.

"No one would have thought or said anything if it hadn't been for Larkin."

It was by now six-thirty or a little after on a clear late March morning. And Lily was already in the flat, as Joan had wired her to be. Breakfast was under way, and Joan, who had refused to stop for coffee before reaching home, was ravenous. She greeted Lily's wide smile with delight, unpacked a bag, showed her what she brought her.

"Have I time to bathe, Lily?"

"Yes'm. I just put the coffee on."

"A hot scented bath, a silken robe, and then breakfast. After which she dressed for a day at the office with her eyes on the clock. It seemed so long before she should see him again.

She had cabled her parents from each stopping place and had telephoned them from Miami. Now she called them when dressed and fed and she believed herself in her right mind.

"I waited till now; thought you wouldn't be up——"

"We weren't," said her mother. "I knew you'd call Yet your father rose at five and called the airport to make sure you were coming in on time. How are you?"

"Never better. It was a marvelous trip."

"I'm glad you enjoyed it. When will we see you?"

"Tonight. I'll come for dinner if I may. I brought you the perfume you always like."

But between tonight and dinner lay the day.

She was at the office at nine, and Bowen had not yet come in. There was a terrific stack of mail. The very important letters had been taken care of by Miss Harrington, but enough remained to make a busy day. Miss Harrington came into the office and closed the door behind her.

"So you're back. You'll find a long list of notations from me. How did things go?"

"Fine. Everything taken care of, smoothed over. The Andrews episode is forgotten. And Mr. Bowen seems satisfied that Norton will do very well.'

"That's good.' Miss Harrington sat down on the edge of the desk. She said slowly: "I hate to do it, but I'd better warn you. There's a good deal of talk in the office——"

"About me?"

"Yes. The trip."

Joan said angrily, "Alice Daniels went on trips with Mr. Bowen—once as far as the west coast."

"I know. But in this instance there's something back of the gossip. No one would have thought or said anything if it hadn't been for Larkin——"

"Martha!"

"Exactly."

"But why should she — I mean, why go out of her way to—O, it's disgusting!" cried Joan vigorously, her eyes blazing and her color rising, and knowing herself all the more indignant because her conscience was not quite clear. Which is human nature.

"You knew she had it in for you. And there is something I discovered while you were away. She's made a great friend of Anita Hadley."

"Miss Hadley?" Joan's jaw dropped; she could not believe her ears. "But how—why——?"

"As to how I haven't the remotest idea. But she's been seen here and there with her. Miss Hadley phones her here occasionally. And I myself saw them dining together one day last week. Martha waved at me. She looked—smug. She has something up her sleeve," said Miss Harrington firmly, "and if she can put the well known flea in the Hadley woman's ear about you she'll do it."

"But why on earth?" she began. "Does she think that Miss Hadley can take my job away from me and give it to her?"

"Stranger things have happened," said Miss Harrington cautiously. "I don't know what it's all about. But it's quite evident that she's behind the office gossip and that she has Miss Hadley's confidence. So I pass it all on to you for what it's worth. Perhaps it isn't worth anything, not even a smile. I hope so. But I like you, my dear, and I don't want to see you hurt."

"Thanks, Harry," said Joan. "You're a peach. I'll remember that." She broke off suddenly as her door opened and Bowen came in. Miss Harrington slid off the desk and smiled at him. "Glad to see you back," she said.

"We're glad to be back, aren't we?" he said, looking at Joan. He added, "Tell Mr. Kirk I'll be in to see him presently," and went on into his own office. "I hope he didn't hear anything," she said.

"The door was closed. Well, I must get back to the daily struggle," said Miss Harrington cheerfully. "If he does hear anything," she added, "it won't be in the office. It will be at home. Verbum sap."

"Sap," agreed Joan rather bitterly, "is right."

THE day wore on, fully occupied. And things were really just as they had been, to Joan's relief and secret disappointment. It seemed incredible that they could slip right back into the old relationship: "Take a letter, please. Will you telephone Warren & Co. for me? Get Hallam on the wire. And look up about the New England Machinery contracts. I want to talk to Thurber in Boston."

Then there were her notes on the conferences in Rio to get out. Once she lifted her hands from the keys and sat dreaming, not thinking of the business in hand. Not thinking of the goods imported from South America, the bright butterfly jewelry, the dolls, the hats, the herbs . . . but remembering that Bowen had said he hadn't thought about them either. . . . Not thinking about the heavy utilitarian machinery which the firm exported to that country, but of Rio's broad boulevards, of music coming from a café, starlight over Sugarloaf — and a night in Porto Rico.

At the end of the day she had her first personal word from him.

"We've done well, thanks to you. Tomorrow we can clean up that mail. I hope you're not awfully tired, Joan."

"I'm fine," she answered sturdily.

"Fine," he repeated, looking at her, "fine all through."

He sighed, his face darkened, and a moment later Joan left his office. He seemed haggard, almost distraught. She wondered suddenly if Miss Hadley had said anything to him.

She had said a great deal. She was waiting, up and dressed, on his arrival. She had halted his rush to Billy's room. Billy ws still asleep, she said; there would be time for that later. Meantime she felt it her duty to warn him that using this South American trip as a pretext to have his—his so-called secretary with him deceived nobody. Least of all herself.

Bowen had had enough of emotion. There is a time and place for everything. A scene before breakfast was not to his liking. He told her irritably that she did not know what she was talking about, nor did he, and meantime he must excuse himself; he needed a shower and a shave, if she didn't object.

But she did object, barring his way. The'd have this out here and now. She wouldn't stand for it. Secretary! That girl was no more a secretary than she was.

He said angrily: "Miss Armstrong fulfills all requirements. She acquits herself quite as well as any secretary in the organization. You carry what appears to be a personal rancor against her to uncommon lengths, Anita."

Anita said, trembling, that she wouldn't believe him on a stack of Bibles. It was all clear enough. He had met this girl somewhere, some time. Her coming into the office was an excuse to be near him, to have him near her. This talk about a girl whose place she had taken temporarily was a blind.

Why should Charles Armstrong's daughter have a job? She certainly didn't need it. Who other than an infatuated man would put up with her and her inexperience when experienced girls were starving for lack of work or in inferior positions? She hadn't believed in the legend from the beginning, and events were bearing her out. And it was rumored, she told him darkly, that he intended to go to another state and divorce Ellen in order to marry the girl.

But she had said what she had been waiting to say—thanks to her dear new friend Martha. And now there was just one more thing.

"Either you dismiss Joan Armstrong from your alleged employment at once," she told him, "or I will leave your house."

"Leave, then, by all means," he told her. He did not add, "and be damned," but so she construed it, her eyes filling with frightened and difficult tears. She listened for the slam of the door to tell her that he had gone through to his own apartment. It came. And she sat down, twisting her hands together. She had nowhere to go, no one in whom to confide.

Presently she rose and went, evading the curious glances of one of the servants whom she encountered in the hall, to her own room. There she sat down on a straight chair and pressed the knuckles of both hands into her temples. She was convinced that all she had said, believed, and heard was true.

How right Martha had been! Martha was, she now saw, her only friend, despite the difference in their ages. She had no friends, nor had had none. Acquaintances merely. She had been too wrapped up, she told herself, in William Bowen and his child, and in the thought of Ellen. She had been cheated all these years, had lived just for one man, ungrateful, cruel, duplicity itself. My poor sister!

After she had wept, not so much for Ellen as for herself, she began to plan. She had nowhere to go, but go she must, if only to bring Bowen to his senses. Thanks to a very generous allowance, she was more than adequately provided with funds.

There was one person who might help her, who would advise her, who could keep her in touch with events.

After she was sure that Bowen had left the house she ordered a belated breakfast, fresh coffee, fresh toast. The cook, amazed and a little resentful, set about her work, and Anita went in to see Billy. He had had his breakfast long ago. Miss Williams was getting him ready to go out. He had new toys, carved wood, brightly painted, and a gourd which rattled and a little robe of gay silk which his father had brought him, and ran to his aunt to show her his presents.

She caught him in her arms and moaned over him: "Poor child, poor forlorn baby, poor innocent orphan!" Miss Williams, her common-sense face blank with amazement, listened and coaxed Billy away by degrees. Such displays were not good for a child of his temperament.

"Forgive me," said Anita. "I——" She hesitated. Impossible to take this woman, whom she had never liked, of whom she was always jealous, into her confidence. She compromised. "I am going away for a while," she said quite unexpectedly. "I am not sure when I'll be back."

"O!" murmured Miss Williams, feeling far from depressed at the intelligence. Bowen's sister-in-law gave her the creeps; interfered with her care of Billy, with discipline, with any number of things. She asked, "Some arrangements will be made to care for Billy during my time off?'

"That," said Anita majestically, "lies entirely in Mr. Bowen's hands." The astonished nurse made no reply and was even more astonished when Anita, regarding her with wet eyes, murmured, "I beg of you not to let him forget me, and left the room.

This, said Miss Williams to herself, is very curious. A dark gentleman in the woodpile. Something not so nice in Denmark. Well, time will tell, she philosophized, and went next door to recapture Billy, who had escaped to the day nursery.

At eleven Anita called the office and asked to speak to Miss Larkin. "A personal call," she emphasized. Martha, answering her telephone, heard the guarded voice: "Martha? This is Anita Hadley. Something has happened. I must see you. Can you take a taxi and come up during your luncheon hour?"

Martha could, would, and did, consumed with curiosity. She may have planned on consuming food in her turn, but this was not to be. Anita had a soul above luncheon that day. She had packed several bags, and they lay waiting to be closed. Her personl things had vanished from the suite, and the rest of her belongings. Winter clothes and other things were in a large trunk. He would not begrudge her storage space, she reflected miserably.

"But what on earth?" cried Martha.

She had been taken directly to Anita's bedroom, the door closed mysteriously behind her, and now she stood there agape looking at the luggage and at Anita, hatted, ready for the street.

Anita motioned her to a chair and sat down herself on the edge of her bed, a mark of her extreme agitation, as she was a woman who rarely if ever sat on beds. She said:

"We had it out this morning."

"You and——?"

"My brother-in-law. It is quite true, all that I feared. He plans to divorce my darling, to install that wretched girl in her place."

IT SOUNDED like a novel by The Duchess. Martha was appalled. She herself had sowed the seeds, but she had not expected so sudden and exotic a growth as a result. She groped for words.

"You're sure? He said so?"

"Not in so many words. But when I gave him his choice, either I would leave him or he must dismiss the girl at once, he told me," reported Anita, weeping, "to go. When I have lived for him and his child, given them the best years of my life."

It sounded very odd, as if a deserted wife spoke theatrically, and Martha was considerably confused. She went to sit by Miss Hadley to put her arms around her timidly. She said:

"You poor dear! I'm so terribly sorry. Are you quite certain?"

"Of course – otherwise do you think"—Anita waved her hand at the heaped luggage—"do you think I would leave Billy if I were not compelled?"

Martha asked practically, adjusting herself to the situation:

"What will you do?"

"I have no one," said Anita, drowning in self-pity. "I turned to you. You understand the situation," she went on, excusing herself for this unheard-of confidence to a girl she had known a few weeks only, "and I thought you would help me. I hoped so."

"Of course!" cried Martha, forgetting how hungry she was, realizing only that she was triumphant. But was she? If Miss Hadley left for good? But she wouldn't. Martha thought shrewdly this was a bluff designed tc bring Bowen to time. And it would. She'd run his house too long; he and his child were dependent on her.

She saw herself as a liaison officer. She would keep her eyes and ears open. She said as much. She added that the whole office was buzzing with gossip.

"Of course," said Anita.

A little later Anita was installed at a quiet, good hotel, in a small but pleasant suite. She pledged Martha to utmost secrecy, riding with her in the taxi, the luggage piled around them and on the front seat. She was not to tell Mr. Bowen where Anita was.

"He'd never dream of asking me," Martha reminded her. "He doesn't know we know each other. At least, so I presume."

"That's so," said Anita. She clung to Martha's young hand. "You'll come often—you'll telephone me?"

Martha promised.

Escaping, she stopped at a drug store and had a frosted chocolate to sustain her. She would be late. But Allen was, as usual, not in the office. It wouldn't matter. As she was late, she might as well be later. She stopped at a florist's and sent a box of flowers to Anita's new address with a card on which she wrote her name and discreetly worded sympathy and allegiance.

Then she went back to work, smiling.

BOWEN wasn't smiling when he came into the office next morning. He was like two thunderclouds, and Joan looked at him with apprehension. She was not feeling very gay herself. Dinner last night at home had been difficult.

She had talked glibly of her trip, of the business which took her there, but she knew, as she was not insensitive, that there was a certain amount of constraint or reserve between her and her parents, although they listened with devoted attention. But the fact remained that for the first time in her life they were out of sympathy with her. Even when they had dissuaded her from seeking employment they had been in sympathy.

Now, what had happened?

Calling her to the inner office, bidding her close the door, Bowen told her. He said, standing:

"My sister-in-law has taken it upon herself to leave us."

"When?"

"Yesterday. We—had words after I arrived home——"

"About me?" asked Joan quickly.

"Well, yes." He looked uncomfortable. "She threatened to go, in her silly, dramatic way. So I said, 'Go.' Well, she's gone. I'm not worried about her," he went on. "She has plenty of money; she'll be all right. Billy, of course, is heartbroken. I don't know that he's really so fond of her," he added thoughtfully, "but he is used to her. That makes all the difference with children."

Joan said, white around the lips:

"If this has been my fault——"

"Nonsense! Anita is a neurotic woman," he said testily, "and where she got the idea——"

"What idea—specifically?"

"O, nothing—nothing at all. Well, I mustn't bore you with all this. If she should phone me here, put me on at once. I'll see her and try to persuade her——" He sighed deeply. "She hasn't been the most cheerful companion in the world," he admitted, "and I sometimes feel she is not good for the boy. Too exacting in her devotion, too nervous. But she is a link with his mother."

Joan stopped and they looked at one another for a moment. And then he said, "Well, let's get to work."

But a day or so later one of the columnists touched on the fact that William Bowen of the well known importing and exporting firm was most attentive to his beautiful and social register secretary, daughter of America's fourth wealthiest man. And added that Mrs. Bowen had been a hopeless invalid for many years.

The week ahead is an improvement over the recent past, especially after Tuesday; but money matters are still on the emotional side, so be cautious. Today: Good for contemplation, serious planning, social activities, relaxation.

Group Sharing

It is always a difficult matter to rise above whomever may be in close daily life with us if that person is selfish. For we bring out in others what our natures are calling for; and they bring out in us what their natures are calling for—thus we tend to gravitate to a certain level of the group in which we live. But we should always strive to be a little better, thus moving the group upward.

Parental Role of Confidant Often Difficult

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

She has no children or her own, but is adored by her nieces and nephews. What a wonderful mother she would make, I often think.

She was typing an article on the adolescent for me a few days ago, and when she brought it back she had rather a grim expression on her face, if such a pleasant twinkling person could be said to be grim.

"I liked what you said in your article," she began. "I only wish I could show it to a number of women I know." Then she stopped and looked even grimmer. "And I would like to ram it down the throats of a few of them."

Many discerning women with a real concern for other people's children, and a great many mothers who understand their own children and look at others not cherished and understood in the right way, find themselves feeling like that a great many times. They wish they could tell other women with children certain very vital things, but they are pretty nearly helpless. People who are indifferent or casual about their children resent even kindly advice. It is only through a more impersonal medium that they may be reached, by articles in newspapers and magazines, or by lectures or radio talks.

One of the interested mothers who is enjoying her own eight year old son has something to say on the above subject, at the same time that she asks a little help for herself. Here is part of her letter:

"Fortunately, my boy comes to me with any question, and some of them are sickening, I'll admit, but so far I have given explanations in such a way that the fun is taken from the subject in a decently expressed explanation, and given without any sense of shock or surprise on my part. He takes it and, when it is understood, somehow it isn't funny any more.

"Why won't mothers realize children go through this phase and get close enough to them to have them bring home each new expression, good or bad, for an explanation offered in a matter-of-fact way? For disgusting as some of it is, personally I feel that if they come to us it shows their minds still are clean, and their natural curiosity can be satisfied in a way to keep them so. But no, these children my boy plays with all come from really fine homes and it is rarely a mother thinks her cherub could possibly have picked up a dirty word or a disgusting rime, and only too often it's the very nicest boy who is spreading the mischief, but just wise enough to cover it.

"Strangely enough, it is the perfectly groomed man with a taste for vile stories who develops from the 'nice' little boy of today, so why not start to clear the thing away at the very beginning and so matter-of-factly that it just isn't funny, that's all?

"We [my son and I] have discovered where kittens come from, and are curious as to how God ever got the colt's long legs folded up in the mother's body. We know about glands in all parts of our bodies, so the feeding of the young is perfectly understandable. Right now, before an added year or two sets up a natural reticence, and before some older child gets in an explanation, I want to steer clear of the animal kingdom [which too many adults think is the answer to everything] and explain the human functions.

"I want to make it understood that the responsibility and great privilege of producing the young as our very own is something to be very proud of, and that we may have that experience when we have grown strong in mind and body, and also when the boy has an education to fit him to earn enough to provide for some girl he loves and thinks would be a nice mother, support a home like Daddy gives us, and then, they are ready for that cunning baby [like the one he wanted to bring home yesterday, Lord bless us].

"He is sensible and his mind is ready for all this in just this way, and the whole thing will be perfectly natural and understandable, stressing, of course, with each added year the necessity of clean mind and body.

"And now here comes my problem, to explain how that seed got into the pocket prepared for it in mother's body. A physician and a dozen other sources have not quite given me what I want, in that the answers are not wholly satisfying to the child mind. And that question will be asked, for his mind is surprisingly keen. If I fail him, leaving the impression there is something queer about it, I'm licked, and I'll lose that confidence which I have so far managed to instill, that 'Hey mom! what's this mean?' which I value as I value my life itself, a confidence I have preserved through some pretty tight spots.

"With the rare understanding your letters have shown, knowing the groundwork I have laid, can you help me on this point? I feel you can.

"Some good old-fashioned common sense plus a desire to get down inside that mind and body is needed. Even if mother does go to a formal without a wave, and with a skinned knuckle and two broken nails from fixing the roller on somebody's skooter sled, she is well repaid when two warm little arms go round her neck crushing the gown that was your only hope of getting by, and two moist lips with a wet kiss tell you, 'Gee mom, I hope you have a swell time. You're kinda nice. All the kids wish they had you for a mom.'

"Then you're more than repaid if, to cap it all, some exquisitely groomed lady says, 'My dear, with that smile and the light in your eyes you look like a girl at her first party! How do you do it?' You know you are half thrown together, there's probably a difference of 45 degrees in the angle of your makeup, but there's a warm spot inside, and your husband thinks you're grand! And together how you do love that little barbarian, so the world's a grand place and the party is grand, too."

Contract According to Culbertson

Leads Against Slam Bids Come Under Two Headings

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

In leading against a slam it is necessary to make a choice between a protecting lead and an attacking lead. A protecting lead is an attempt to lead in such a way as not to jeopardize any possible honor combinations held by the defenders, or to expose the position of any queen or jack which the declarer might otherwise be forced to finesse for. An attacking lead is an attempt to defeat the contract immediately, before declarer can get in, or to take advantage of the time factor, and establish a trick before declarer can force out a stopper and establish a suit for discards. Here is an example of an attacking lead:

North and South have reached six spades by the following bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 spades	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
4 diamonds	Pass	4 spades	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 no trump	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

♠8 6 3 ♥K J 5 ♦9 7 4 2 ♣8 4 3

After having carefully reviewed the bidding and looked at his own holding, West decides that the only hope of defeating the contract lies in the ability of his side to set up a heart trick and then cash this trick, assuming East can get in with either a club or a spade trick. From the bidding, the dummy is probably marked with whatever strength the North and South partnership has in hearts, and accordingly the heart lead, even though it is away from a tenace holding, should not sacrifice any trick which would not be lost otherwise. West opens a low heart rather than one of his honors merely to leave the declarer in the dark as to the exact holding in case both the ace and queen are in the dummy. The complete hand follows:

NORTH
♥A 9 2
♦Q J 8
♣A Q J 9 5

♠8 6 3
♥K J 5
♦9 7 4 2
♣8 4 3

EAST
♠9 7 2
♥Q 7 6 4 3
♣K 7 2

SOUTH

Without a heart opening, declarer would merely lose the club finesse, and would then discard one of his hearts on one of the dummy's good clubs.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	4 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

West, on lead against the slam contract, holds:

♠7 4 3 ♥K 10 9 8 6 ♦5 4 3 ♣10 9

After carefully reviewing the bidding, West decides that although North and South are strong in honor strength, the combined hands of the partnership have only one suit in common—the trump suit. West knows from his own holding that he has the hearts massed in back of the declarer and that furthermore there is a good chance that East has diamonds and clubs in back of the dummy. It would therefore seem that the chief hope that South will have of fulfilling his contract will be on a cross ruff. West accordingly opens one of his low trumps. The complete hand follows:

NORTH

♠7 4 3
♥K 10 9 8 6

With any other lead but a trump, the declarer would be able to take two diamond tricks, a heart trick, a club trick and eight trump tricks on a straight cross ruff. With the opening trump lead reducing dummy's ruffing power by one, the declarer has no way of fulfilling his contract.

If a no trump slam is bid, a waiting lead is practically always indicated. Of course, a player fortunate enough to hold K Q of one suit and ace of another obviously has an attacking lead, but this holding is rare. Holding Q J 10 and an ace, the queen lead is also obvious, but it is really more of a waiting lead, unless partner should hold the king, which is unlikely. The lead of an ace, which is sometimes a good chance against a suit slam, is practically suicidal against no trump.

Against a suit slam, the probability of discards is so great that an attacking lead is likely to prove more effective in a majority of cases. A protecting lead is proper only when the bidding has shown that opponents probably have no second long suit, and the hand offers no good attacking lead; or where the leader has opponents' side suit well tied up, or has reason to believe his partner holds strength in it.

When dummy has forced in another suit [or when the bidding suggests the possibility of a concealed suit] an attacking lead must be chanced. The best chance then is to lead from a king or a queen in a side suit, hoping partner holds queen or king, thereby establishing a trick before the defenders' control card can be forced out; or to lay down an ace, or to lead a singleton [against a small slam].

In defending against a grand slam the possibilities are considerably narrowed, as the object is to secure one trick instead of two. The same general principles apply as to choice of leads, except that a waiting lead should more frequently be employed.

When it seems that opponents have two set-up suits it may be necessary to attempt to locate partner's ace [if he should have one] on the opening lead. Except for this and the obvious lead of an ace if one is fortunate enough to hold one, a waiting lead must usually be employed. The best lead is often indicated by the opponents' bidding, that is, the unbid suit, except where there is reason to suspect a fake cue bid by opponents.

Here are three bridge atrocities:

2. Lead of a singleton trump.
3. Lead of an ace against a no trump small slam.

Because it is seldom profitable to double a slam contract for penalties [the information given to declarer will outweigh the possible gain] a double of a slam contract in the Culbertson system is made to direct a lead. Briefly, the double requests the leader not to make his normal opening. It is a signal that some surprise opening will fit the leader's partner's hand perfectly.

When leader's partner has bid a suit, and then doubles, the leader must not lead that suit, but must lead some other. Similarly, when a grand slam has been bid, and declarer's side has mentioned three suits in the course of the bidding, the normal lead would appear to be the unbid suit; a double directs the leader not to open the unbid suit, but to open one of the suits declarer's side has bid.

In choosing the proper suit to lead after a lead directing double, the leader will usually have a choice between two suits [the trump suit and the "normal" opening being eliminated]. His selection in such cases will be based principally on bidding inferences and the texture of his hand. For example, with a length in one of the suits the opponents have bid, the leader may expect his partner to be void, so that the double meant, "I can ruff the first round of their side suit." In other cases the leader will have a singleton; his partner may have the ace of that suit or a sure trump stopper; and having placed the leader with a singleton, doubles so that the singleton will be opened and a ruffing opportunity established.

South's contract is seven spades and West opens the ten of trumps. Assuming that you can see how every card lies, can you fulfill the grand slam contract?

Answer: South can take thirteen tricks as follows: Wins first trick with the spade ace and leads club ten. West must cover or concede the trick. Dummy's king wins. South's hand is reëntered with a trump to the king and the nine of clubs is led through West who again must cover. Dummy wins. Now dummy cashes its remaining trumps and the A-K of hearts, reducing to the Q-2 of hearts, the eight of diamonds and the seven of clubs. When the last spade is led East must find a discard from this holding: ♥J 10, ♦K Q, ♣8. If East discards a heart, dummy can cash the queen and deuce and East is squeezed again. If East lets go the club eight, dummy cashes the seven, and again East must make a ruinous discard. Finally, if East lets go a diamond, South lets go the club, and South then can cash the three diamonds and the heart queen.

Temperature Is the Secret of Good Custard

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1939: By the Chicago Tribune.]

A fine-textured, dry-eyed custard is a queen among desserts. An overfirm, weepy one is no dessert at all. The secret of good custard making is in the cooking temperature. Too much heat is responsible for most custard ills—the hardness of texture, wateriness, and lack of flavor about which cooks often complain.

There are two types of custard from which innumerable dessert varieties may be developed: the sort, or "boiled" kind [which never, never should be boiled], and the baked custard, a firmer product of the oven. Oven custards are best baked in a pan of water so that they don't get too big a dose of heat.

SOFT CUSTARD.
[Serves Four.]
2 eggs or 4 yolks
2 cups milk
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla

Beat eggs slightly as milk is scalding in the top of a double boiler. Add sugar and salt to eggs. Add hot milk, stirring constantly, and return to the double boiler. Cook and stir over hot, not boiling, water until a clean spoon dipped into the custard will come out with a thin coating. Cool quickly. Add vanilla. Serve by itself for dessert or as a sauce for puddings, fresh fruit, or cake.

VARIATIONS: Coffee custard is made by substituting 1 cup of strong coffee for a cup of the milk.

Orange custard may be made by substituting a cup of orange juice for a cup of milk.

Chocolate custard calls for a square of unsweetened chocolate and 2 extra tablespoons of sugar. Melt chocolate in the milk and make according to the foregoing recipe.

Caramel custard needs two extra tablespoons of sugar also. Melt the sugar to a light golden brown in a heavy pan, pour into the scalding milk, stir until dissolved, and proceed as with plain soft custard.

Baked custard is the very same thing except for the method of cooking. This recipe is just a little larger, but milk, eggs, and sugar are in the same proportion.

BAKED CUSTARD.
[Serves Six.]
3 eggs
3 cups milk, scalded
6 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat eggs slightly. Scald milk. Add sugar and salt to eggs, and pour scalded milk over the mixture. Pour into six custard cups, place the cups in a pan containing an inch of hot water, and bake at 325-350 degrees for about 30-35 minutes, or until an inserted knife will come out clean.

If the baked custard is to be cooked in one container instead of six small ones, add another egg to the recipe. The fourth egg is needed to make a large custard firm. The baking period will be 10 minutes or so longer if the custard is baked in one dish.

VARIATIONS: Baked custards may be varied in the same ways as are soft custards. For coffee or orange custard, replace half the milk with strong coffee or orange juice. For chocolate custard, add 1½ squares chocolate, melted, and 3 extra tablespoons sugar. For caramel custard, add 3 extra tablespoons sugar and caramelize the whole amount.

CUSTARD FRUIT PIE.
3 eggs
½ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 cups milk, scalded
2 cups halved sweetened strawberries, or
2 cups other fruit
½ cup cream, whipped
Pastry lined pie plate

Beat eggs slightly, add sugar and salt, and pour the scalded milk over the mixture, stirring constantly. Add fruit, pour into pastry lined pie plate which has been brushed over with white of egg, and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven, 350 degrees. Cool and cover pie with whipped cream.

Check These Points if Your Sun Room Is Hard to Heat

Since your sun room doubtless has a large number of windows it loses heat faster than other rooms, and efficient weather stripping and tight fitting double windows will help make the room warmer.

Then too, insulation of walls and ceilings will help.

If you have warm air heating it may help to install a larger warm air duct, and change its position slightly to get a better flow. [The sun porch is usually farthest, horizontally, from the furnace.]

If you have a radiator heating plant you may find on consultation with a heating contractor that what is needed is a little more radiation.

The Stamp Collector

—By Richard McP. Cabeen—

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

These stamps are furnished through the co-operation of Jan Cithurus of the Polish postoffice department at Warsaw and are described in an adjoining column.

On the anniversary of Armistice day last Nov. 11 the republic of Poland commemorated the twentieth anniversary of the restoration of Polish independence and the proclamation of the Polish republic by issuing a set of pictorial stamps. The subjects of the designs were selected from events in the troubled history of the Polish nation and were allocated to the values of the series in numerical and chronological order so that they present a continuous outline.

The 5 groszy is printed in orange-vermilion and pictures Boleslav I., nicknamed Chrobry [the mighty], at Gnesen, A. D. 1000. The 10 gr., green, shows Casimir III., called "The Great," at Cracow, in 1634. The 15 gr. red brown, includes the portraits of Wladislaus V. [Jagiello] and Queen Jadwiga. The 20 gr., dull blue, shows Casimir IV. [Jagiellonczyk], who was king of Poland from 1447 until 1492. The 25 gr., purple, bears the portrait of Sigismund II., surnamed Augustus, who is noted for having accomplished the union of Poland and Lithuania in 1569.

The 30 gr., scarlet, pictures a meeting between Stephen Bathory and a peasant who set fire to the fortress during the assault on Wielkie Luki in 1580. Generals Zolkiewski and Chodkiewicz are shown on the 45 gr., black, and the renowned John III. [Sobieski] at Vienna in 1683, on the 50 gr., magenta. The 55 gr., ultramarine, bears a scene at the promulgation of the constitution of May 3, 1791, and the 75 gr., deep blue-green, pictures Generals Dombrowski and Kosciuszko and Prince Joseph Poniatowski.

The one zloty and two zloty values bear scenes in two revolutions, the first being in orange and showing the uprising of 1830-1831, and the second in lake with a view of the national government troops under Romuald Traugutt in the rebellion of 1863-1864. The final value of the series is the three zloty, printed in slate blue, which shows a portrait of Marshal Josef Pilsudski with a flag and battle scene in the background. This stamp has no explanatory inscription as is the case with other values, but bears the date 11-XI.-1918 across the bottom of the design.

This independence issue was designed by three Polish artists, W. Boratynski being credited with all but the two highest values, M. Watorek with the two zloty, and Z. Rozwadowski with the three zloty. M. Dutczynski engraved the 5, 45, and 50 gr., and one zloty dies, J. Piwczyk, the 10, 30, 55, and 75 gr. dies, and M. R. Polak the remainder.

The stamps are engraved and were manufactured at the government printing works in Warsaw. All designs are in the form of upright rectangles except the three zloty. The perforation is 12½ by 12¾ for all values except the three zloty, which is perforated 12¾ by 12½.

marked by a special 25 groszy commemorative stamp which was placed on sale on Nov. 11. This stamp, which is identical in size and details of manufacture and perforation with the lower values of the independence issue, shows a miner, a mountaineer, and a Boy Scout as they step over an overturned frontier post. The design is by W. Boratynski and the engraving by Wl. Vacek. The stamp is dated 2-X.-1938.

Stamp Notes.

The appropriations committee of the house of representatives has refused to grant $6,500 for the operation of the philatelic exhibition truck of the postoffice department, which was scheduled to start on a tour of the country in a few weeks. Philatelists are placing their hopes in the senate appropriations committee.

There will be five values in the Nicaraguan stamps which are to be issued in memory of Will Rogers on March 28. The total face value is 15 centavos. Will Rogers is revered in Nicaragua because of his aid for those who suffered in the earthquake at Managua in 1931. Upon hearing of the catastrophe he donated $5,000 and was instrumental in securing help for the people of Nicaragua.

The Leatherstocking Stamp club of Cooperstown, N. Y., with the coöperation of the baseball centennial committee, will issue first day covers in connection with the commemorative baseball stamp which, it is understood, will be placed on sale at Cooperstown this summer. Full details may be obtained by writing to the stamp club.

Tourist Finds Mormons Friendly and Interested in Drama

Theater Used as an Agency of Education

By Burns Mantle.

Pasadena, Cal.—[Special.]—The Mormons are a friendly people. And such proselyting as they do they evidently save for the home folks. I have been living with them for three days, and no one has approached me yet as a prospective church member, or even suggested that I might be interested [in an academic sense, of course] in the subject of polygamy.

This, however, is still a favorite topic with my friend, the chocolate salesman, with whom I rode from Ogden to Reno. [The ice cream and chocolate consumption in Reno, incidentally, he assured me is terrific. Keeping the divorcées cool and contented, I assume.]

The chocolate salesman, on his first visit to Utah, took a tour with a guide and when the guide asked if there were any questions my friend, a little hesitantly, wanted to know how about polygamy. Of course, he said, he knew it was against the law, but he had heard that the church had held to one law only, and that the law of the church, which still advocated, or at least condoned, plural marriages.

The guide, an officer of the church, replied politely that there were many untruthful and exaggerated statements regarding the affairs of the church. There were no better or more loyal upholders of the law than the Mormons. And there he would let the matter rest.

My friend stuck to the subject, however. "Is it true," queried he, looking the churchman right in the eye, "is it true that Brigham Young had thirty-five wives?"

The guide, he tells me, frowned, but only a gentle frown; smiled indulgently and replied, as though he might be answering a very young person:

"That is a sample of the exaggerations of which I spoke," said he. "Brother Brigham did not have thirty-seven wives!" He paused to permit the truth to sink in. "Brother Brigham had nineteen wives—and thirty-seven children! You see how the truth is twisted."

The salesman, having four children and thinking of what thirty-seven little dears could do, even to an assortment of homes, assured me that he quickly subsided, still curious, but for the moment content.

The Mormons are also greatly interested in the drama. Both in stories of the drama relayed from what might be jokingly termed the outside world, and in the production of drama within their communities. Brigham Young university in Provo, for example, where I tarried briefly on my way to the Pacific coast, has a generous enrollment of drama students and a little theater group that, under the direction of Dr. Earl Pardoe, who used to be an actor himself, has produced such timely plays as the Kaufman-Hart "You Can't Take It With You" and Sidney Howard's "Yellow Jack." The Howard piece, he tells me, was especially successful with the college audiences, as, naturally, it would be.

Dr. Herald L. Clark, the dean of Brigham Young university, which is the last of the schools to be directly under the control of the church and which has a student enrollment of some 3,500, assures me that the church has always laid great store by the drama as a useful and proper agency in the education of the young.

They were still toying with spring blizzards in Utah. The valleys were blanketed and the mountain tops glistening with deep snows. The ride from Provo to Logan, by way of Salt Lake, was a little monotonously beautiful. The State Agricultural college is located at Logan, and here some 2,600 bright-faced, clear-eyed, physically wholesome specimens of youth are being educated, both in the arts and sciences and the honest pursuits of the farmer and stock raiser. Well, after a three-hour scenic railway ride up from Ogden I'll say they have plenty of room in which to practice agriculture. And if the graduate scientists can do anything about the roadbed and car-springs of the electric railway they will have been of great service to mankind.

It is a rock-ballasted roadbed. I know, because every time I came down on my cushioned seat I felt the rocks. I thought at first it was because my seat was at the end of the car, but just as I was about to move I noticed that a couple of young ladies in the center were also bouncing toward the ceiling and missing it by inches.

Later that evening a hero stepped out of the group and offered to drive me back to Ogden next day. In fact, he was as insistent as a polite and friendly alumnus of Brigham Young university could be, and I accepted. He would risk the misplaced viscera, he said, but he was determined I should not leave this state with a black mark against Logan in my memory. And I didn't. We drove down through a gorgeous mountain pass in a snowstorm and were back in Ogden in an hour and a half instead of the three hours the trolley takes.

I broke another California state record getting into Sacramento. It was preparing to rain, and did drizzle a little, to the confessed joy of the citizenry. Practically everybody can, practically everybody does, arrive in California with the sun, when it is sunning. To go in with a rain is, they assure me, unusual, to say the least.

The state, in the person of one of its younger and more affable servants, took me in charge here and I may say the service was perfect.

A sweet, clean city, Sacramento. The state drove me about that I might see the gardens and the homes. And at noon I met an acre of women bright with the colors of spring and eager to become informed about anything I could inform them.

They are excited about the possibility of a revived road next season in these western centers. They have been doing well with the better attractions the last year or two. Just now Ethel Barrymore is touring the play centering the centenarian in "White Oaks" and playing to huge audiences. Edwin Schallert's review in the Los Angeles Times this morning insisted that the glory that was Greece, the grandeur that was Rome, and the celebrity that is Ethel Barrymore's." Ethel couldn't reasonably expect much more than that in the way of a welcome.

Haydn B Flat Symphony Is on New Recording

Among Victor's new releases is a recording by the Boston Symphony orchestra, Serge Koussevitzky, conductor, of the symphony in B flat, number 102, of Haydn.

This symphony is a product of Haydn's maturity, when his conception of symphonic form had taken on new breadth and solidarity. It was written during his London period, after he had been freed from his hard driven servitude in the Esterhazy household. This performance of the work is serene and polished, yet does not lack the moderate warmth of color which even the classical Mr. Haydn requires.

From the works of Henry Purcell, England's greatest composer, Conductor John Barbirolli of the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra has compiled a suite for strings. It consists of Dido's song of lament from "Dido and Aeneas," an opera dating from 1689, and of excerpts from the incidental music to "King Arthur," "The Gordian Knot Untied," and "The Virtuous Wife." The recording was made by Mr. Barbirolli and his orchestra and contains some of Purcell's stateliest and loveliest music.

Mr. Barbirolli is to be commended both for the excellence of his idea and the skill of its execution. That is an effective handling by the English horn of Dido's sorrowing melody.

Among the new Victor records put out on single disks the popular flavor is strong. There is Feodor Chaliapin doing "Black Eyes" with the Aristoff choir and a balalaika orchestra. On the other side of the record the matchless voice of the late Russian basso is projected with impelling power in Rubenstein's "The Prisoner."

Richard Crooks gives a vibrant and smooth textured rendition of "Il Mio Tesoro" from "Don Giovanni," and "Una Furtiva Lacrima" from "L'Elisir d'Amore." Beniamino Gigli presents "Santa Lucia" with a great many unexpected accents and rhythmic twists. The result is a theatrical effect under which the average folk song does not bear up well. The other side of the record is filled by Mr. Gigli's singing of the "Romanza" from "Plaisir d'Amour." The contralto of Marian Anderson contributes to this group of vocal recordings two spirituals, "Were You There?" and "I Can't Stay Away."

In the violin department Kreisler plays his own two pleasant little trifles, "La Gitana" and "Liebesleid." Heifetz's masterful fiddling is heard in Saint-Saëns' "Havanaise" with the London Symphonic orchestra, John Barbirolli conducting.

Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia orchestra offer a precious bit in the new Victor release of Erik Satie's haunting Gymnopédies, numbers one and two. The Boston "Pops" orchestra, Arthur Fiedler, conductor, has recorded two Hebraic pieces, "Eili Eili," arranged by Agide Jacchia from notations of Shalitt, and "Rachem," by Manna-Zucca.

Midway Music

Four unusual items are listed for the University of Chicago this spring. On April 16 and 18 Georg Philipp Telemann's chamber opera, "Pimpinone," will be presented, with Joy Fairman, soprano; Roy Schuessler, baritone, and Siegmund Levarie, conductor, at the Reynolds club theater. The University of Michigan Little Symphony, under Thor Johnson, will play in Mandel hall on April 23. On May 14 the combined forces of the university's choir and orchestra will be led by Mack Evans in a performance of Fauré's "Requiem" in the Rockefeller Memorial chapel. Finally, on May 4, 7, 9, 11, and 14, the Kolisch quartet will give five programs, on each of which will be played one of the last five quartets of Beethoven and one by Béla Bartók.

"Big Blow" Will Have Premiere on Tuesday

By Cecil Smith.

"Big Blow," a drama of turbulent human emotions before, during and after a Florida hurricane, relights the Great Northern theater on Tuesday night. The playhouse, under lease to the Federal Theater project, which is producing "Big Blow," has been dark since the departure of "The Mikado" on Feb. 25, except for the immutable schedule of Sunday afternoon concerts by the Illinois Symphony orchestra.

Theodore Pratt is the author of "Big Blow," which began life as a short story, developed into a full length novel, and finally became transformed into a play. The locale is a region of southern Florida unvisited by the tourist trade, where the "poor whites" are still said to maintain many primitive characteristics, including a total lack of openmindedness toward "furriners" from up north.

Things begin to pop and crackle in the story when a Nebraskan, accompanied by his aunt and his invalid mother, migrates to this unreceptive region. His initial move, the building of a log cabin stouter and more livable than the flimsy shacks of the natives, arouses instant resentment. This antagonism does not cool in the least when the young interloper falls in love with a local girl.

Just what complications of high feeling the situation might lead to, the audience is not allowed to guess. For a terrific hurricane comes along, forcing every one in the community to run for shelter to the log cabin—the only building strong enough to withstand the storm. Under these circumstances reconciliations take place, and the future of the Nebraskan and his sweetheart becomes brighter at the final curtain.

The actors in "Big Blow" are drawn, of course, from the rolls of the Federal Theater project. Fred Hagan, the leading man, is the brother of Lyle Hagan, now on tour in the rôle of Abraham Lincoln in the Federal theater production of "Prologue to Glory." Fred Hagan studied at Augustana college and at the Goodman theater. He is a direct descendant of Lincoln's sister Sarah. Kay Fisher, the heroine, hails from Springfield, Ill., and went to school at Stephens college, Columbia, Mo.

Victor Sutherland is the director of the production. Settings are by Hal Kopel and costumes by Clive Rickabaugh. The theater will be dark Monday nights. The only matinée each week will be on Saturday.

In making a practical success of his play, "Angela Is Twenty-Two," now at the Selwyn theater, Sinclair Lewis has proved himself an exception to the accepted rule that an author cannot succeed in more than one medium. For while "Angela Is Twenty-Two" is, perhaps, not of the literary caliber of Mr. Lewis' best novels, it does maintain a level of interest well above the average.

I am inclined to suspect that Mr. Lewis' reputation is his own worst enemy, and that a comparably good play by most of our standard playwrights would not have to endure the suspicious critical approach which inevitably greeted Mr. Lewis' brain child. Let Clifford Odets, or George S. Kaufman, or Maxwell Anderson write a novel, and his experience would be the same. It is no easy task for an author to transfer his ideas from one medium to another. That Mr. Lewis has succeeded well is attested by the ease and naturalness with which a competent cast is able to make his play register with the audience.

Audrey Christie, the pert little dancing comedienne of "I Married an Angel," at the Grand Opera house, has appeared here only once before—in the touring company of "Of Thee I Sing." New York audiences did not see her in any identifiable capacity until later, when she won a good hand for her portrayal of "Stonewall" Jackson, the girl of unshakable innocence in "Sailor Beware." She prepared for these opportunities by becoming and remaining for some time a chorus girl. Among the earlier musical comedies whose line she graced were "Good News," "Follow Thru," "Sons o' Guns," and "Sweet and Low."

When you consider the two years of uncertainty preceding David O. Selznick's choice of Vivien Leigh to play in the movie version of "Gone With the Wind," Brock Pemberton's speedy astuteness in finding three qualified Cindy Lous for the three "Kiss the Boys Goodbye" companies seems remarkable. Lucia Lull, the heroine of our Harris theater cast, and Helen Claire, the New York Cindy Lou, both reached their parts from Alabama by way of Broadway casting agencies. Ann Fairleigh of the newly formed southern company is a Kentuckian. Miss Lull, fully as appealing in private life as on the stage, tells me that she spent five years looking for a rôle in New York before she found this one, in which her marked southern accent could be an asset instead of a deterrent.

What does the itinerary of a successful road show look like? Consider the career of that hearty comedy, "What a Life," before it reached the Erlanger theater here. The tour began in Boston. After skipping to Toronto it retraced its steps and played Buffalo and Rochester, N. Y. It then moved in a relatively straight line to Cleveland and Cincinnati. A big jump to Madison, Wis., and engagements in Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Milwaukee followed, then a big zig-zag to St. Louis and Detroit. Returning to the east coast, the company played Philadelphia, Baltimore, and Washington before returning westward to Pittsburgh and Chicago. This somewhat erratic course was prescribed by the availability of theaters in the various cities.

The first American performances of Karel Capek's "White Sickness" will be presented by the Hull House players Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings.

In the Federal ballet program at the Blackstone theater Bentley Stone wears a costume formerly owned by Vaslav Nijinsky in his solo dance, "Sarabande." The garment is the property of Allen Tanner of Chicago, who received it from Sergei Diaghileff in the days when Nijinsky was the bright star of the Ballet Russe. Mr. Stone confesses that the costume is a bit threadbare, and will have to be strengthened considerably before he can dare to wear it.

"Guns and Castanets," the modernized version of "Carmen," continues to arouse the greatest interest of any item in the Federal ballet bill. Quite apart from the dancing and music, the decorative aspects of the production deserve attention. Clive Rickabaugh as scenic designer and John Pratt as costumer have devised an artistically mature and harmonious picture. Unfortunately for the WPA, this is Mr. Pratt's swan song, for he has left the project.

Several child radio performers will appear in "The Three Musketeers" at the Jack and Jill players' Saturday morning Civic theater performance this week-end. Among them are Jerome Walter, Marvin Himmel, Cornelius Peeples, and Franklin Adams. Marie Agnes Foley directs the production.

"Knickerbocker Holiday," the musical starring Walter Huston, started off on its road tour in Philadelphia last week. Since seven cities precede Chicago in the itinerary we need not expect the show to reach us before May.

Present indications—always subject to change—presage a Chicago première of Orson Welles' Shakespearean synthesis, "Five Kings" [Part I.], at an unnamed theater April 24. Boston opinion on this daring omnibus was somewhat mixed at the opening, with a preponderantly favorable reaction. Every one liked Mr. Welles' Falstaff and Burgess Meredith's Prince Hal.

AWARD OF MERRITT

Krupa's Faces Dramatize His Jungle Drums

There was no Panther room to greet Gene Krupa last week at his Chicago debut in the College Inn of the Hotel Sherman—but there were plenty of cats. Delays in construction prevented the opening of the new room, which is now scheduled for its première next Friday. But nobody minded, for Krupa was there, and the jitterbugs were there, and jive was the order of the night.

Krupa is a master of the art of dramatizing the drums. His own facial contortions are more than just reflexes from the strenuous work of drum beating. They are histrionic in origin and electrifying in their effect—at least on the ardent swing fans. Using the resonant tom-tom type of drum rather than the strident snare, Krupa accomplishes what many good swing drummers just miss—a modern counterpart to the hypnotic spell of the tom-toms of the African bush country. The best example of this is his specialty number, "Blue Rhythm Fantasy," in which the fourteen members of the band join Krupa at the drums.

Swing, they tell us profoundly, is dead. If so, here in Chicago, Krupa and Crosby and the Stuff called Smith are playing a pretty lively funeral march.

The Empire Room of the Palmer House has another new act to offer—the Lorraine Sisters, a singing trio that joined Orrin Tucker's band recently. They replace the popular Bailey Sisters, who were given an early release to enable them to fulfill an engagement that originally was scheduled for a later date. With Billy Rayes, juggling impersonator, the Lorraines are proving strong competition for Caskey and Crawford, dance team; Jack Williams, tall tap dancer, and José Castro, Mexican dancer.

With an eye toward the new show due March 31, Chez Paree's indefatigable Fred Evans has started rehersals with the Adorables. There will be at least five new girls in the famous Chez line. The music for the new show, of course, will be furnished by Russ Morgan's orchestra. Russ has caught on as a fourth headlining star in the Fritzel-Jacobson extravaganza.

Connie Boswell, best known and most talented of the singing sisters, comes to the Colony club Friday night for an engagement scheduled for two weeks. The Boswell name is by now something of a standard mark of musical excellence, established as such by years of stage, radio, club, and phonograph popularity. Miss Boswell follows Peggy Fears, who is completing her fourth week.

Boswelling the Bistros:

The Balinese room has veered from its entertainment policy by the width of a piano bench. Margaret English carries on the feminine singer policy, but adds her own piano accompaniment. . . . Among the nicer bits of coöperation in café floor shows is the way Jay Mills blends his own very commendable dancing into the routines of the Harriet Smith Lovely Ladies in the Edgewater Beach hotel's Marine dining room. . . . Speaking of Mills, he is playing a return engagement until April 16, when, rumor has it, Ray Herbeck's orchestra will bow to Chicago. . . . What are all the King's horses and all the King's men going to do evenings and Sunday afternoons around Chicago after Wayne has his getaway night at the Drake hotel's Gold Coast room on April 21? . . . Latest addition to the town's rhumba bands is Pedro de Leon, who tries to get the jitterbugs into the conga groove at the College Inn while Gene Krupa is taking a shower and rubdown between workouts. . . . Eastern advices are to the effect that Freddie Fisher and his Schnickelfritzers will come into a Rush street café April 12, and that Artie Shaw, new king of swing in the east, will stop over night at the Aragon ballroom about the middle of April. . . . Bobby Haggart, bass viol player with Bob Crosby, now offers "Dogtown Blues," a melody dedicated to his home town, Douglastown, N. Y. . . . There are a number of excellent orchestrations of "Deep Purple" around town, but a strong entry for honors as the individual champion "Purpler" is Sammy Williams, when he sits down at the organ at Gibby's. . . . Wingy Mannone closes at the Off Beat club Wednesday, but the Basin Streeters, two boys and a girl, will continue their hot harmony. . . . Stuff Smith has commemorated his successful run at the Blue Fountain room by writing a swingy number called "Swinging at the La Salle."

Vaudeville

Shirley Ross, popular motion picture songstress, shares starring honors with Harriet Hoctor, the ballerina, on the Chicago theater's stage show this week. The show also offers Frank Goby, ventriloquist, and Hal Silver, tight-wire star. On the screen is "Midnight," starring Claudette Colbert, Don Ameche, John Barrymore, Elaine Barrie Barrymore, Francis Lederer and Mary Astor.

The Palace theater is holding over its stage and screen bills. The former includes Doris Rhodes, radio song star, the Chester Hale girls and other acts. W. C. Fields, Charlie McCarthy and Edgar Bergen are to be seen in the current film, "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man."

Headlining the State-Lake theater's vaudeville revue is Ben Blue, the dancing comedian of the films. Other performers are Shirley Avery, the three Gallie Sisters, Senator Murphy, James Evans, William Ebs, Coley and Adair and the Six Gordons. On Monday night the State-Lake will inaugurate a ten week "jitterbug contest" in addition to the regular stage bill. "Charley Chan in Honolulu" is the screen feature.

At the Oriental theater the three O'Connors, famous stage and movie family, head the stage bill. Pat Henning and Betty Raye, Ted and Mary Taft, Bill Ames, the Singing Marines with Blanche Bradley, Verne Buck and his dancing Sweethearts are other acts. The double feature film program is headed by "Boy Trouble," with Charlie Ruggles and Mary Boland. The second picture is "Mr. Moto's Last Warning," with Peter Lorre.

Pole Once Told Piano Held No Future for Him

Ignace Jan Paderewski, celebrated Polish pianist who is now making his twentieth tour of the United States, will play a recital in the Auditorium theater at 3:30 this afternoon. His program comprises the Liszt transcription of Bach's G minor fantasia and fugue, the Haydn F minor variations, Mozart's A minor rondo, the "Apassionata" sonata of Beethoven; a Chopin group consisting of the F minor ballade, B major nocturne, F sharp minor mazurka, and A flat polonaise, and Liszt's arrangement of "Isolde's Love Death" from Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde."

By Edward Barry.

"The piano is useless for you—you have no future with the piano; your future is here, playing the trombone!"

This was the counsel given Ignace Jan Paderewski by one of the teachers in the conservatory at Warsaw, where he had gone as a child to study music. More discouragement came from still other professors at this same school. He should point his efforts toward composition, not toward the career of a virtuoso. His hands were not right for the piano. He could never make a success!

This sort of thing continued long afterward. When Paderewski was a grown man, when he had already won some sort of success as a pianist, and when he had gone to Leschetizky to seek further training, that world famous pedagog had no encouragement to give him. "You might have been a great pianist if you had started early enough," said Leschetizky in effect. "Is is too late now!"

Paderewski has had countless other difficulties to overcome. He has played recitals when the pain from an injured arm made him almost blind with agony. He has calmly booked additional recitals when one of his fingers was scarcely movable and when he knew perfectly well that he was gambling with his whole future. At one time he became used to seeing the keyboard red with blood from a damaged finger at the end of each session.

Paderewski has encountered empty halls, talking audiences, even a hissing audience. He has toured in places where there were no railroads and has known what it is like to go combing through a strange town on a search for a piano on which to play.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, now and for the last four decades the most famous pianist in the world, was born in Russian Poland in 1860. Even for a place so melancholy as this his childhood was especially sad. His mother died when the child was only a few months old. Two or three years later the father was arrested by the Rusian authorities for seditious activities. A release was soon effected, however, and Ignace and his sister had at least one parent to care for them through childhood.

The Paderewskis lived far from any large towns, and it was impossible to procure proper instruction for the boy when his talent for music began to manifest itself. It was really not until the future virtuoso was 12 or 13 years old that he had the opportunity to study with any teacher worthy of the name. This was at the Warsaw conservatory, where he received those discouraging comments on his chances as a pianist--but also a great deal of invaluable musical instruction.

In due time Paderewski completed his studies at Warsaw and was appointed a professor at the conservatory. Although he was forced at that time and for many years afterward to do some teaching in order to earn a living, no one realized more vividly than he the necessity of further study on his own part. He managed on his slender resources to procure some instruction in Berlin and finally to get himself accepted by Theodor Leschetizky, the great Viennese teacher.

There was discouragement here, too, although the teacher finally came around to another point of view. Some time later he replied to a depreciating criticism of Paderewski's work by informing the critic that he would have to get used to hearing that young man's name.

Paderewski made a debut in Vienna in 1887. A sensational success in Paris followed. In a very short time he was established as one of the best of Europe's pianists. An American tour was arranged for the season of 1891-'92.

The 31 year old pianist landed in this country and immediately set to work on the most grueling concert schedule he had even known. He began in New York with a series of three appearances, at each of which he performed two concertos!

It was in the course of this tour that Paderewski made his first Chicago appearances. He played with the Chicago Symphony orchestra—at that time called the Chicago orchestra—in the then new Auditorium theater on Dec. 31, 1891, and Jan. 1, 1892. There was no rehersal, no chance even to meet Theodore Thomas. When the symphony with which the program began was over Thomas simply came backstage and asked where Paderewski was. Paderewski introduced himself, was escorted to the stage and went through the performance.

This young pianist with the great head of hair quite caught America's imagination. He continued his tours here for many years, making his nineteenth visit [the last before the present one] in the season of 1932-'33.

When the war broke out, and Poland became a battle ground for the armies of Russia, Germany, and Austria, Paderewski did an immense amount of work here collecting money for the suffering millions at home and trying to interest America in Poland's terrible plight.

Paderewski, now a figure to command the respect of the entire world, worked at the peace conference in behalf of Poland. To him goes much of the credit for the birth of the new nation. He served Poland as premier also, but resigned when he saw that internal dissension [with one group rallying around him as leader] was in danger of plunging his country into civil war.

Georges Clemenceau, French premier, is credited in the Phillips biography of Paderewski with a trenchant comment on the pianist's abandonment of music in favor of statecraft. "What a comedown!" he is reported to have said.

Paderewski began playing again in 1920. For years he maintained his heavy schedule of tours and his incessant practice. Of late he has been living quietly in Switzerland, but has found time to make an English movie, the famous "Moonlight Sonata."

Paderewski is not an especially temperamental person, but he has a few odd and interesting little quirks. He likes his piano stool [a specially constructed one, by the way] set eight and one-quarter inches—no more, no less—from the piano. He does not read newspaper criticisms of his appearances any more, but there was a time when he perused them—and they were anything but favorable!—with intense interest. He set a remarkable precedent once when he insisted on his manager printing not only the laudatory reviews but also the most bitter attacks. He said it gave prospective audiences an opportunity to get a well rounded view of critical opinion concerning him.

Paderewski is a thorough man of the world and has known almost everybody worth knowing in the last fifty years. His memory abounds with world-famous characters, and his spoken and written words contain many an apt description of their talents and habits. One of the most entertaining passages in his memoirs concerns the late Calvin Coolidge. Paderewski hit upon a brilliant explanation of Coolidge's liking for music, suggesting that a part of this liking was due to the fact that he did not have to talk while music was being played!

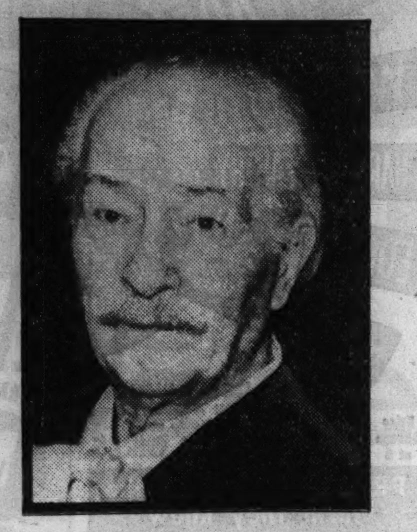
Paderewski has made huge sums of money in his life but has lost or given away most of it. He seems to have had a passion for real estate speculation and to have been fantastically unlucky at it.

Paderewski has been married twice, once when he was a youngster, once after he had become a world figure. His first wife, who had borne him a son, died early. The child lived almost to maturity but suffered constantly from ill health. His second wife died about five years ago.

Do not jump to the conclusion that this is Paderewski's farewell tour. He is against farewell tours on principle and once said that he would quit when he felt that he could no longer progress in this art, but that there would be no ballyhoo about it when he did! Anyway, to a man of such vitality strange things may yet happen. It is not impossible, for instance, that he may reënter international politics. One can think offhand of several ways in which so universally respected a man could help put to rights a world that is sadly wrong.

HERE AFTER 6 YEARS



Still the most famous of pianists, Ignace Jan Paderewski returns after a six year absence to give a recital in the Auditorium theater this afternoon.

Current Music News

The San Carlo Opera company's spring season at the Auditorium theater closes tonight with a performance of Bizet's "Carmen." The cast will be the same as that of the previous presentation. Coe Glade will be the Carmen, Leola Turner the Michaela, Aroldo Lindi the Don José, and Mario Cozzi the Escamillo. Lesser parts will be entrusted to Mildred Baldwin, Dorothy Dickson, Francesco Curci, Natale Cervi, Harold Kravitt, and Francis Scott. The services of the ballet will be enlisted, and the indispensable Carlo Peroni will conduct.

Dorothy Crost and Berenice Jacobson will present a program of two piano music at the Women's Club theater this afternoon. Activities of this local duo-piano team have included tours with the Ruth Page ballet, an appearance with the Chicago City Opera orchestra at Grant park, and the first Chicago performance of Poulenc's Concerto for Two Pianos with the Illinois Symphony orchestra. The Metropolitan District of Hadassah is sponsoring the present recital for the benefit of Youth Aliyah.

For its sixth and final program at the Arts club this Tuesday the Russian trio will offer two works—Schumann's trio, No. 3 in G minor, and Mendelssohn's trio, No. 1 in D minor. Nina Mesirow-Minchin is the pianist as well as the director of the ensemble, her associates being Herman Felber, violinist, and Ennio Bolognini, cellist.

To the Goodman theater tonight Anne Rudolph will bring her group for a demonstration of "Anrudics," a "system to promote fine body motion as a valuable and important aid in useful living." Following this the group and its leader will essay new dance compositions. German born and trained, Miss Rudolph has been teaching locally for the last five years.

At the Beaux Arts salon today Mathilda Ernestine is presenting a pair of vocalists: Jenny May, soprano, and George Burhop, baritone. Both singers have appeared in opera and oratorio in and about Chicago.

Music by Bach and contemporary Russian choral composers will be sung by the Walther League chorus of Milwaukee on a visit today to the Christ Evangelical Lutheran church, Richmond and McLean avenue. Gerhard Schroth is the director. The music is part of a Lenten service beginning at 4 o'clock.

De Paul university will present its symphony orchestra in a spring concert at Thorne hall this Tuesday at 8:30 o'clock. Richard Czerwonky is the conductor, and three students of the school of music will appear as soloists—Esther Glazer, violinist; Raymond Hanson, pianist, and Lucille Schorsch, organist.

Josef Hofmann to Be Soloist with Symphony

By Cecil Smith.

Josef Hofmann, more famous than ever since his golden jubilee tour last season, returns to make his fifteenth appearance as piano soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra Thursday evening and Friday afternoon in Orchestra hall. This will be Mr. Hofmann's first visit to Chicago since his anniversary recital in the Adult Education piano series last winter.

His concerto this week is Rubinstein's Fourth, a dazzling compendium of superannuated fireworks which has a surprising way of coming to life under the wizardry of Mr. Hofmann's treatment. The concerto was last played here by Tomford Harris two years ago.

Two other sizable works of the romantic period round out the program Frederick Stock has selected. The orchestra will play Wagner's "A Faust Overture"—one of the composer's relatively few nonoperatic works—and the Ninth [unfinished] symphony of Anton Bruckner.

Whether or not the American public is developing an increased taste for the symphonies of Bruckner, at least nobody can say that Dr. Stock has been asleep at the switch. For these massive and thoughtful monuments of nineteenth century musical art our conductor has always felt a particular affinity. If his audiences could absorb larger doses of Bruckner in any single season, Dr. Stock undoubtedly would be glad to administer a more generous prescription.

Of all the problematical Bruckner symphonies, the Ninth, which the composer had not completed at the time of his death, has won the most general admiration here. Only the final movement is missing; the first movement, scherzo and slow movement are complete. Bruckner himself suggested that the missing finale be replaced by the "Te Deum," sung here last year by the Swedish Choral club, but this suggestion has seldom been followed anywhere. Perhaps the oversight is for the best, since an uncut performance of the existing three movements requires somewhere in the neigbhorhood of fifty minutes.

Even though the music is ponderous and is developed at great length, the Ninth symphony offers great rewards to the listener. The scherzo is one of the best movements in this form since Beethoven, rhythmically animated and original in harmonic conception. The slow movement, leaning heavily upon Wagner's "Tristan and Isolde" for its inspiration, discovers a vein of unusual lyric rhapsody. Dr. Stock's performance is certainly one of the best, for few conductors of the present understand Bruckner's style so deeply.

Of late there has been much dissntion in learned musical circles over the revised versions of Bruckner's scores employed by many conductors. Various editors and conductors have substantially reorchestrated all of the Bruckner symphonies, making many important changes in the composer's original conception of the sound of his music. The recent publication of a definitive edition of the original Bruckner scorings has led some conductors to return to the first versions of the symphonies. Dr. Stock, however, maintains that the revisions constitute major improvements in the orchestral sound of the music, and prefers to continue to use them.

From the Chicago Symphony orchestra comes the welcome news that Vladimir Horowitz, famous Russian pianist forced to retire from the concert platform a couple of years ago because of serious illness, has been engaged to play with the orchestra next season. Mr. Horowitz has not toured America since 1935.

With Izler Solomon conducting, the Illinois Symphony orchestra offers an extremely electric program in the Great Northern theater this afternoon. George Sopkin, cellist of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, will play Ernst Dohnányi's "Concert Piece in F Major." Although this is an early work by the Hungarian composer, it has not been played in Chicago.

A novelty of more recent origin is Menotti Salta's "Four Characteristic Dances." Mr. Salta was born in Perugia, Italy, in 1893. He won prominence in Italy for contributions to the opera and musical comedy stages. Since 1927 he has been an American citizen. At present he is on the staf of a national radio chain.

The complete program follows:

Classical Symphony	Prokofieff
Tone Poem, "The Isle of the Dead"	Rachmaninoff
Concert Piece, F Major, for Cello. George Sopkin [First time in Chicago]	Dohnányi
Four Characteristic Dances [First time in Chicago]	Salta

The Augustana College choir of Rock Island, Ill., one of the middle west's most notable choral groups, will sing its annual Orchestra hall concert this afternoon. The performance is sponsored by the choirs of thirty-six Chicago Lutheran churches.

Henry Veld, the conductor, has brought his college youngsters to a high point of discipline and musicianship. The choir is subdivided into a men's group, the Wennerberg chorus, and a women's group, the Jenny Lind chorus. The first portion of the program is given by the two groups separately. Later the two groups join forces and function as a single mixed choir. Among the composers represented in today's list are Kodaly, Bach, Schütz, Durante, Handel, and Tschesnokoff.

IN CELLO RECITAL

Notes of Music and Musicians

A cello recital by Gregor Piatigorsky will conclude the Musical Arts concert series in Orchestra hall next Saturday. The distinguished Russian artist was heard earlier in the season when he played the Schumann concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. With Valentin Pavlovsky at the piano, he will present the following numbers:

Sonata	Handel
Sonatina	Mozart
Sonata, opus 69, A major	Beethoven
Introduction and Polonaise Brillante	Chopin
Aria	Stravinsky
Oriental	Karjinsky
Scherzo	Piatigorsky
Intermezzo	Debussy
Pièce en forme de Habanera	Ravel
La Campanella	Paganini

Tomorrow evening the Whitney String quartet will play at the Arts club. Four sisters—Noreen, Edith, Edna, and Grace Whitney—make up the ensemble. Their brother, Robert, also is a prominent musician, a composer and conductor, now directing the Louisville Symphony orchestra. All members of the quartet have seen service in the Woman's Symphony orchestra and, as a group, have contributed chamber music to radio programs for more than a dozen years. Three quartets are listed for performance tomorrow evening: Beethoven's in F minor, opus 95; Debussy's in G minor, opus 10, and Schubert's in D minor, known as "Death and the Maiden."

As it does on rare occasions, the art of whistling will invade the concert stage on Wednesday evening. Sigma Alpha Phi, musical sorority, will present in Fullerton hall Jessica Lewis, who has been studying her specialty for ten years. Accompanied by Ethel Kahn at the piano, she will perform more or less familiar items by Schubert, Schumann, Debussy, Strickland, Grieg, Rasbach, and Kougell. Rose G. Schnitzer, dramatic reader, will contribute to the program sketches from Laurence Housman's "Victoria Regina" [in costume] and Thomas Bailey Aldrich's "A Set of Turquoise."

Herbert Butler conducts the Hull House Symphony orchestra in a program at Bowen hall, 800 South Halsted street, at 3:30 today. With the assistance of Adelyn Tramater Candice and Esther Rosenberg, pianists, and Isadore Geller, violinist, movements from concerti by Schumann, Liszt, and Mendelssohn will be played. The prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," a Haydn symphony, and pieces by Tschaikowsky and Eric Coates round out the program.

Vera Gillette and Vincent Micari, resident duo pianists, will be presented by the Musicians' Club of Women at the Arts club at 11:15 a. m. tomorrow.

Pergolesi's brief comic opera, "La Serva Padrona" ["The Maid as Mistress"], will be given as part of the program of the Chicago Artists' association in Curtiss hall at 8:15 p. m. on Tuesday. Joan Franston and Leonard Huber have the only rôles, Aside from the opera Frieda Galantiere, pianist; Marjorie Sherman, contralto, and Perry Craston, violinist, will be heard on the program.

The Chicago Chamber Music association has announced a program of "first performances by Chicago composers" to be presented in Orchestra hall's foyer on April 5. Four composers are represented by five works: Elizabeth C. Marshall by a quartet in one movement and a trio for flute, violin, and viola; David Van Vactor by Ten Variations and Fugue on a theme by Beethoven for flute and piano; Harrington Shortall by a Ten Minute trio, and Florian Mueller by a string quartet.

Colleges West of Alleghanies Began in 1794

By the Rev. John Evans.

[This is the fifth of a series of articles on the sesquicentennial celebration of the Presbyterian Church of the U. S. A., which is dedicated to American higher education.]

It was not long after Old Nassau hall at Princeton had been built—seven years—that a young Presbyterian minister, Hezekiah Balch, was graduated from the college. For eighteen years he carried on the conventional pastoral traditions, and then, in 1780, the war of the revolution being over, plunged into the Tennessee mountains to preach and teach at Greenville.

The spirit of the Log college was upon him and he determined to build a college in his vast pioneer territory where the nearest institution of higher learning was 175 miles distant. He sold the idea of a college to the general assembly of the territory of the United States south of the Ohio river.

In 1794 the assembly granted the Rev. Mr. Balch the charter for Greenville college, the first to be granted to any institution west of the Alleghany mountains.

True to the Log college spirit, the Rev. Mr. Balch established the institution on his own farm three miles south of Greenville and became the college's first president.

The preamble to the charter is worth the reading:

"Whereas, in all well regulated governments, it is the incumbent duty of the legislature to consult the happiness of the rising generation, and endeavor to fit them for an honorable discharge of the social duties of life, by paying strictest attention to their education, be it enacted by the governor," etc.

In 1800 the Rev. Charles Coffin, D. D. [Harvard, 1793], became associated with President Balch, and through the latter's efforts a library was developed and the greater part of the money for the college's first forty years was raised. In 1839 the college was moved to Greenville. However, the arrival in Tusculum, Tenn., in 1818 of the Rev. Samuel Doak [Princeton, 1775] was to have a large effect on the educational history of the twin towns, Greenville-Tusculum.

The Rev. Mr. Doak, with the founding of one school, Washington college, to his credit, pushed west and founded a private school, Tusculum academy. It was chartered as a college in 1844. The civil war interrupted the work of both Greenville and Tusculum colleges.

The reconstruction period cast the remnants of the two colleges into a new mold, and in 1868, under the name of Greenville and Tusculum college, the institutions were merged. In 1912 the name Tusculum college was formally adopted.

Tusculum and its dramatic history and long service is one of more than fifty which has retained its close relationship with the Presbyterian church all through the years. Chicago has one close tie to this Tennessee institution. Cyrus Hall McCormick was one of the college's principal benefactors, and the administration building bears his name. Recently the McCormick family contributed another quarter of a million dollars to its development through the sesquicentennial observance.

[Next week Western Pennsylvania's successor of William Tennent's Log college will be described.]

London Premiere.

Noel Coward's famous comedy, "Design for Living," has only just reached London. The play was premièred in New York in the spring of 1933 with Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne, and the author in the leading rôles. In the London production, recently opened at the Haymarket theater, the Lunt, Fontanne, and Coward rôles are played by Anton Walbrook, Diana Wynyard, and Rex Harrison in that order. Critical opinion was not very kind to the playwright, but the drawing power of the leading players and the author's name will undoubtedly give the production some success.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Some like coffee, some take tea,
Vote for Kelly, Green, Courtney—
Ev'body takes to somethin' or t'other,
SO—some'll like "Made for Each Other."

ME—I thought it was tripe.

BUT—in the same breath I hasten to assure you that three people, for whose judgment I have the greatest respect, left a preview of the picture mopping streaming eyes with sodden handkerchiefs, declaring in broken voices that they thought the film was w-w-wonderful. . . .

There you are.

Why I didn't like it was because it seemed to me so determinedly a tear wringer and sympathy seeker. . . . Like a people with lots to bear who never let you forget that they HAVE lots to bear and are darned sweet and brave about bearing it. You know—the sweet, gallant smile that never comes off—in company. . . . The ready tears surreptitiously [not on your life!] brushed away. . . . The general "I-WILL-BE-GAY-THOUGH-FOXES-ARE-GNAWING-MY-LITTLE-INSIDES" attitude. . . .

Tried and true stock "sad situations" have been culled from everywhere.

You have the mean mother-in-law who just won't allow the poor little bride a break. The cussed cook, who departs right in the middle of the dinner given so hopefully by the young Masons for Boss Doolittle and his snippy daughter Eunice—a dinner that is traditionally awful from first course to last.

Then there comes—cut in pay, just as Young Husband has NERVED himself to ASK FOR A RAISE. And all the expense of having a baby! And then—the illness of the child—an illness which calls for a certain serum—and there ain't none in town. It's all in Salt Lake taking care of an epidemic. . . . What to do, what to do!

The memories of the script writers skipped to Alaska [I almost said "scripped"] and they thought of the noble musher and his dog team. . . . A dog team being not quite au fait for this occasion, why an aviator must needs risk his life in a howling blizzard to bring the serum from Salt Lake to a New York hospital. . . . Yes, it arrives in the nickatime. . . . Who pays the bill? Now who else but crusty Boss Doolittle who loves little children, though you'd never have suspected it before. . . .

The finale is just too-too!

The acting? O, FAR superior to the story!

See you tomorrow.

Lunts' "Festival"

The Theater Guild announces that Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne have completed their plans for the "Festival of Comedy" which they will present in New York this spring. A company of forty will support the stars in a répertoire of five plays. "The Taming of the Shrew" will inaugurate the engagement on Monday evening, May 15, and will alternate with "Reunion in Vienna" for the rest of the week. The second week's bill will consist of "Idiot's Delight" and "Amphitryon 38." For the third week all four plays plus "The Sea Gull" will be shown, and the five productions will continue to alternate for the remainder of the engagement.

Still Monograph

J. Fischer and Brother of New York, music publishers, have issued a monograph on William Grant Still as part of a series known as "Studies of Contemporary American Composers." Verna Arvey is the author, and there is an introduction by John Tasker Howard, the famous authority on American music. The monograph contains biographical material, critical analyses of Still's works accompanied by thematic illustrations, a list of the composer's published music, and a valuable record of first performances.

Traveler Bids Sad Farewell to the Tropics

By Cousin Eve.

Rio de Janeiro wasn't exactly a rest cure. With five hours of sleep and waking moments full of people, things. The telephone, too, was forever alive, with Portuguese spouting out of it, and orchids were coming in bunches and baskets. Also invitations by hand.

With a day more we could have flown to Santos and reveled in the hospitality of the coffee plantations. Another few hours and there might have been a flight over the jungle to lunch with the charming Castruccios at Sao Paulo, rtpresentatives of Italy in that great state. The last hours were hectic.

Denmark entertained us beautifully at dinner and Germany at luncheon. We had to climb a steep hill, a sort of rock garden, at 20 Via Rumania, where dwells Wernher von Levetzow in considerable state. The German chargé d'affaires is a bachelor, a rollicking fellow, popular in Rio and fond of dancing. He had a very nice party, mostly of embassy people, and one guest I had met before in the days of Chicago's 1933 World's Fair. This was a little Brazilian woman, Mrs. Rosalinda Miller, married to an American journalist. Her influence in Brazil is said to be considerable, political and otherwise.

After lunch we strolled out for coffee into Herr von Levetzow's patio, which grows exotically out of the steep hill behind the embassy, and here we found household pets. Several spaniels and police dogs were wagging tails and a tiny monkey was perched on the wall squeaking frantically. Farther on among the rocks of the garden, in the intense early afternoon heat, there were cages of beautiful bright birds bought on the market. There were birds yellow, birds pink, blue of many shades, and dear little gray things flecked in red. The very last visit we made in Rio was to drive to the top of a small mountain for tea with Prince and Princess zu Schaumburg-Lippe. They had, it seems, been divinely happy in Rome and had in a way achieved the same atmosphere at Rio. Their pink stucco villa was up and up narrow cobbled streets, between bougainvillea draped walls that reminded me of the heights above Naples.

The villa was a hundred years old and securely hidden among tropical trees in large grounds behind high stone walls, with balustrades of time worn carved granite and old stone gate houses. We had tea outdoors on the veranda in the most peaceful hour I had had at Rio. Our hosts were in a delightful mood and before we left two beautiful children, a girl and a boy, joined the party. We were looking down on the entire panorama at Rio through rifts in the foliage. There rode our three funneled Normandie, a mere toy at anchor. Yonder was Sugar Loaf sticking up out of the sea like a sore thumb, and all around spread the luxurious tree shaded streets of the beautiful capital. The Schaumburg-Lippes are an unusually attractive and charming family and I carried away from the little party with them a memory that will live long, of beauty and high ideals.

Where does time go at sea? Six days from Rio to Barbados and it seemed like minutes. The wrench of parting from Rio came in the early hours of the morning. We had until 4 a. m. to make our adieux and to climb upon the tender at the Touring club quay. Luggage went long before and we came aboard dragging tons of loot, orchids, carnival dolls, and our tulle skirts. Speechless with fatigue we sat on the deck taking a fond farewell of the brilliant, entrancing city and its shadowy mountains in the moonlight. It seemed farewell forever. Thirteen thousand miles is a long way to go, but it was worth it.

The upward boat ride was placid. The nights were soft. One studied under their dark canopy the dipper upside down, and the Southern Cross, and got to know new groups of stars, new formations in the firmament.

The equator's return engagement was a terrible flop. Nobody batted an eyelash about it. Except that the weather lacked IT, and the Normandie's rolling was deep seated and intensive. The orchestra at the dances gave us carnival tunes for a change, and the larder was brightened by papaws, a tropical melon, and nectarines and peaches from Argentina. There were also highly flavored fish from the South Atlantic, and one began to notice new people aboard. They had been there, to be sure, from the beginning, but Rio had pepped everybody up.

In our absence ashore the French ambassador at Rio gave a dinner-dance on the Normandie for four hundred Brazilians, and chic ladies with black satin hair and marvelous white evening dresses came aboard with their caballeros and made merry. Lady Peel told about it with great gusto. Long dinner tables both sides of the promenade deck were massed with flowers, fruit, and superb sugar confections. Dancing went on to Ruby Newman's music in the rose colored lounge with its golden walls, and Lady Peel was much intrigued by the dazzling diamonds of the Brazilian women and the romantic types of their men.

But the sartorial high light of the upward trip was Mme. Emile Mathis, who is said to have the finest collection of jewels in Europe. Mathis himself was once a taxi driver, then a mechanician, then an associate in France of Henry Ford. He is a very good looking man, and one of the wealthiest industrialists in Paris. His wife has "arrived" with her husband, and so contributed her bit to the gayety of the cruise. She wore a ruby and diamond necklace that made one reach for the smoked glasses. Some nights she wore magnificent ball dress, then again at the smartest galas danced in sailor blouse and navy blue slacks.

In the meanwhile money was burning holes in our purses. The rumor was that Barbadoes was the shoppingest place in the world. So we rose up brightly when the Normandie's anchor rattled its chains off Bridgetown. People who find Nassau a trifle overdone have their eye on Barbadoes for the next jump. Planes were careening noisily over the ship, and the harbor was covered with rowboats full of Negro boys diving for coin. The racket was infernal. Landing at mossy old stone steps, one liked at once the smell of the place. It smelled of tropical fruits, tobaccos, sugar cane, sandalwood—there were even packets of sandal bark for sale on the quay, cases of rum, piles of bananas.

A rickety one horse trap came along and we hopped in. Driving along it all seemed remarkably busy, great crowds of people, a hum like swarming bees, but perhaps after all not so much really doing. They say the poverty of the island is fantastic. Crossing the old stone bridge, the inner harbor was so full of idle schooners and freight boats that no water was visible.

Then to the left into Broad street, where are all the department stores, the shoppers, and sporting motor cars. Here our old Negro driver got himself arrested. His ancient bony horse suddenly backed up and ruined a new fender.

What we bought might be a long, boring story. But cotton prints, silks from China, Kent brushes, English gloves, men's ties, Panama hats, printed silks and British items in wool, cotton, and chinaware were very, very nice.

The Bridgetown streets are coral white, laid out without rime or reason, and lined with natives peddling things. I am sorry now I didn't take the white walking stick carved out of shark bone. In nearby Trafalgar square rises Horatio Lord Nelson in green bronze, looking, I thought, a bit crestfallen, perhaps henpecked. How few statues of the great and mighty stand the test of time! Under his nose are several streets lined by sidewalk markets where are piles of unknown fruits and fresh vegetables. Selling these wares were huge Negro women who cackled greatly, carrying on at high pitch with friends at a great distance.

This was really very amusing. As was the big fellow who tried his best to sell us a very homely little gray monkey. The pack of scuffling boys who followed at our heels all day was a bit disconcerting. Of lunching places at Bridgetown there are several. But finally Jehu was told to drive to the Marine hotel, a mile or so out of town.

Our way was lined by faded, sad old houses that had been blue, couleur de rose, gray, yellow. With lacelike iron work at doors and windows, theirs was a plaintiveness that spoke to the heart of glories long gone by. The high times of Barbadoes with the great sugar planters are long past. British younger brothers and sons lived gorgeously in the old slave sweating days. Then Oliver Cromwell deported royalists, who had to work for followers of the Stuarts already there. What to do? A few of real stamina became pirates, others just barely lived; their descendants are the poorest on the island and dwell apart in complete indigence.

The Marine hotel is a nice breezy place where winter visitors from the United States are many. Barbadoes is social; people take letters, and there is an inexpensive life of seabathing, golf, tennis, dancing, and garden functions. British are numerous and nice looking, we thought. For lunch they served us flying fish, a gamey, tasty little filet, far better than any tropical meat. For the remainder of the meal I went native and ate only small bananas, sweet as honey, and black coffee.

We played along the shore in the sun with some Boston friends and finally at eventide drove to the Aquatic club, where were launches going direct to the Normandie. The club was an exciting double decked pier with restaurant and dance floor above and a sort of bar below. Here we tried vainly for coconut cocktails, but they knew them not.

Barbadoes was really lots of fun, and as we went speeding off to the ship there was a feeling that it would be nice to go back.

The next morning we were at anchor at Martinique. And this was just as purely French as Barbadoes was British. They took us ashore on a flat barge with a dance floor, and a black band playing all the old French favorites, Madelon, Parlez-moi d'Amour, and the Marseillaise. It got us in a high mood for the shopping, which, however, was not nearly so good as the other place. We walked under floral arches with these painted words, "Bienvenue à Nos Hotes," and then the natives fell upon us like swarms of flies. All day long little boys bothered about with postage stamps, and runners for the mongoose and cobra fight were on our trail.

Fort de France is the name of the present town of 40,000 souls, the former capital, St. Pierre, having gone with the volcanic burst of Mount Pelee in 1902. We did not even take the fifty mile drive north through tropical wilderness to view the scene of the horror. Instead we dropped into the doll market at the right of the quay where negresses lay in wait with piles of plaid cotton kerchiefs. A chair in the open market place, a skilful saleswoman to twist the plaid into one of the famous head dresses of Martinique, and a large gallery of urchins completed the mise-en-scene. One took all one could carry of these turbans for the little friends at home.

The sun beat furiously down upon the Savane, and over yonder behind us was the slim statue of an empress born in Martinique, Josephine de la Pagerie. The gaze of those flirtatious eyes is fixed across the bay where she was born. A hurricane blew Josephine from the wreck of her father's plantation to France, where she met and married Vicomte de Beauharnais at sixteen. After his death under the "Terror," she became the wife of Napoleon Bonaparte, then Empress of France, and finally a discarded woman. But in Martinique she still queens it, and remains empress of her own people.

However much fun it is to be coiffed in the open market, the good place to get these plaid cotton head dresses is Chez Jeanette's, a Creole, in a side street. The most charming mulatto dolls dressed in plaid silk are also found next door at Tilly's. Other things worthy of purchase at Fort de France are French perfumes, for which one signs papers of release, and rum. The men passengers off the Normandie loaded up native baskets with bottles and cases of this product of the sugar cane.

It was Saturday and everything was closed tight as a drum at noon, so our shopping orgy was short lived. But we nevertheless hired a long slouching Negro youth to carry our purchases and strolled about the narrow little streets sniffing at all the nice smelling boutiques. There were shops for perfume, spices, wines, bakeries, patisseries, sweet shops, tobacconists, and coffee. Finally the Hotel de la Paix looked good for luncheon and the menu said "Homard à la Martinique," also flying fish. So we stayed. There was a sunny court of pink azaleas in which slept a galaxy of the longest, leanest cats I ever saw. But when the lobster finally came the cats woke up and assailed us with piteous mewings.

Later on we took an open car without looking at the chauffeur, who turned out to be a sort of local gangster, a bravo with a hat on one ear and cigaret poised jauntily. The bystanders all heartily warned us against him, calling out that he was the most reckless driver and generally no good character in Martinique. Nevertheless the drive up among the mountains and tropical roads back of Fort de France was well done, and our gangster driver exerted himself to find and show the local beauty spots with a certain brave air of gallantry.

I found Martinique sad. The tragedy of Mount Pelee has cast a long black shadow down the years and across the lovely island. We passed the volcano that night at dusk, its peak and sides veiled in an everlasting mist. It was farewell to the gorgeous tropics, to the casual easy life on shipboard and the sun.

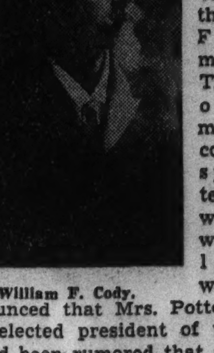
When Chicago Was Young: Various World's Fair Commissions Attracted Interest

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Nov. 23, 1890.

Dear Julia: The leading topic of conversation in Chicago just now is the matter of the comings and goings of people here to organize the World's Fair commissions. The board of lady managers of course is of special interest to us women and we were delighted when it was announced that Mrs. Potter Palmer was elected president of this body. It had been rumored that she would not accept the position, fearing that there would be antagonistic elements—people who were wanting the post for themselves or for some friend. But when the committee met it was found there was no real opposition to her at all.



William F. Cody.

The southern women were all for her, because she was born in Kentucky, and they assembled a goodly number to promise votes for her, early in the session. Mrs. John A. Logan had been mentioned for the office, but she quickly put a stop to any such talk by saying she was there merely to nominate her friend, Mrs. Palmer. She was anticipated in this by Mrs. Cantrill of Kentucky, but she seconded the nomination in a very graceful manner.

The selection of Mrs. Palmer meets with general approval all over the country, I think. She is not only a beauty, but possesses poise and charm, intelligence and rare executive ability.

Two large receptions were held during the week in honor of the men and women who are here to start the Fair. One—this just for the men—was given by the La Salle club, whose building is at 542 West Monroe street. Dr. F. Ziegfeld of the Chicago Musical college is president and Will, who attended the reception, said he had planned it beautifully. There was a fine musical program under the direction of Dr. Louis Falk, our splendid organist. Tomaso's mandolin band, which is heard everywhere, played during the evening, as did Johnny Hand's famous orchestra.

Will said the commissioners found themselves in the shade when Buffalo Bill came in after dining with Gen. Miles, who is now stationed here. Buffalo Bill is as breezy as the plains from which he hails, and perhaps, too, he has been a little spoiled by the attention he has received in London, where he has been with his Wild West show.

"I tell you," he exclaimed, buttonholing Will, "the queen of England and empress of India is a great old girl. She came to my show, I'd have you understand, and you bet all London followed her example. And they paid good money to come."

Will thinks the doughty old Indian fighter had the idea the reception was in his honor, he took the spotlight so naturally. But he is a picturesque person and every one was glad to see him.

Another World's Fair reception, greeting especially George R. Davis, director general of the Fair, was that given by Mr. and Mrs. Lyman J. Gage, the next evening after the La Salle club's party. That was when I met with Will. The Gage home, at 470 North State street, was lighted from top to bottom and presented a gay appearance as we drove up to it. Inside it was equally attractive, for literally hundreds of roses were used in its decoration and the ladies were all wearing brilliantly colored gowns. Mrs. Judge Shepard, Mrs. General Chetlain, and Mrs. J. J. P. Odell helped the Gages in receiving. The supper, served in the basement dining room, was delicious. Of course, it was served by Kinsley.

I am busy this week shopping for wedding presents, as two girls of whom I am very fond are brides. One of these is a neighbor, Isabel Quan, daughter of W. J. Quan, an old Chicago resident, who was married to James Rood Jr., with Archbishop Feehan officiating. They will live at the fashionable Virginia hotel. The other bride is Florence Henderson, daughter of C. M. Henderson, the shoe manufacturer, of 1816 Prairie avenue. She has married a delightful young lawyer, Rudolph Matz, whose mother, Mrs. Otto Matz, is a valued friend.

And now I must close. Lovingly,

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. James Rood Jr. is Capt. James Quan Rood, United States army, Tucson, Ariz.

Attic Treasures.

Miss Ella A. Dewey of Elmhurst, who came to Chicago in 1865, writes:

"I have read your column for years and thoroughly enjoy the letters. Today I decided to write you of my attic treasures as I have not seen two of the articles mentioned by any one. The first is a 'sewing bird,' which I am sure is as much as 90 years old. [I am 88, and it is one of my earliest memories.] It is made of German silver, screws onto the table, and the sewing is placed in its bill to hold the material as we often pin it to our laps when sewing a long seam. The second article, though not so old, seems to be unique. It was worn in 1869 to a high school graduation, and was called a handkerchief ring. The gold ring slips on the little finger and has a chain with shell-like prongs. In this was fastened a fancy handkerchief, for show, but not for use."

From R. G. Hess, Columbus, Ga., we have a request for information about an artist named P. H. Davenport, who painted two life size portraits of members of the Hess family in 1870. This date is on the back of each picture, together with the name of the artist and the word "Chicago."

The Salvation Army Planning Doughnut Day

Plans for the Salvation Army's forthcoming Doughnut day will be discussed at a luncheon of "colonels" of the drive at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Woman's Athletic club. These colonels are enrolling one hundred or more workers each for the sale of paper doughnuts on April 17 as mementos of Salvation Army service.

More than 15 organizations so far have been enrolled to assist the woman's division of the Army in the sale. Mrs. Henry Paschen is chairman of Doughnut day.

Among the colonels enrolled is Mrs. Doris Chapman, who also is chairman of the Easter Bonnet breakfast to be given by the woman's division Easter Sunday at the Drake hotel. Mrs. Charles S. Clark and Mrs. Holland Flagler are other board members of the division who are colonels.

Other colonels enrolled include Mrs. Raymond A. Miller, juvenile protection chairman of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers, through whom every district council and unit in the city will contribute representatives; Miss Myrtle Carpenter of the Chicago Church federation, and Mrs. Beulah Christian Mayher, president of the Lake Shore Business and Professional Women's Clubs.

Here's Glimpse Backstage at Flower Show

By Betty Browning.

Let's go backstage at the flower show. Of course this invitation is only for flower show fans. If you are one of several hundred thousands who are looking forward to being there at the Navy pier when the thirteenth annual show opens Saturday, or on one of the succeeding eight days, then you may want to meet the "angel," the director, the production staf—to inspect some of the props—to learn how the stars are groomed for their performances.

Mrs. George Plamondon. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Did you know that this is the only major flower show under amateur management and control? That these amateurs all are women? That it takes approximately $75,000 and six months of painstaking care to produce, for nine brief days, the breathtaking spectacle of 110,000 square feet in bloom out of season?

This is how it is done: Some sixteen women are interested enough in the show to work long months, year in, year out, in positions of executive responsibility, just for the fun of it. James Burdett, the plant authority, once laughingly asked them, "How long an apprenticeship can you serve and still keep your amateur standing?" Most of the sixteen executives have worked more than five years for the show. Each has become expert at her allotted task.

Then they have the help of the entire Garden Club of Illinois, of all 114 member clubs, and of each individual member. That makes for a show rich and perfect in detail, the product of many minds and talents.

Finally, there's the stimulus of a growing public. The management's attitude is, "The best is none too good for the flower show." The public has been quick to respond. Even three days of blizzard couldn't cut the attendance much below 170,000 last year. When the women first took the show over themselves, in 1932, 5,000 a day was a big gate.

You'll want to meet the "big sixteen." There's Mrs. O. W. Dynes of Hinsdale, now president of the National Council of State Garden Clubs. Officially she's just one of the "business executives" in charge, but she's the nearest thing to a director that the show has had since the Garden club assumed all responsibility for it. The show was $3,000 "in the red" when she was elected president of the club in 1932. She dared to try where professional managers had failed. She took over the management herself and made the show a success financially and otherwise.

Professionals still gasp when they hear how the show is financed. That first year Mrs. Dynes and one or two other members personally guaranteed the show's expenses. They were the only "angels" it ever had. Ever since it has stood on its own feet, with no outside backing. But the first few years the reserves were so small that no professionals would have taken the risk.

Mrs. Dynes still remembers the lean days. When some member suggests, "We should have some new 'sky' or some more trees," Mrs. Dynes reminds, "We should pay our debts." It is in this spirit that the club, year by year, with flower show profits, has built up a "protection of credit" fund to make certain that the show can go on. This fund is nearing the comfortable $25,000 mark.

Then there's Mrs. George Plamondon of Wheaton, president of the Garden club, whose boundless enthusiasm and geniality long have helped to keep flower show wheels whirring smoothly. Mrs. L. T. Warren of Elmhurst, treasurer, works several hours a day six months of the year with such efficiency that the largest bookkeeping error she ever made was $1.05 in the miscellaneous column.

Mrs. Raymond Knotts of Berwyn, wife of a city editor and herself a former newspaper woman, handles all publicity, besides editing the club's magazine. Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy of Lake Forest, daughter of the founder of the Morton arboretum, works notably on ideas and finances. Mrs. W. W. Shoemaker of Winnetka and Mrs. Howard Countryman of Rockford also are on this key committee of "business executives."

Mrs. W. L. Karcher of Freeport was the first president of the Garden Club of Illinois to undertake the management of the show. She made it a success, but the following year it again was placed in professional hands. She is a long time member of the consulting advisory committee. Mrs. George M. Kendall of Glen Ellyn, Mrs. John T. Pirie of Lake Forest, and Mrs. M. Johnson-Fuller of Riverside also are on this committee.

Mrs. Mark Cresap of Winnetka has two jobs. Each October she assigns the various exhibits to the individual garden clubs. There is such a rush now for major exhibits that they are assigned according to the date applications are postmarked.

Early every morning during the flower show Mrs. Cresap and Mrs. G. McStay Jackson of Lake Bluff, art director, inspect each exhibit. If flowers are drooping or a single article is out of place they notify the club in charge. Should the club fail to respond, they put everything in order themselves. But the clubs rarely fail. For example, last year one club spent an extra $45 keeping a border of white pansies in perfect bloom.

Mrs. Joseph E. Callender of St. Charles is responsible for every article on display at the flower show. She checks in and later checks out everything exhibited, including the rare antiques frequently rounded up for the show.

Mrs. Homer J. Whitcomb of Chicago, a music teacher and lover of children, takes charge of junior garden club exhibits, and her home is crowded with entries a large part of the year. Mrs. J. Cameron Aspley of Glencoe heads the hospitality committee, which answers questions and otherwise helps show visitors, and which serves tea each afternoon of the show.

It is during this tea hour that next year's show really begins. Over their teacups members exchange criticisms of this year's show and ideas for next year's show, along with comments on tired feet and emergencies. Every flower show worker must be able to laugh about these last.

At the May meeting of the Garden Club of Illinois suggestions for next year's show are assembled and studied. A postcard sent from Holland to a member inspired the Dutch village street at a show several years ago.

Once the theme is decided, the executive committee works out details during the summer. Walter Frazier, architect, and Erle Blair, landscape architect, lend professional assistance. In September the schedule of entries is mailed to member clubs. By the middle of October all entries are assigned.

From October until March the three small rooms at the Palmer House which serve the Garden club as headquarters are a beehive. Individual clubs come in for advice and to get official approval of their exhibits. For each major exhibit a club receives 100 tickets free to sell before the show. This gives it a $50 start on expenses. Ten cents is made on each additional ticket sold. The Garden Club of Oak Park and River Forest sold 2,400 tickets last year. Over and above this subsidy from the Garden club, individual clubs meet the cost of their exhibits by setting aside funds in their treasury or by card parties and other benefits.

The Garden Club of Illinois encourages another group of exhibitors, the Allied Florists. Their displays are accorded $5,000 in awards. To still another group of exhibitors, the commercial growers, the club gratefully gives the credit for making the show possible. By renting one-fifth of the floor space they help the club to defray initial expenses.

Now for a glimpse of the flower show in rehearsal. Tomorrow, five days before the show opens, the gardeners and Garden club members will invade Navy pier to begin putting their exhibits in place. They will find the groundwork laid for them. Wooden frames have been covered with plaster and cement to simulate brick and stone building. The weathered shingles that were bought off the roof of an ancient pigsty years ago are doing duty at their thirteenth flower show. So is the same imported peat moss which is used year after year instead of ordinary earth because it holds moisture better.

Against these constructed backgrounds the individual club will fill in the picture with budding trees and bushes, sod, and flowers all brought to bloom at the same time.

Women Voters Will Consider Civic Topics

Local functioning of WPA, merits and demerits of city and village governments, federal aid to dependent children, and the world picture will be among the topics considered by the Illinois League of Women Voters at a department day Tuesday at Judson court of the University of Chicago.

The state's 50 local leagues will send presidents, department chairmen, press chairmen, and other representatives to this meeting to exchange ideas and to discuss proposed changes in their work. Each department will have its own session, beginning at 10:30 o'clock. At luncheon afterward Prof. William W. Crosskey of the University of Chicago law school will speak on "The Constitution, 1789 to 1939."

Impending bills relating to mothers' pensions, which would make Illinois eligible for federal funds under the aid to dependent children provisions of the social security act, will be discussed by Mrs. Florence Fifer Bohrer of Bloomington at her department's meeting. Mrs. Bohrer, a former state senator, is chairman of the department of government and child welfare. Both the league and the American Legion are interested in these bills, which soon are to be introduced in the general assembly.

The National League of Women Voters recently urged before the house ways and means committee that the social security act be amended to increase federal funds available to children and to require each state to provide an average minimum per child in order to qualify for federal funds. It also was urged that the federal act be amended to require state personnel to be chosen on a merit basis.

How local PWA and WPA headquarters and free employment offices are functioning will be reported by members of the department of government and economic welfare at their session. Mrs. Maurice A. Pollak of Highland Park, chairman, has urged her members to visit these headquarters, and building and health departments as well, in order to present their findings at the meeting.

A maternity and infancy center has been opened in Peoria as a result of a "know your town" survey already conducted by local leagues in their own communities. This and other results of the survey will be compared at a meeting conducted by Mrs. Walter L. Rubens of Highland Park, who has directed the project.

City manager legislation, taxation, and election laws will share the attention of the department of government and its operation. Mrs. Guy Alan Tawney of Champaign will report on the hearings on the city manager enabling bills now before the legislature. She represented the league at these hearings.

Mrs. Marc Law of Highland Park will submit her committee's suggestions on taxation. Mrs. Egbert Jacobson of Chicago will report for the nominations and elections committee on the progress of the governor's commission to amend and codify election laws.

The league's opposition to bills which take away requirements for school districts to make budgets, and its support of bills providing a better setup for state aid and requiring a certified budget before such aid is given, will be discussed at the meeting of the department of government and education. Mrs. Laura Hughes Lunde is chairman.

Status of jury service bills for women will be the prime interest of the department of government and legal status of women. Miss Ellen M. Yockey of Taylorville is chairman. Mrs. Clifton M. Utley will bring her first hand knowledge of European affairs to the department of government and foreign policy. Reports of the recent Lima conference also will be given. Press chairmen will have their own session, under the leadership of Mrs. Raymond S. Simons of Highland Park.

Peak of Miami Season Passes Former Years

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA.

Never since Miami was a fishing village has the "peak of the season" been prolonged to so late a date. Every conceivable type of sport and social event still crowds the calendar, except farewell parties, which are as yet unknown. Trafic still maintains a midseason status. Crowds in night clubs and at the races continue at February level.

When Avritt Brown arrived from Chicago last week he stepped into an amazing list of parties planned for him and his sister and brother-in-law, the Theodore Garys, who came from Chicago a week before him. Breakfasts only have been possible at the home of their parents, the Hewitt Browns of Coral Gables. The rest of the day is devoted to luncheons, cocktail parties, garden parties and dinners. The Garys returned Friday from a few days' cruise to Cat Kay as the guests of the Roger Firestones. Mrs. Ralph Worthington entertained for them last night at the Surf club's gala which had for its theme the New York World's Fair. It was planned for the club by fair executives with a generous proportion of midway attractions, affording members a glimpse of New York's World Fair buildings. Mr. Brown leaves today for Jacksonville where he will establish his business headquarters.

The Peter T. Potts flew to Havana last week to spend the week-end. Mrs. J. D. Young, director of the western area of the Pan-American league, will be one of the fifteen members who shortly will make a good will trip by air to South American capitals.

The tour, planned for May, will be by chartered plane and will cover countries of the east and west coasts of the continent, with side trips to interesting points. The opera in Valparaiso and a week in Buenos Aires are incidental. The purpose of the tour is for the promotion of human understanding and solidarity, and to invite women of Latin America to attend festivities at the New York World's Fair on Pan-American League day, Oct. 3, when the first triennial international meeting will be held. Eight South American vice presidents of the league are wives of presidents of as many republics. Mrs. William Rapp and Mrs. William Wendnagel of Chicago are members of the Chicago branch, of which Mrs. Young is a member, and both have been invited to make the tour.

Fifty English women of Kingston, Jamaica, representing the Woman's club of Jamaica, will be guests Saturday of a group of Miami women representing the Florida Federation of Art, the National Federation of Women's Clubs, and the Miami Home Makers' club. Arriving on the cruise ship, North Star, they will exhibit in the ship's salon paintings by noted Jamaican artists and a collection of articles illustrating crafts of the island, as a return courtesy for the exhibition on the same ship last year when the Miami group made an art pilgrimage to Jamaica. Luncheon at the Miami Woman's club, a motorcade of the city and tea at the beautiful home of Mrs. T. V. Moore, recently voted Miami's outstanding citizen, will honor the visitors.

Mrs. Francesca Falk Miller of the Chicago branch of the National League of American Pen Women opened the Florida state convention of that organization Thursday and was the principal speaker.

Designed to accommodate single business persons, young married couples as well as larger family groups, Marshall Field Garden Apartments have become increasingly popular as the ideal apartment homes . . close to the loop. Selected tenancy assures good neighbors. Stainless Steel Utensils.

Stainless steel cooking utensils are becoming increasingly popular with housewives, since they are so easily kept clean and shining, requiring only ordinary washing with soap and hot water and a quick rub-off with a non-abrasive cleaner now and then. With ordinary care they wear indefinitely and do not mar or dent easily. Casseroles of stainless steel are good oven-to-table utensils, too, since this metal has a luster akin to old silver.

For Pump Enthusiasts.

More important than ever now with short skirts is the unbroken instep line the pump can give. If you're a pump enthusiast, investigate one that has lastex inserted over the instep to prevent cutting, and a patented heel device to keep the shoe from gaping or slipping. The pump comes in five different lasts, nine styles, and three heel heights in a variety of colors and lethers.

Fair Rejects Second Group of Paintings

By Eleanor Jewett.

The two items which seem to have attracted the greatest attention in this column recently are those which told of a second group of paintings to be sent to the New York World's fair and the suggestion of another story being added to the Chicago Public Library building, Michigan avenue and Washington street, for the purpose of giving Chicago a civic art gallery.

The proposal to send a second group of paintings and sculpture to New York unfortunately has been canceled at the New York end. The prevailing opinion now in New York seems to be that there is scarcely room to house the states' show, which has already been selected and sent on, and also that with that show the various states have been picked dry and could not assemble another dozen representative paintings each to save their lives!

How false this impression is we in Illinois well know. The paintings which were chosen here by Aaron Bohrod, Ralph Clarkson, and Mitchell Siporin, with Daniel Catton Rich, director of the Art institute, as chairman, by no means represent Illinois or even Chicago. The pictures are a handpicked lot of melancholy modern exercises done by painters who are in their element at the Art institute, in the WPA shows, and at the Artists' union. The result looked as though most of the friends of friends had been included: Francis Chapin, Pougialis, Louis Ritman, William Schwartz, Gertrude Abercrombie, Zsissly, Ivan Le Loraine Albright, Emil Armin, Gustaf Dalstrom, Josimovitch, Vavac, Ziroli, and Norman MacLeish among them.

Every Art institute show of the last ten years has carried most of those names; they are the fortunate group of their decade, just as when accomplished painting rather than modernism was popular a different group were nearly always present.

From the standpoint of fine art it is a pity that the earlier painters were superseded. The present group strives for drab and dull effects, unimaginative and heavy. The call of propaganda is also clearly heard through their pictures. If one judged an American city by their paintings, every man should be armed with a beggar's cup, every child with a diseased limb, and every woman with a shawl.

One sop was thrown to the conservatives in the selection of the paintings; Paul Trebilcock's portrait, "Gloria Fernandez," was passed.

But if New York thinks Illinois, or even Chicago, is beggared of good paintings by this selection, it is very much mistaken. Not a dent has been made in the surface that we might have shown. We could and ought to have been represented by such artists as Frederic Tellander, Walter Krawiec, Julius Moessel, Charles Sneed Williams, Rudolph Ingerle, Charles Killgore, Edward Grigware, Jeffery Grant, Frank V. Dudley, Frederic M. Grant. . . . One could go on easily with another twenty names which would have added interest and beauty and meaning to the show. And we also have women painters: Frances Foy, Harriet Krawiec, Anna Lynch, Macena Barton; but no one would ever guess from the mediocre little collection of canvases that has gone to New York that Chicago had any art to speak of.

The other item which stirred popular interest was the idea suggested by Paul Schulze, president of the Municipal Art league, that a third story be added to the present Chicago Public Library building, where Chicago's two municipal collections of art could be permanently housed and space given to the installation of galleries where the finest art in the various divisions of sculpture, painting, graphic art, etc., might be shown. The galleries should be universal in their exhibits, not sacrificing one school to another, but barring everything or every school that was debasing and ignoble in character.

When sales were made [and we would hope there would be many], a percentage would be retained by the Chicago Civic galleries to offset the expense of keeping them running and a certain other per cent should go into a prize fund and into a scholarship fund for talented young artists who will undoubtedly spring up with the years.

There is an enormous future for such a gallery, and it would encroach in no way upon any other gallery now existing in Chicago. It would be a museum only in as far as it housed the Municipal Art league collection and those works which belong to Chicago under the commission for the encouragement of local art.

The cost of building the addition should not be prohibitive and the addition should not detract from the present dignified appearance of the library. A story was added to the White House in Washington, D. C., without harming its appearance, so there is no question but what a similar change could be made here. We probably would need from $100,000 to $150,000. The Chicago "I Will" spirit should be able to raise that. The benefits from the plan are inestimable; it could be one of the show places of America and one to which other cities would look in envy.

Again, the present art room in the Chicago Public library is in a disgraceful condition, chiefly because of overcrowded conditions. At the moment this could be remedied if the librarian could be persuaded to redraft the layout of the first floor, removing the music department and giving more adequate space to the art department. Further wise planning would see that the music department also was better placed.

With a new story added, the art department, books and magazines, reproductions and slides, all of that necessary part to the better appreciation and sounder knowledge of art, could be arranged for easily near the new galleries. New York and Boston have been doing something for themselves in the same manner, but here is our chance close at home to bring Chicago into close contact with Chicago's artists, Chicago's teachers and students of art, and Chicago's visitors who are appreciative of art.

The eighteenth international water color show will open at the Art institute on Thursday, March 23, to continue to May 14.

The eighteenth annual art exhibition of the works of north shore artists will open at the Woman's Club of Evanston on March 28, to continue through April 4.

An exhibition of former prize winners of the Hoosier salon opens tomorrow in the Marshall Field galleries, to run two weeks. The artists represented are Georges La Chance, C. Curry Bohm, Will Vawter, V. J. Carianni, Edward K. Williams, L. O. Griffith, and Dale Bessire.

AUSTEN'S "LADDIE BOY"

Two Business Clubs Holding Joint Luncheon

The Chicago Association of Commerce and the Alliance of Business and Professional Women of Chicago again will be hosts to leading business and professional men and women of the city at a joint luncheon at 12:15 o'clock Wednesday in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House.

Baroness Suzanne Silvercruys, sister and official hostess of the Belgian minister to Canada, and herself a sculptress, will speak on "Do We Live?" As she talks she will do a bust of Oscar Mayer, president of the Association of Commerce.

As a young girl Baroness Silvercruys, daughter of the late president of the Supreme court of Belgium, toured the United States for the Belgian government during the world war and lectured as the "little Belgian girl." She was subsequently knighted for her services to Belgium.

She became an American citizen in 1922, and completed the five-year course of the Yale School of Fine Arts in three years, carrying off all prizes available to women. Her work includes portrait busts of notables such as Hoover, Jack Dempsey and Bishop William T. Manning, but her favorite subjects are babies and young children. She is an author and lecturer as well as a sculptress, and was decorated by France as an officer of the French Academy.

This is the eighth year that the Association and the Alliance have sponsored this joint luncheon. Mrs. Anne Zinser, who presided at last year's meeting, again will officiate.

The Alliance of Business and Professional Women will be one of seven organizations in the Chicago area to hold a joint meeting next Sunday afternoon in Evanston. The Evanston Business and Professional Women's club will be hostess to districts 1 to 10 of the Illinois Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs at 2:30 o'clock at the Congregational community house, 1417 Hinman avenue.

Miss Celia M. Howard, the federation's national secretary, will speak. A district chairman will be elected for the coming year. A musical program and tea also are scheduled. The Business and Professional Women's Club of Chicago, the Chicago Civic Business and Professional Women's club, the Lake Shore, the West Area, and the Waukegan Business and Professional Women's clubs also will attend this meeting. Mrs. Clara M. Kelley is present district chairman.

Outstanding achievement by its members will be recognized by the Women's Finance forum with an annual award of distinction. Mrs. Hazel R. Ferguson, president, has announced that beginning this year the forum each year will present the award to a member who, in the opinion of the other members, has achieved the most, not only for herself, but for women as a whole and for the forum. The award will be presented at the annual banquet in April.

Miss Marian L. Marshall, president of the Women's Bar Association of Illinois, will speak on "Signing Your Life Away" before the forum at a dinner meeting Thursday evening at the Chicago Woman's club. Henry P. Chandler, president of the Chicago Bar association; Miss Mary Bailey, assistant district attorney; H. W. Torgenson, of the finance and economics department of Northwestern university; Miss Ople Marvin, president of the Chicago Bank Women, and Mrs. Kathryn Keeler, forensic photographer, will be among the special guests.

J. D. Tudhope, estate counselor, will speak on "I Give, Devise and Bequeath" at the forum's morning meeting Thursday, also at the Woman's club. Mrs. Flora Cooley is chairman of the morning sessions.

An exhibition designed to acquaint its members with each other's work will be a feature of a dinner meeting of the Women's Advertising club of Chicago Tuesday evening at the Chicago Woman's club. First and second prizes will be awarded to the most informative and original displays.

Miss Marcella Shannon, club member and beauty authority, will lecture on and demonstrate body building and the use of comestics, employing several models. Miss Kay Ratto, merchandise counselor of the Merchandise Mart and also a member, will discuss "Building Businesses." Miss Helen Vance, program chairman, has planned the dinner meeting.

As part of a nationwide observance more than 200 young business and professional women of the Chicago Y. W. C. A. will hold their eleventh annual dinner and program on democracy tomorrow evening at the Central Branch Y. W. C. A., 59 East Monroe street.

Russell Babcock of the Winnetka public schools will speak on "What Is Economic Democracy?" A skit by Miss Barbara Abel of the Y. W. C. A. metropolitan staf entitled "Who'll Buy Democracy?" will be presented, and Mrs. Frances Butler and Miss Johnetta Hinton will provide music. Miss Rachel Martindale, president of the City-Wide Council of Business and Professional Women, will preside.

The dinner is one of 250 similar events to be sponsored by Y. W. C. A. business clubs throughout the United States and in foreign countries. Among the greetings received from other organizations is a lei from the Honolulu group which will decorate the Chicago council's dinner table. Lum and Abner have planned their program tomorrow evening with reference to this observance, and members will hear it just before dinner.

Hawaiian Trip Cancels Hardin St. Pat's Fete

By Ruth Billheimer.

It's news when Mrs. John Holbrook Hardin doesn't give her annual St. Patrick's day party, and this is the first year she has missed in goodness knows how many, for the custom began with her mother, the late Mrs. Jane Burnet of Chicago. And Mrs. Hardin was perpetuating the tradition long before she came to California from Hubbard Woods before the end of the '20s.

PASADENA, CAL.

But this year Mrs. Hardin is giving herself a two months' St. Patrick's treat . . . a sojourn in Honolulu. Her sister-in-law, Mrs. R. W. Burnet of Minneapolis, and the latter's daughter, Miss Jane Burnet, who carries on her grandmother's name, came here late in January and the three left on Feb. 3. On their return next month they will go to the Golden Gate exposition at San Francisco.

A party to which many Pasadenans and former Chicagoans are looking forward is the reception which Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Barnett Riley of Prospect boulevard will give on Monday afternoon, April 3, from 4 until 6 o'clock, to celebrate their golden wedding. Their attractive, gold-lettered invitations carefully admonished their friends to bring no presents, adding hospitably: "Your presence only is requested."

Mrs. William A. Magie, president of the Pasadena Garden club, is back from Houston, Tex., where she attended the Garden Clubs of America convention. She is now interested in assisting with a California wildflower exhibit in the public library and also in Pasadena's annual spring flower show which opens March 30 for a four day run. Mrs. Phillip Schuyler Doane again heads the commissary committee.

Santa Anita is "going to the dogs" today, for the Junior League's annual charity dog show has moved in for the week-end. But the pedigreed pets are not basking in the glory of Santa Anita's former tenants. Their showing calls thousands of persons to the horse park on their own account.

Mexico City Lifts Old Blue Law on Kissing in Public

Kissing in public, long a misdemeanor in Mexico City, and attended by much notoriety, has been given the okay by the police department after much agitation by feminine organizations. It was found that the sharp slump in arrests for this offense was not due to leniency of the police, but because some officers made a racket of shaking down the kissers.

The department decided to permit kissing in public when it was found that some policemen collected anywhere from 50 cents to a couple of dollars from swains they caught osculating in public. The law had forbidden even married couples or relatives to kiss outdoors.

By Helen Bartlett.

At the risk of its proving to be a boomerang, we want to talk things over with the chronic complainers who never have a kind word to say about anything. The possibility of the boomerang lies in the fact that, in this weekly column, we spend at least half our time finding fault with some one or something, such as the store clerk who calls us "dearie," the person on the other end of the telephone who introduces her conversation by asking "who is thi?", the one who always is late, and the one who always is pushing.

Now that we look back, we have picked a lot of bones, professionally at least. But it is only the professional activities that this potential boomerang knows anything about. And having called the hand, maybe it won't strike.

The thing we would like to accomplish today is some success in persuading those perennial pessimists that life would be brighter if they looked for and found something pleasant to talk about. Life for themselves and life for others who have to listen to them would be brighter.

I'm not looking for a lot of boring Pollyannas, those who have eyes for nothing but sweetness and light. They show lack of intelligence and no sense of discrimination. A critical judgment is an admirable quality, but it doesn't necessarily mean that a critical attitude finds nothing but the worst. From intelligent people I expect a good rounded opinion of things. And I expect them to give credit where it is deserved.

The people I resent are those who refuse to see the general effect of a thing which may be favorable, but instead prefer to delve down into the depths in order to pick out some little flaw that really is very unimportant either in itself or in connection with the whole picture. Compliments or sincerely favorable remarks from persons of this disposition are so rare as to be shocking. If you look for errors, mistakes, and flaws, that is what you are certain to find.

WATCH YOUR THROAT LINE

The first place to show the march of the years, the first place to show the sign of neglected skin care...upon it depends half the beauty of your face.

It must be firmed, toned, soothed, as only Elizabeth Arden knows how...patted and smoothed by deft hands...toned and soothed by the creams and lotions which have made the Elizabeth Arden Salon Treatments the most famous in the world.

For Miss Arden believes that your face begins at the base of your throat...that so much of the loveliness of the face itself depends on the throat's firm strength, just as the glory of a flower depends on the grace of its stem.

Cruise Greets Summer Days at Las Palmas

By Frederic Babcock.

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands.—We greeted spring in Madeira; we greeted summer here. . . . This is the place, due east of southern United States, that has a mean temperature of 71 degrees. Were it not so far off the beaten path, it probably would have world fame as a year around resort. As it is, comparatively few travelers know of its attractiveness.

But, after the almost unbelievable lushness of Medeira, the first impression of the Canaries is disappointing. The view from the approaching steamer is a total loss. Las Palmas looks to be a dismal, sun-baked cluster surrounded by black sandhills. You might think a movie director had got mixed up in his locations and had ordered the bad lands transplanted from South Dakota to the tropics. It is not until you orient yourself properly that you begin to appreciate the setting. After all, Chicago is nothing to rave about when you approach it through the steel mills or the slums. You don't get the feel of it until you reach the lake front. The beauty of these islands isn't presented to you on a silver platter; you have to go out and find it.

This group, 60 miles off the coast of northwest Africa, is believed to have been the "fortunate isles" of the Romans. In the second century Ptolemy regarded it as the western edge of the world. North African Berbers settled here several centuries later, but it was not until along about 1270 that the Europeans grew interested. For two centuries Portugal and Spain fought for the islands, the Iberians won out in 1479, and since then this has been a Spanish colony.

These facts are mentioned, not in an attempt to give an outline of the Canaries' history, but rather to give a background for what the tourist encounters here today. As this is being put down on paper [in late February], Spain is still closed to the outsider. The passport issued by Secretary of State Cordell Hull specifically provides that the holder cannot enter that country. But the prohibition doesn't extend to what few colonies Spain has left of its former empire. Which is fortunate for the traveler, because, after some searching, he can dig up, in this possession, plenty of tourist treasure.

Las Palmas is full of the sights one could find in the mother country before the Spaniards began their campaign of self-extermination. Its parks, squares, and public buildings are much the same as one would expect to find in Madrid or Seville. Its theater is worth a visit, if only on account of its elaborately embroidered curtain. Its cathedral is a standout attraction for two reasons: The interior is much more restful, and less garish, than most of the other churches in the Latin countries, and the exterior is anything but restful. A major part of the front is covered with a huge sign screaming: FRANCO FRANCO FRANCO ARRIBA ESPANA. For that matter, the whole city is plastered with pictures of the conquering general. This is his old home town; the revolution got its first real impetus here. . . .

A tour of the city reveals modern apartments, swarms of dogs and children, canary birds in endless song, second hand American autos, horsecars called tartanas, movies advertising Edward Arnold and Laurel and Hardy, and cafés and tearooms boasting of the latest in swing music. A tour of the countryside reveals a great deal of cactus, oxen attached to crude plows, gardens of potatoes, tomatoes, and onions, and orchards of oranges, bananas, and tangerines. The islands used to have a big wine trade, but a vineyard disease put an end to that.

By far the most unusual sight—one that caught this observer completely by surprise—is the hilltop village of cave dwellers. At the end of a long, winding road, and in a setting that outdoes Hollywood, is a self-contained community of homes hewn out of solid rock. The house we visited was clean, attractive, and apparently comfortable.

French Elect a Royalist to the Academy

By May Birkhead.

PARIS

The duke and duchess of Windsor, recently returned to Paris from the Riviera, were among the many in the capital who went to see the head of Queen Victoria which was modeled by the French royalist sculptor, Maxime Real del Sarte. This piece of sculpture is to be unveiled at Biarritz on April 13.

The royalists of France, about whose number no one seems to be certain, lose no occasion to urge, either directly or by implication, monarchy as the best form of government here. They are destined soon to have a remarkable outburst of publicity, for in the near future the French theorist of royalty par excellence, Charles Maurras, is to be officially received into the French academy. No one ever is received into the famous group of the Immortals, as the academicians often are called, unless he makes application to be taken in, and performs the round of visits which give all who might vote for him a chance to see him and learn what he claims are his titles to membership.

It was not believed that Charles Maurras ever would solicit membership for himself, but a few months ago, amid general surprise, he made the necessary visits, and was promptly elected. The day of his reception will take on almost the proportions of an historic event. In the meantime, Maxime Real del Sarte has just completed the beautiful handle of the sword of honor which is to be presented to Maurras. Thousands of persons from all parts of France have subscribed to this gift.

Charles Maurras, now an elderly man of about 76, thus sees coming to him, in the evening of his life, official honors of a kind that he would seem to have done nearly everything to render impossible. Everything, that is, in a political way. As a writer, he has long been regarded, even by his political enemies, as one of the supreme pens of this epoch in France. But he belongs to that combative type of polemist, as the French say, who neither gives quarter, nor expects it from his enemies.

For many years, no one was considered a worse enemy of the French republic than an advocate of royalism. About the turn of the century, Maurras and Léon Daudet, son of Alphonse Daudet, founded the Action Française, destined to become the militant organ of French royalism. Both of them have been at times, thrown into prison, but they have gone on attacking the republic as hopelessly inefficient, and today Léon Daudet, one of the hardest hitting and most picturesque of journalists, with an amazing record as historian, memorialist, biographer, and scientist, is the leading figure of the Académie Goncourt, while Maurras soon will adorn the grand Académie Française, founded over three centuries ago by Richelieu.

Many who do not agree with their political ideals, nor even approve of their methods, like to read the flaming prose of these doughty attackers.

Hospitable Custom.

In Amsterdam, Holland, there is a famous old distillery which serves visitors samples of its liqueurs in a time-honored way. The glass is filled exactly to the brim, and you must bend over and take your first sip without using your hands.

Europe in 1939 Beckons Again to Travelers

The biggest thing in Europe in 1939 will be held in a country that has no seaports but receives thousands of visitors every year from the United States and Canada. The Swiss National exposition at Zurich from May 6 until Oct. 29 will be the old world's chief attraction. In 1940 the Olympic games will give Finland the big harvest of tourists, but Switzerland is to have 1939. Apart from the usual musical and sporting events the visitors to Zurich will enjoy a yodeling festival, Swiss costume fêtes, and all manner of quaint folkplay performances.

Early in the year Switzerland, Norway, Sweden, Germany, France, Poland, and Italy offer the visitors some of the most thrilling ski events of the world. However, Sweden's sporting event of greatest international interest in 1939 will be the Lingiad, which opens at Gothenburg on April 15. This will be a huge gymnastic festival honoring the founder of Swedish gymnastics, Peter H. Ling.

Germany can always be depended on to produce a full year of interest for visitors and 1939, like previous years, will see the famous Leipzig fairs in spring and fall, the usual medieval pageants and plays at Rothenburg, and most famous of all, the great musical festivals at Bayreuth and Salzburg in July and August.

Italy announces a year full of exhibitions and the observance of scores of festivals which have been held for centuries. A great Medici exposition will open in Florence in April and run till October, while Milan holds this spring an exhibition of the works, both in art and invention, of Leonardo da Vinci. Syracuse during April and May will again give its classical Greek drama in its ancient and majestic arena theater, and annual events like the Palio races of Siena and the Levantine fair at Bari will attract thousands of overseas travelers as well as hosts from all over Italy.

Some of the most alluring events on Holland's 1939 tourist calendar are its spring flower shows. These include the great flower show at the Hague, opening March 30, and the glorious square miles of colored bulb fields which are in full bloom until the middle of May.

France's first 1939 visitors will include not only the thousands who are now staying at the Riviera, and who at Nice, Mentone, and other gay resorts are far from winter snow and already enjoying spring, but will number many who will journey for festivals seen nowhere else on earth. Pardons and Benedictions of the Sea in Brittany and Normandy, pilgrimages to Lourdes and Lisieux, horse races near Paris at Auteuil and Tremblay—all go to make a thoroughly varied almanac of attractions.

Surprising many, Spain comes back on the tourist map in 1939. All the great patron saints' days will be observed with pageantry and costume, and bull fights are announced at Burgos, Cadiz, Granada, Cordova, and Seville, as well as other famous Spanish towns.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

At the annual meeting of the Woman's Trafic club Gertrude K. Micon of the Hamburg-American Line North German Lloyd was elected president; Miss Dorothy F. Jamieson of D. C. Andrews & Co. was elected second vice president. The following were reëlected to serve another term: Mrs. Eleanor W. Luebker of the Wetsern Bolt and Nut company, first vice president; Miss Berenice Emery of Johnson & Johnson, recording secretary; Miss Catherine M. Quinn of Keeshin Transcontinental Freight Lines, corresponding secretary.

Ice breakers are already at work in the St. Lawrence river and on April 20 the Montcalm of the Canadian Pacific fleet will arrive at Montreal to open the season. There will be nine sailings of the "Mont" ships from Montreal this year, twenty-six of the reconditioned "Duchesses" from that port and nine of the Empress of Australia from Quebec.

The Empress of Britain will sail from New York for Southampton on May 16, finishing her 1939 world cruise, and after a general overhauling will go into service between Quebec, Cherbourg, and Southampton, making eleven trips between June 10 and Nov. 4.

The Fair Store travelogue to be given at 11 a. m. on Friday will show Glacier National park in a colored movie.

Starting June 6 the American Express Travel service will offer three types of motor coach tours of the English countryside, with departures every Tuesday from London. During July and August departures will be made every Tuesday and Friday. The tours are six, nine, and thirteen days in length, the longest being a combination of the shorter two. The six day tour features the Shakespeare country and Devon. Winding the first day through Maidenhead, Henley-on-Thames, Oxford, Banbury, and Kenilworth and Warwick castles, its first long stop is Stratford-on-Avon. There travelers will visit Shakespeare's birthplace, Harvard house, and Anne Hathaway's cottage, proceeding via Broadway, a beautiful English village, to Bath, famous spa and watering place.

Charles Kozminski of the Red Star Line announces two conducted and sixteen independent tours for the coming summer. The two conducted tours are guaranteed to sail, one on June 17 on the Westernland for England, Scotland, the North Cape, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, and Belgium, and the other on July 1 on the Pennland to the Scandinavian countries, Belgium, and France.

A journey intended to take in modern and medieval Italy with glimpses of the island villages of the Adriatic where picturesque life still resembles a genre folklore painting of bygone days is the Italian Dalmation tour, announced by the American Export Lines. "The journeys fall under the spell created by the middle ages and emerge into the dawn of the commune and the republic with the rise of the arts and cultures of the folding Rennaissance," says George C. Gaede, passenger trafic manager of the lines, who describes the tour as a special fourteen day extension to the regular forty-six day Yankee Cruise Mediterranean voyages.

The Paris will sail on June 24 under the auspices of Raymond-Whitcomb for a Norway-Europe cruise which will include Madeira, Lisbon, in Portgual and Brest in Brittany, besides British, Irish, and Scandinavian ports.

Changeless Street to Be Museum Piece

LONDON.—A street that will not change is soon to be made a museum piece of Hull. Known as Old Times street, it will have more than thirty shops and will be paved with cobble stones. Alpine Land Lists Summer Gala Events

Nineteen hundred and thirty-nine will be a banner year for travel in Switzerland, with extraordinary attractions filling the season's calendar from early May until the end of October. Welcome to tourists on a budget will, first of all, be the news that the Swiss railways are again granting fare reductions up to 45 per cent to foreign visitors who stay in Switzerland for at least six days, and that among other inducements the already cheap eight and fifteen days' unlimited travel tickets are subject to a 30 per cent rebate.

Even the guest motorist's pocketbook receives consideration, for if he stays within Swiss boundaries for at least three days he gets a special rebate on each litre of gasoline, up to 300 litres, purchased in the country. The necessary documentation is given him when he enters Switzerland and an adequate refund is made to him at the frontier when he leaves.

The little land of the Alps is a paradise where scenery, invigorating climate, and health springs combine to refresh and rejuvenate human bodies and minds. Sparkling streams and lakes dotted with modern bathing beaches are equally suited for daydreaming, fishing, and aquatic frolics. Picture-book features of Switzerland are her ancient villages and towns with carefully preserved strongholds, gates, towers, fountain statues, and frescoed houses a reminder of medieval days. Here, too, linger the cherished customs and costumes of long ago, ever a delight of travelers.

From May 6 until Oct. 29 Switzerland, in all her manifold phases, will go on parade at Zurich, for during that period this gloriously located city, largest in the land, will be hostess to the Swiss National exposition, an event staged but once every twenty-five years. The Fair is housed on both shores of the lake of Zurich with boats, an aerial railway, trolleys, and buses as connecting links. Aside from the multitude of displays which the exposition will contain, a gala program of sports and artistic events is being provided for the entertainment of visitors throughout the season. In a huge hall, with removable tent roof, performances of a special festival play, concerts, costumes pageants, and programs covering national sports and pastimes will be given.

Exceptional season attractions are also offered by other Swiss resorts. Thus, at nearby Lucerne, the second International Music festival will be held from the middle of July to the beginning of September, with Toscanini directing several symphony concerts.

At Einsiedeln, near Zurich and Lucerne, Calderon's medieval religious play, "The Great World Theater," will be presented during the summer season under the auspices of the Swiss National exposition, on Wednesdays and Saturdays. The monumental Abbey square is used as an open air stage. For better light effects the performances are given in the evening. Over 200 natives and a number of trained amateurs, all in colorful and authentic costumes, take part in "Great World Theater" presentations.

The ever-fascinating "William Tell" drama will again be presented on Sunday afternoons in the Tell playhouse at Altdorf, near the lake of Lucerne, from July 9-Sept. 10. Also, during the same period, on Sunday afternoons, in the open air theater especially established for this purpose at Interlaken.

Rowing and sailing regattas, swimming meets, Venetian night fêtes, golf and tennis tournaments, automobile and horse races, aviation meets, etc., will be staged at Zurich and in other parts of Switzerland at such frequent intervals that lack of space makes enumeration impossible.

There are splended opportunities, too, for those who wish to combine their summer vacation with studies. Vacation courses in French language and culture are given at the University of Geneva from July to middle of October; at the University of Lausanne, in four series of three weeks each, from July 15 to Oct. 15, and at the University of Neuchâtel in two series from middle of July to middle of September. The courses are taught by eminent professors, the fees are negligible, and surprisingly cheap board and room may be had in small pensions or private homes.

An interesting intellectual feature is also the summer school of European studies operating under the auspices of the University of Zurich and the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology at Zurich. The 1939 sessions will be held at Zurich from July 17-30, and at Davos, in the mountains of the Grisons, from July 31-Aug. 13. The courses scheduled include: "Problems of Democracy in Contemporary Europe," "Swiss Citizenship at Work," "French Language and Literature," and "German Language." Detailed data on the summer school of European studies may be obtained from Prof. Stephen Duggan, 2 West 45th street, New York City, the Swiss consulates, and the official agency of the Swiss federal railroads, 475 Fifth avenue, New York.

Summer Art Exhibit to Be Held in Italy

One of the most interesting art exhibits in Italy this year will open April 15 in the ancient city of Brescia. Visitors will have the opportunity of viewing a large collection of paintings by Moretto, Romanino, Savoldo and Foppa, the four Brescian masters who brought fame to themselves and glory to their native city. Most of their masterpieces, as well as lesser known works, will be included. Because of the rare privilege of seeing so many works by the above masters in one place, and because the churches and palaces of the city itself are so rich in example of frescoes and religious paintings, the exhibit will be an event of great interest.

The end of the fifteenth century saw the birth of several Brescian artists whose works have merited a place beside the greatest masters in nearly all the museums and galleries of the world. Many of their best efforts, like those of the artists and craftsmen throughout Italy, were spent in beautifying the churches with large frescoes, allegorical and religious paintings, magnificent altarpieces and choir screens.

In this connection it is interesting to recall that the year 1000 was commonly believed to mark the end of the world. When this did not actually occur a spirit of rejoicing filled the people and manifested itself in an increase of religious fervour. They began to transform the simple churches into triumphs of architectural beauty on which were lavished their knowledge of science, craftsmanship and art. This spirit continued until the end of the Renaissance, each generation commissioning its greatest artists to aid in the embellishment. Today, as a consequence, we find many outstanding achievements still on view in their original settings.

Of the four mentioned masters, Moretto and Romanino are perhaps the more prominent, as well as more prolific. "Il Moretto," whose real name was Alessandro Bonvicinc, has been called a pupil of Titian. Later his work compared favorably with the highest performances of the Venetian school. Many of his canvases and frescoes may be seen in the churches of Brescia, especially in the Rotonda, or old cathedral. The Martinengo picture gallery contains a number of paintings and the church of St. Clemente boasts a magnificent collection of sacred subjects. A small room with delightful frescoes may be seen at the Salvadigo palace. The church of St. Giovanni Evangelista contains much of his work and the "Massacre of the Innocents" is considered one of his masterpieces.

Girolamo Romanino, who was a few years older than Moretto and who influenced him to some degree, was a pupil of Ferramola. Like Moretto, much of his best work was executed for the churches of Brescia, notably the "Pietà" in St. Lorenzo, finished in 1510, and an altarpiece for St. Francesco in 1512. That same year he went to Padua as guest of the Benedictine monks of St. Giustina. There he painted the beautiful altarpiece representing the virgin and child between St. Frances and St. Anthony and four kneeling saints, and decorated the refectory with the "Last Supper."

Giovanni Girolamo Savoldo gained immediate recognition because of certain distinguishing effects in lighting. He loved and perfected a technique for producing twilight effects and gleams of reflected light. A somewhat romantic element pervaded even his religious paintings, particularly noticeable in his "St. Mary Magdalena Approaching the Sepulchre," whose expression could easily have belonged to a young woman of his own time.

Savoldo spent many years in Venice and his work shows the warmth of the Venetian school rather than the colder Brescian technique. He was nearer Giorgione and Titian in the glow of his living color although his work marks a transition from the purely Venetian tradition.

The name of Vincenzo Foppa is often connected with the forenamed artists and his work appears in the same churches and buildings, though he preceded them by many years and died in 1492. He followed the Lombard school and was first heard of in Milan in 1456 where he announced himself as a citizen of Brescia. In 1462 he was in Pavia where he painted the frescoes in the Carmine, and in 1465 executed a chapel in the famous Certosa. Later he worked in the city of Savona and then returned to Brescia.

His early pictures show prominent characteristics of the Paduan school, but later gained that mastery which comes from long practice. His best works are the "St. Sebastian" in the Brera gallery at Milan, the altarpiece in six panels in S. M. di Castello in Savona, and the "Adoration of the Magi" in the National gallery at London.

Visitors to Brescia will have the added pleasure of seeing one of the most interesting examples of present day town planning. The modern "Piazza della Vittoria," completed in 1932, is as interesting as the antiquities of the ancient museums and palaces which line the streets leading up to and surrounding it.

Brescia lies in the center of a group of lovely hills and is conveniently located between Milan and Venice. The climate is delightful and the visitor will find his trip well worth while. Americans planning to visit Italy in 1939 should include this charming city in their itinerary. The exhibition will close Sept. 15.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

From July 8 to 15. The red sandstone castle, now in ruins, is situated four miles from Warwick and twelve miles from Stratford-on-Avon.

As a musician, I am interested in the birthplace of Joseph Haydn, the composer. I have heard that it is being restored, and I should like to visit is. —C. E. L.

The little farmhouse in which Haydn was born is at Rohrau-on-the-Leitha, a village not a great distance from Vienna. It has long been neglected, but plans are now under way to have it restored. It is to become a museum, with the composer's relics and manuscripts of his works placed on display.

When does Yellowstone National park open? —N. D. D.

Ordinarily about the middle of June.

What is there to see at Tarpon Springs, Fla.? —B. K.

The main attraction is the Greek quarter and its hundreds of sponge fishers. Many of the women and some of the men wear native costumes. They have opened up curios and coffee shops reflecting the Byzantine arts and customs. The annual sales at the sponge auction run close to $1,000,000.

Americans to Study Swedish Ways of Living

A study of the Swedish system for warding off depressions has been included in the Stockholm courses for Americans this summer from July 29 to Aug. 17, with lectures by Swedish leaders in political science. The social science course has been designed to meet the increased interest in Sweden's prosperity among students and educators, who are asking today for an opportunity to combine their study with travel. These travelers this year will be able to analyze first hand the planning behind the "anti-depression" measure of the Swedish budget system, recently considered by President Roosevelt.

This summer's lectures will explain how the Swedish state will act if a depression pokes up its head, how it will expand its income producing enterprises to help business, start new industries in depressed areas, and subsidize agriculture. They will also tell how Sweden keeps its unemployed below three-tenths of one per cent.

Part of Sweden's anti-depression plan is the regulation of the trade cycle by keeping prices on a reasonable level during boom times. Inspection trips in the social science course in Stockholm will cover the coöperatives, which run a battering ram of competition against the doors of any monopolies which try to swing prices above what is considered a logical scale. The coöperative movement has the power to enforce its demands, because it includes a third of the population, runs factories, retail shops, department stores, apartment houses, and newspaper presses.

The lectures will cover the housing of Sweden, which has cleared up all of the country's slums and is now concerned with city planning, municipal subsidies in home building, and coöperative apartments. Another phase of the course has been assigned to the liquor control system that has taken the profit motive out of the distribution of intoxicants and reduced drunkenness 80 per cent.

One important topic will be the currently pressing question of government ownership, which Sweden has solved by a blending of private enterprise with public operation of railroads, water power, telephone, telegraph, and other services. There will be lectures on Sweden's social security, adult education, industrial legislation, and the high points of the country's history. These will be combined with excursions and inspection trips to factories, important buildings, and scenes covered in the course.

The social science lectures will run concurrently with a course in the decorative arts, which will survey the making of the popular Swedish modern furniture, glass, and textiles and cover the achitecture and crafts of four centuries.

Shakespeare Country Full of Historic Spots

To reach the country where Shakespeare dwelt requires a railroad journey from London to Leamington, which is a celebrated health resort about 100 miles to the northwest. When the train deposits you at Leamington it lands you in the heart of a matchless territory. Stratford is a short drive. Warwick castle is a stone's throw away. The stately ruins of Kenilworth are at hand. Rugby is a neighboring town. Just north is the industrial city of Birmingham. And close by is Banbury, where, if you are interested, there is the slim chance of seeing a fine lady ride on a white horse.

Measuring Royalty.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark.—A cat may look at a queen, and in Roskilde cathedral, near here, men may actually measure themselves against kings, for the height of royal visitors is marked there on a great red granite pillar. The pillar has stood since the days of King Canute, and on it are recorded the heights of such monarchs as Peter the Great, Christian VII., and Edward VII. The tallest king registered on the pillar is Peter the Great, who stood 6 feet 8 inches.

Labor Purged by Racketeers

Labor purges have been responsible for four deaths in Minneapolis since 1934. In the riot in Minneapolis' Central market pictured here a citizen was beaten to death.

How Bosses Further Their Ambitions

AN EXCITED voice blared out of the big loud-speaker. About a thousand angry men stood in the street listening and muttering. Many of them wore overalls. Their hands were grimy.

● Before them stood the headquarters of a C. I. O. union. Behind them and across the street rose a huge automobile assembly plant. For it was Flint, Mich., on the afternoon of Jan. 7, 1937, and one of the most significant labor battles in all history was at its height.

● "Join here now!" continued the loud-speaker at the union building. "Join the auto workers and build a union that will fight for you."

● The mass of men, most of whom belonged to no union and who faced the loss of their jobs because of a strike called by the C. I. O., surged resentfully toward the funnel-shaped instrument. Three men seized it, tearing it from its position and hurling it into the street. Other men, who were members of the C. I. O., tried to stop them. Fists swung and heads were cracked. A few of the men crumpled up and fell groaning to the pavement. Police and deputy sherifs finally waded into the mêlée and arrested the more vicious battlers and took them off to jail.

● Soon the battle flared up in front of another automobile plant. This time the strikers succeeded in locking up three private company policemen in the plant before city police dispersed them with fire hoses and tear gas. The battle continued all night, however, and there were nineteen casualties. The next day saw the mobilization of the Michigan National Guardsmen.

● The magnitude of this struggle between union men, who wanted to strike, and nonunion workers, who wanted to keep their jobs, cannot be appreciated without considering the forces behind each faction.

The "big stick," symbol of the illegal sit-down strike. At left, Homer Martin, who uncovered communism in auto union ranks, and John L. Lewis, a leader in two labor purges.

Foreword One of the significant devices of modern civilization is the so-called purge. With this weapon the twentieth-century dictator justifies a thing which as indulged in by primitive people is commonly known as savagery. In modern America the purge has become a favorite device of political dictators. It has for years been the weapon of labor racketeers to further their unlawful ambitions. In the accompanying story is presented a record of labor purges in this country.

A Favorite Weapon of the Dictator

Behind the unorganized, relatively contented nonunion men stood the world's largest automobile manufacturer, the General Motors corporation.

● Behind the newly regimented union stood the Committee for Industrial Organization, an organization of vast potentialities led by John L. Lewis, whose ambition was to make himself master of a united industrial working class.

● On the nonunion side about 350,000 workers, or more than three-fourths of the industry's employés, ranged themselves to resist the looming menace. Approximately 100,000 workers had joined the C. I. O. unit and had been assured the militant support of other C. I. O. unions all over the nation. Because of the interdependence of G. M. production plants, the strikers already had succeeded in shutting down twenty-eight plants and making 93,000 out of a total of 135,000 production employés quit work.

● The C. I. O.'s greatest weapon was the newly developed sit-down strike, with which a few discontented and rebellious workmen could cripple their plants by dog-in-the-manger tactics in violation of the basic law of property rights. Its deadly effect was evidenced by the fact that the strike was launched by only fifty key C. I. O. workers who had "sat down" in Fisher Body No. 2 plant at Flint. The Story of Franco's Fight Against Reds

By H. ZANE TORRES

Paris.

GEN. FRANCISCO FRANCO at last has been officially recognized by both England and France as the head of the legal government of Spain. This will occasion little surprise to those who know how long a very considerable part of public opinion and leading organs of the press on both sides of the channel have urged such recognition. What does cause wonder is the prevalent anxiety lest recognition of the Nationalist government offend Washington, which, according to London papers, generally has been regarded in Europe as very friendly to the Spanish republican government of Barcelona.

When Negrin's routed army retreated into France after the fall of Barcelona it brought across the frontier great quantities of war material, much of it of American origin, including fifty modern airplanes of American make.

The department of justice at Washington recently disclosed that a suit against the United States for recovery of $10,000,000 worth of silver purchased from the republican government of Spain would be heard in the federal District court of New York late this month. The suit was filed by the stockholders and directors of the Bank of Spain against the Federal Reserve bank, the United States Steamship Lines, and Sigmund Solomon, chief of the federal assay office. The United States plans to ask dismissal of the suits, claiming a legal transaction between two sovereign governments, and the treasury department is quoted by a press assocation as stating that as long as the United States recognizes the Loyalists the treasury will continue to purchase silver offered by the Spanish republicans.

It is believed here that these silver sales to the United States have helped to finance and prolong the Spanish civil war. The gold reserve of the Bank of Spain was tranferred early in the war by the republican government, partly to London, but mainly to Paris, for safe keeping in a Russian bank. The choice of the soviet bank serves to point the coöperation of the soviet government with the so-called republican régime of Spain.

Dorothy Sayers, the British writer, addressing the annual conference of educational associations at University college, London, early in January, stated:

"The soldier may not agree that the pen is mightier than the sword, but today it is the pen which unsheathes the sword. It is a sinister fact that it is officially recognized by the government of every major power, including our own, that there are now four arms in the national armory—the navy, the army, the air force, and propaganda. The inflammatory and unsound rhetoric broadcast among people untrained in analysis and argument is the most powerful weapon ever placed in the hands of the unscrupulous."

Perhaps there is no greater evidence of the power of propaganda than American appraisal of the contending factions in Spain. American sympathy has been propaganda-directed by Russian and other European interests which for reasons not concerned with the welfare of unhappy Spain have willed victory for the communist faction.

Much has been written of the Spanish war by well-intentioned but ill-informed persons, some of whom have never been nearer to Spain than attendance at a performance of "Carmen." These lines are written by a Chicago-born woman of pioneer American stock who many years ago entered an ancient Spanish family via an altar in Madrid and learned to know Spain from the viewpoint of an aristocratic family gone republican. The venerable head of that house, long since dead, in his youth had espoused with life and fortune the republican cause. He was one of the founders of the first Spanish republic. As a young officer he rode beside General Prim into Madrid on the day that the ill-fated first Spanish republic was proclaimed in the capital.

His sons liked to relate that on every recurring anniversary of that triumphant day he would raise his glass "to the advent of the second Spanish republic!"

Liberalism has never lacked adherents in Spain. The despairing poverty of the peasantry; the concentration of culture as well as wealth in the ruling classes; the underpayment of labor and overtaxation of the tools of toil; absentee landlordism; the diversion of great tracts of the nation's most fertile lands as grazing ground for fighting bulls, while men lacked bread—these were wrongs that cried to heaven for redress and which eventually hoisted for a second time a republican flag on the royal palace in Madrid.

It was a bloodless victory, and from Algeciras to Barcelona, from Malaga to San Sebastian, Spain rejoiced! But parliamentary processes were slow. The land reform bill, which was to partition among peasant farmers the great estates of absentee landlords, was tabled in the cortes while extremists in republican ranks intrigued for power. The old cry of federalism was raised anew, a wedge into the unity of the young republic. It is being broached today as Franco closes his hand on victory. Federalism was first advocated by Señor Pi y Margall, who was president of the first republic in 1873. The results were so disastrous that historians charge this policy with having unwittingly restored the monarchy.

It is possible that history will repeat itself. It was a federalist who ushered in the 1936 civil war. The first hand that was raised against this Spanish republic was not that of Francisco Franco, but of Luis Companys, a member of President Azaña's "republican" cabinet and one of Prime Minister Negrin's highest executives on the day in 1939 that Barcelona fell to Franco. On Oct. 6, 1934, Don Luis Companys solemnly proclaimed the Catalan authority in opposition to the republican government in Madrid, and himself as the "president of the Catalan state of the Spanish federal republic." The revolt was frustrated by the Catalan military authorities. This is of record. It was the beginning of the communist régime which two years later brought a revolt under the leadership of Gen. Francisco Franco.

It had long been predicted in Moscow that Spain would be the first country in western Europe to set up a communist government. Dictator Stalin of Russia reminded the communist party (according to the London Times) that "comrades must not expect existing systems to fall without a push. . . . Opportunities must be fostered and grasped by alert communist leaders."

Communists were "alert" in Spain as the young republic tottered on its uncertain feet. The anarchists, a numerically strong organization in Catalonia, joined forces with the syndicalists, who controled the labor movement of the country. Foreign agitators fomented discord among peasants disillusioned by the vacillation of the cortes. Señor Largo Caballero, a labor leader and later prime minister, climbed on the rungs of national discontent, while Azaña, then prime minister, a militant atheist, led the fight against the church. Religious orders were dissolved by decree, churches closed; convents, hospitals, and schools confiscated by the government. Many members of religious communities were driven penniless from the country. The leftists in the cortes enfranchised women. And, crowding to the polls to cast their first ballots, Spanish women voted to reopen churches and Catholic schools!

This ballot cast by her women was the true voice of Spain—of that Spain which in holy week sees in every town religious processions as colorful as a Velasquez canvas; of that Spain where on Christmas eve (until the Christmas of 1937, when the Red Loyalist government banned all celebration of the Christ Child's birth) might be heard old church chimes and the murmuring songs of shepherds and of childhood—for few homes were too poor or too advancedly Socialist to have a little nacimiento of their own.

It was difficult to make communists of women who marched in religious processions through the streets, of men who twanged a singing guitar. But the atheistic minority which had seized the reins of government did its best. Prof. Gregario Marañon, one of the liberal founders of the second republic, writing on Sept. 10, 1938, stated:

"Franco's was not an uprising against the liberal republic. It was an uprising against the men with fur caps and long goatees who were beginning to overrun Spain . . . against meetings presided over by portraits of Lenin and attended by members of the government."

There are more than twenty million Catholics in the United States, and few will need to be reminded of the savagery against their co-religionists which marked the early stages of the civil war. Franco's revolt against Moscow's control of Spain was met by persecution of Catholics far exceeding in barbarity and scope the Jewish pogroms which have disgraced the third Reich.

Churches of great historic value were fired. Priceless works of art were wantonly destroyed because they had religious subjects. Statues of Christ and crucifixes were used as targets to train young republican sharpshooters. Persons suspected of Catholic piety were carted to open burial trenches, where in scores they were shot and left to die. Thousands of respectable noncombatant civilians were executed without trial. Priests were dragged from the altar, their vestments saturated with gasoline and set afire. Nuns were violated and left lying in the streets. In republican territory (as distinct from Franco territory) Catholics' money was seized on various pretexts, their property looted and destroyed. They were beggared by the warriors, who, like a Ku Klux Klan, pillaged by night.

According to official figures of the Vatican, 16,000 Catholic priests and nuns were massacred by the "republicans" during the first months of the civil war. The late Pope Pius XI. evoked all the power and influence of the church against persecution of the Jews not only in Germany but in his native Italy. The American government rightly and vigorously protested the persecution of Jews in Germany. Who in Washington has protested the martyrdom of Catholics in Spain?

The evidence of communist participation in the barbarities of the republican government is incontestible. Early in the war the Manchester Guardian reported:

"The second (Socialist) and third (communist) internationals have decided to join in helping the Spanish government. It is announced in Moscow that De Broukere, secretary of the second international, has telegraphed to Dimitroff, secretary general of the third international, accepting his proposal to appoint a joint committee to work out a plan of action."

After naming the committee the report calls attention "to this united front of Socialists and communists" and continues:

"The labor and Socialist (second) international came into being in 1889. When the World war broke out the communist (third) international was formed of Socialist minority groups headed by Lenin, who was opposed to the war. At the end of the war and after the outbreak of the Russian revolution it became identified with bolshevism and became the international body for the organization of the world revolutionary movement. Since then it has avowed relentless hostility to the second international."

Thus for the first time since the days of Lenin the two rival communist internationals formed a common front in support of the Red republican government of Spain. The London Observer recently stated that up to June 30, 1938, Franco's men had brought down 948 airplanes, of which 809 were Russian.

Posters signed by the Union Anarchiste Federation Parisienne look out from old walls in Paris and invite the workers to:

"Come! Manifest your solidarity with republican Spain in commemorating en masse the death of the anarchist Durruti, whose memory has become a symbol. Durruti, who fell in defense of Madrid, was the personification of the proletariat revolution."

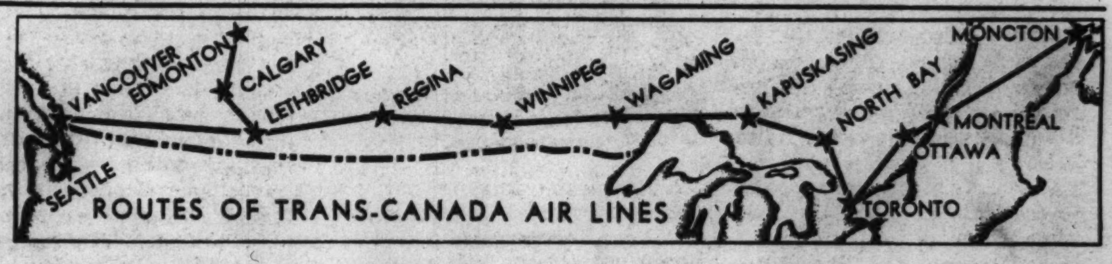
It is a remarkable commentary on the power of propaganda that those Americans who are most vociferous in defense of free speech and the freedom of the press are equally vocal in support of the Washington administration's sympathy with Spain's republican government.

Yet less than a month ago the Negrin government at Barcelona confiscated all radio sets and decreed severe penalties for "listening in." In this way civilians were prevented from hearing that Franco's army was bringing bread and that there would be no reprisals against the civilian population. The people were without news; terrifying rumors added to the anguish of uncertainty. Thousands of Catalans began the long trek to the French frontier. In the pitiful procession were the aged, limping and plodding through the snow; there were little children, half dragged, half carried, who died along the road from cold and privation. There were peasant mothers and their babes, and women who arrived crazed—well in advance of soldiers on horse, Red republican militiamen in retreat, their saddle bags filled with jewels and other loot.

This suppression of news was in line with the Red republican government's habitual policy. The second Spanish republic was not two years old when the London Times, commenting on "the plight of the Spanish press," stated:

"Never in the history of Spain has the national press suffered such vexation or been the victim of arbitrary action to the extent exercised by the republican authorities. . . . The government does not exercise censorship; it simply suppresses. After the revolt of last April 115 news organs were ordered to cease publication.

"In view of the positive assurances given to the Spanish people in their new constitution that they shall be free to give expression to their opinions, this ruthless attack on press liberties might well cause astonishment, which increases with the knowledge that so far as can be ascertained, although dozens of newspapers were suspended, not a single one was afterward incriminated or charged with participation in the revolt. By batches of twos and threes many of the newspapers are allowed to reappear after more than two months, but a goodly number still lie under the ban. For losses suffered by newspaper owners, editorial stafs, and employés there is no hope of indemnity or redress."



Canada Booms Its Aviation

By WAYNE THOMIS

WITH American airplanes and the aid of American air transportation executives and technicians, Canadian gold has established in the brief period of twenty-four months a transcontinental airway linking the maritime provinces on the Atlantic ocean with Vancouver on the Pacific. Trans-Canada Air Lines now carries passengers, mail, and express from coast to coast in twenty-one hours.

The Canadians started from scratch in 1937 when the Dominion parliament passed an act authorizing the air service. Canada had many commercial flyers who flew supplies and men from the "end of steel" and from the end of the roads to wilderness bases for trapping, hunting, mining, and lumber operations. But no east-west air route existed. There were very few airports. Freight flyers used lakes and rivers for their flying fields summer and winter.

Building the air line was a big job needing experienced leadership. The Canadians recognized this in obtaining P. G. Johnson, former president of United Air Lines in the United States, as vice president in charge of operations. Johnson, a Seattle banker, jumped at the opportunity to get back into air transportation after having been maneuvered out of the American picture by New Deal Democrats.

Another United man, D. B. Colyer, became chief technical adviser. With him came four American specialists—H. T. Lewis, flying supervisor; H. O. West (another United man), chief of aircraft and engine maintenance and overhaul; S. S. Stevens, in charge of radio engineering; and O. T. Larson (still another United expert), in charge of meteorology and dispatching.

Surveys of the route already had been made, and the business of buying grounds for airports, intermediate fields, and radio stations occupied the staf for months. Then came installation of light beacons and thirty radio range beacon stations. A staf of young Canadian pilots was started on an intensive course in modern flying. Five Lockheed Electra transports and ten Lockheed 14s were purchased.

During the winter of 1937-'38 radio range beacon stations were put into operation at Regina, Lethbridge, Swift Current, and Medicine Hat. Additional ranges were opened up at Cranbrook and Princeton and at Cowley in the mountain section of the western route. In May of 1938 radio ranges were finished and operated at Broadview and Rivers, completing the Winnipeg-Kapuskasing section of the route. East of Kapuskasing the airway will be finished this summer.

On March 4, 1938, a mail service was established over the Vancouver-Winnipeg portion of the route. The flights have been marred by one accident in which two pilots—David D. Imrie and Jack Herald—were killed when their Lockheed 14 crashed during a storm at Regina, Sask.

An express service was opened between Montreal, Toronto, and Vancouver on Oct. 17 last year. Last Dec. 1 a daily mail service between Montreal and Vancouver was begun. The need for four additional radio stations in the mountainous area became apparent, and they have been installed, making stations at at least 100-mile intervals all across Canada.

The weather service begun by Larson has functioned well and provided considerable valuable information to airways and commercial forecasters in the United States.

This summer the extension of the airway east of Montreal will link up Trans-Canada Air Lines with the trans-Atlantic air service of Imperial Airways and Pan American Airways. Trans-Canada, however, does not expect to be functioning smoothly over this section of its route until autumn.

There is tremendous room for expansion of Trans-Canada airways to the northward. New discoveries of valuable minerals in northern Saskatchewan and the northwest territories have already resulted in commencement of feeder services northward from the main line.

Trans-Canada has a total personnel list of 330 individuals, including clerks and nonflying as well as flying personnel.

WHAT A RELIEF!

"UNCORK" YOUR CORN

Relieve pain and remove corns this easy way

2 Simple Steps now make it easy to get rid of ugly painful corns for good, without the risk of dangerous home paring—without pain or trouble. Here's how:

She's Right at Home in Europe

May Birkhead from Missouri Launched as a Writer by a Disaster at Sea

By GUY MURCHIE JR.

THIS is the story of a lady from Missouri. Most folk from Missouri "have to be shown." But this lady is different. She is doing the showing herself—even though she lives far from Missouri.

Her name is May Birkhead, and she dwells in Paris. She is one of The Chicago Tribune's European correspondents, with perhaps a wider range of valuable contacts and a more colorful fund of intimate behind-the-scenes stories than any other newspaper writer on the continent. How she got that way and how she keeps that way is a story.

It all began with fate pushing an iceberg into the path of a New York bound ship. All was quiet on the North Atlantic ocean on the night of April 14, 1912. More than the usual amount of ice was afloat, but the officers and passengers of the brand new liner Titanic on her maiden voyage were not alarmed. The Titanic, the largest ship the world had ever seen, had been publicized as unsinkable. Her water-tight compartments were the latest thing in safety devices.

But at 11:30 the unbelievable happened. Although perhaps not a soul among the 2,224 persons aboard the doomed steamship realized it for hours afterward, the submerged elbow of an iceberg neatly, imperceptibly had ripped her hull from end to end—slicing open all her "water-tight" compartments.

Most of the passengers already had retired and were not awakened by the slight shudder at 11:30. But by 1 o'clock the captain fully apprehended the impending disaster and every one had been aroused. The ship was beginning to settle and list and the lifeboats were being lowered. The passengers, gazing over the rail at the black water and feeling the cold breath of the icebergs, were slow to be persuaded that their great Titanic was really doomed, and many of the boats were launched unfilled. But at 2:20 a. m. the last of the huge liner finally lurched under the waves, and the mass of agonized passengers, too late to reach the few boats, were forced into the sea. Gasping and shrieking in the darkness, their numb bodies could not long survive the icy water, and 1,315 souls were lost before they could swim to a lifeboat.

That is what was happening to the Titanic as another liner some 100 miles to the south was steaming eastward, bound for Naples. This other liner, the Carpathia, included among her passengers a dark-eyed, vivacious girl named May Birkhead. When the wireless operator of the Carpathia received a distress signal from the Titanic, the Carpathia immediately turned northward and sped to the scene of disaster, and that is how the lady from Missouri came into the picture.

The first thing Miss Birkhead knew of the catastrophe was when she was awakened around 4 o'clock by overhearing one of the stewards calling to another: "Hurry up, now! We're rescuing the passengers from the Titanic."

Miss Birkhead was on deck in five minutes. The first pink wisp of dawn was just creeping across the northeastern sky behind what at first appeared to be mountains. But no, they couldn't be mountains out here in mid-ocean—they were icebergs. Yes, and as she looked and things began to take shape in the gathing light one of the nearer pieces of ice seemed to be moving—coming nearer, nearer. Suddenly it was a lifeboat.

Five minutes later the first load of Titanic passengers had come aboard and Miss Birkhead and a few stewards and other Carpathia passengers who happened to be awake at this early hour were helping them into the dining room, where they were fed hot broth and coffee. Miss Birkhead was about the first to talk to the castaways, many of whom were none the worse for their adventure. Those who had been dragged into the lifeboats from the icy water, however, were suffering severely from cold, and the Titanic's wireless operator was in a desperate condition, with his legs so frozen that he had to be carried on a stretcher to the Carpathia's wireless room, where his services were urgently needed.

Everything that happened was noted by the alert miss from Missouri, who wanted to write a long letter about it to her mother. She even jotted down bits of conversation on the backs of envelopes and wrote down descriptions of the sinking Titanic in the very words used by the survivors.

She had no thought of capitalizing her efforts until on the morning of the day before the Carpathia arrived back in New York she received a wireless message. It was by mere chance that she ever got the message, because it had been addressed to "Maj. Birkhead" instead of "May Birkhead" and had been held in the purser's office for three days. She learned of its presence in a conversation with the purser on another matter.

She tore open the envelope and learned that a New York newspaper wanted her to write the Titanic story. An employé of the paper whom she knew had wirelessed her as the only hope for an exclusive story.

"I can't write a story," said Miss Birkhead to her aunt, who was traveling with her. "I just don't know how."

Nevertheless she accepted the assignment and started to compose the story from her notes. She was sufficiently alert to approach six persons on the ship who had taken photographs of the rescue. These amateur photographers did not want to relinquish their films, since they feared they would not get them back. They also had ideas of selling their photographs to magazines. But Miss Birkhead finally persuaded them that they would not lose their films. They could go direct to the newspaper office, she told them, see their films developed, receive them back, and be paid on the spot.

The story still was being written as the Carpathia entered New York harbor and was met by a number of tugboats bearing newspaper men. Miss Birkhead continued writing at a feverish pace, ignoring offers for her story made by the newspaper men who had arrived on the tugboats. When the Carpathia docked she escorted her amateur photographers to the newspaper office, where their films were developed and they were paid and where she turned over her story of the sea disaster.

So excellent was her first effor at newspaper writing that she received a cablegram from the editor for whose paper she had written, asking her to go to Paris to see him. She went.

"How would you like to write for us regularly?" he asked. "We need some one like you in Paris."

"I don't know how to write," said Miss Birkhead, "but if you'll give me a try, at least I can have some fun while you're finding it out."

"All right, I'll try you for three months," he said. "I want you to handle social gossip, chit-chat, and art notes in the Latin quarter."

She didn't know what all that meant, but she started off with an unlimited expense account and a twinkle in her eye, and enjoyed everything that happened to her to the full and said so in her stories. She was thrilled to get an invitation from American Ambassador Herrick, who had heard her story, and she was dazzled right and left by the celebrities she met. A week later her employer called her in and said to her with a paternal pat: "Now, you cut out all this padding and gush in your stories. Write what really happens. Parisian life can't all be described with the word marvelous."

After that May Birkhead improved steadily in her work. The World war came and went, giving her valuable experience as the world's attention was turned to France. In 1927 she became a European correspondent for The Chicago Tribune, with which paper she has been connected ever since. When Lindbergh flew to Paris she wrote of him, and she has covered such important news events as the British coronation and the duke of Windsor's wedding, to say nothing of writing intimate stories on the social consequences of last September's war scare.

She has traveled through and written about nearly every country in Europe, describing the changes year after year. She has been going each summer to Austria, for instance, and last summer she reported that the maid at her hotel, who formerly had greeted her every morning with the traditional "God bless you," this time said, "Heil Hitler!" Miss Birkhead, irritated at being made a victim of the German tyranny she knew was behind the instructions given to the maid, replied: "Don't speak to me that way. My name isn't Hitler. I'd much rather be greeted the old way."

The maid smiled and from that day on never used the word Hitler in Miss Birkhead's presence.

A few days later her patience was tried too far again, this time in a buttermilk shop. Exasperated by the enforced insincerity of the "Heil Hitler" chant she had been hearing every hour of the day, she responded to the buttermilk man's lusty farewell with "Heil Uncle Sam!"

The duke and duchess of Windsor have, of course, figured largely in Miss Birkhead's recent dispatches, and she has made it her business to know what is in their minds as far as is possible to an outsider. It is her considered guess that the Windsors will remain in France. She says that the duke was anxious to go to America to get a fresh outlook on life from a country free of the distortion and tension of present-day Europe, but that the king's and queen's prospective trip induced him to cancel his plans, at least for the present.

When King George and Queen Elizabeth visited Paris last year their guard was so heavy that one had to have six official passes in order to penetrate it. Even with the passes it was no easy matter to fight through the crowds that habitually collected at the presence of the royal couple, and more than once friendly gendarmes lifted Miss Birkhead in their arms to carry her safely through the milling mass of men and horses amid wide-eyed amazement and excited cries of "Vive la reine! Vive la princesse!"

On many occasions the time element is very important to the success of May Birkhead's stories. Either she must write down the details of some social event before she forgets them or there is an urgent news angle to the affair that must be made ready for the cable office within the hour. To handle such problems she keeps extra typewriters at the Ritz hotel, the scene of much of her activity, and in her car. Many a time a dancing partner who couldn't find her in the ballroom, and has gone outside looking for her, has been astonished to discover her sitting in her car in sable coat and earrings, industriously pounding away at the keyboard.

Names, dates, places, and other such details are all part of her stock in trade, and she must know history like a professor. It makes it more interesting to be able to say that the supper party took place in the house where Josephine once supped with Napoleon, on which occasion the emperor did such and such and was planning to do thus and so.

One of her most important recent stories described the war scare last September. She compared it to 1914, which she had lived through and written about twenty-four years earlier. Most Americans were trying to leave Paris, she says, and by Black Wednesday (Sept. 27) two million people had left the city. She herself was advised to leave, but decided to stay and write about the war preparations and the effect on the people. Telephone service was commandeered by the army for military purposes and all communication was difficult.

After a few days Miss Birkhead went to visit some friends at a château in the country, and she found that château life was greatly affected by the war. Her friends were hoarding provisions of flour, sugar, canned goods, etc., and the army was placing anti-aircraft guns in the bushes about the grounds.

And now May Birkhead, after a brief visit to the United States, has returned to France. Her fellow correspondents need her in Paris. More war scares are forecast for early spring, and should war come her intimate knowledge of royalty and many important friends will be invaluable.

March Brings First Migrating Birds Back North

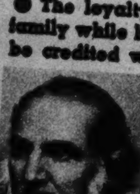
● The loyalty of a wife who assumed the burden of supporting a family while he went about making an avocation into a vocation can be credited with bringing John James Audubon into prominence as a painter and authority on bird life. It was after a series of business reverses involving both himself and his father that Audubon began his famous work, "The Birds of America" (1827-'38), with its 435 hand-colored plates picturing 1,065 birds. Financed by subscriptions and fees, "the American woodsman" produced in later years "Ornithological Biography" (1831-'39), "A Synopsis of the Birds of North America" (1839), a "miniature" revision of "The Birds of America" (1840-'44), and the "Viviparous Quadrupeds of North America." ● Audubon was born at Les Cayes, Santo Domingo (Haiti), on April 26, 1785. He made nature collections during boyhood there and in America and France, where he studied painting. He died in New York on Jan. 27, 1851.



OUTDOOR fans always look forward to March as the month when the first migrating birds come north to announce with their cheery songs that spring is on the way. Among the earliest of these migrants is the red-winged blackbird, a species that nests in reedy sloughs and marshes. This songster has a glossy coat and wears bright red epaulets on his shoulders. The male redwings are the first to arrive during March, although in some years they may appear late in February. Following the older male birds with their bright red shoulder patches are the young male birds (with orange shoulder patches) and the not so colorful females.

The meadowlarks also may be found here already. Their average arrival date is about the 10th of the month. Quite a few larks were seen in Chicagoland this last winter. However, most of them prefer to spend the cold months in the south, where food is abundant. The meadowlark's song is a clear, low-pitched whistle of unusual sweetness. Two species of these birds, the eastern and western, are found in the middle west. Both are good singers and are valuable allies of the farmer, for about 75 per cent of the meadowlark's food consists of insects. The remainder includes weed seeds, some grain, and a little fruit.

Of all the early migrating birds none is more distinctive or better known than the northern flicker, which sometimes will nest in large bird houses. The unusual habits and calls of this bird have made such an impression on bird lovers that they have given it more than one hundred different names. Among the more picturesque are "yellow-hammer" and "high-holer," the latter reflecting the bird's habit of making a nesting hole in a dead tree trunk high above the ground.

Other birds may greet spring with sweet musical songs, but the flicker salutes the new season with a vigorous tattoo from a tree trunk or rooftop. His vocal song, a rapidly repeated "cuh-cuh-cuh-cuh," is as typical of spring as the croaking of frogs in a reedy pond. Although a true woodpecker and an indefatigable enemy of insects which injure trees, the flicker spends a great deal of time on the ground. It is very fond of ants as well as chinchbugs and grasshoppers, making it a real ally of the farmer.

The bluejay is a permanent bird resident that does not migrate southward in the fall. This bright-colored species is often considered something of a reprobate because of its fondness for the eggs and nestlings of other songsters.

Getting Down to Business Is Job of Grooming

Topknot curls have to be top-notch curls if they are to look well all day long. A simple daytime hair-do is safer and doesn't limit the gayety of the night-time coiffure.

By FLORENCE MURDOCH

GETTING down to business—in the proper attire—is becoming quite a problem in the life of what we now call career girls. Femininity is the theme of the day, and it has to be combined with intelligence and good judgment—judgment that stretches from the tactful wording of important letters to the wearing of proper office wardrobe.

According to a director of employment for one of the large companies, there is really no set standard as to what the perfect secretary should look like. It depends a great deal on the employer's taste. But whatever it is, when he is in the market for a secretary he invariably asks for a well dressed, well groomed person. This means that beauty and clothes play an important part in his choice.

It's a feminine trait, being the first with the latest, but there are a few things that should be kept for the play hours of life. The foibles and the fluffy ruffles have their definite place, but the intelligent girl knows that the office is not it.

For instance, there's that bracelet with the plethora of bangles attached. It's a pretty decoration that calls attention to its beauty with every gesture. To your ears, perhaps, its constant tinkle is like music. But picture your poor boss wrapped in deep thought, trying to concentrate and dictate those figures that will mean the landing of that contract for a huge bridge construction that he has been working on for months. His ears get the tinkle, too. But it's no music to him. So leave the pretty thing at home and take no chances of fraying the poor man's nerves.

With every picture in the fashion magazines and display windows and millinery counters at every turn forecasting that a girl is to be swathed in gay, colorful veiling, it's going to take a lot of will power to keep from tripping down to work wearing the filmy stuff draped to your heels. To be really smart in a couple of ways you'll strike a happy medium. Leave the hat with its long train of veiling for the butterfly hours. Wear the plainer number during the day, and let its veil be the smaller and trimmer type that helps to flatter and still keeps one in the fashion trend.

There's a great deal to be said for the simple hair style that can be easily groomed and stand up under the pressure of a business day. Topknot curls have to be top-notch curls if you don't want to look like you're walking around with a noodle nest on top of your head. It may take a good deal of experimenting, but if you are persistent you'll find the hairdress that practically leads two lives—an almost demure one for the 9 to 5 span of the day and a gala one for the festivities that follow the dinner hour.

The smart costume is not always the wisest wardrobe for business wear. Veils for daytime business wear are more appropriately the trim, smaller type. This trailing style should be reserved for the "butterfly" hours.

Japan's South Seas 'Life Line'

By KIMPEI SHEBA

Tokio.

JAPAN'S first line of defense in the Pacific . . . Japan's ocean life line. These are the designations given here to the mandated islands which pepper the South seas starting just above the equator in an area 1,300 miles from north to south and 2,700 miles from east to west.

In the view of Japanese naval strategists the importance of these islands in a hypothetical war between the United States and Japan cannot be overestimated. News that the United States was considering the fortification of Guam (a project since rejected by congress) threw a first class scare into Japan. It is easy to see why. Guam is smack in the midst of the Japanese mandated islands. Japan obtained the Mariana or Ladrone, the Marshall, and the Caroline Islands by mandate from the league of nations after the World war. She has no intention whatever of returning the islands to Germany, from which they were taken.

The strategic importance of the mandated islands in a war with the United States or even with Great Britain is made evident by a glance at the map of the Pacific. No ship from America or England via Panama can go direct to China, the Philippines, or Singapore without going through a hole in this net. But this strategic importance is somewhat reduced by the fact that Japan is not permitted to fortify the islands. Neutral observers confirm Japan's denial of violations in this respect.

Even without fortifications, however, the islands are tremendously imporant. Hundreds of lagoons afford nests for Japanese submarines and planes. There are harbors in a few of the larger islands capable of accommodating the largest cruisers, and channels can be built through the coral reefs wide enough for dreadnaughts. Some naval strategists maintain that the islands do not need fortifying to make them an invaluable protection and base of operations for the Japanese fleet.

Aside from their strategic value the islands are becoming increasingly important for their fisheries, sugar, copra, and phosphates. The average annual catch of fish, mainly bonito and tunny, has grown from almost nothing to $1,000,000. Sugar production, which was started after the Japanese took possession, is estimated at more than $3,000,000 a year. Copra and coconuts yield $1,500,000 each year.

The biggest Japanese company operating in the islands is the Nanyo Kohatsu Kaisha, or South Seas Development corporation, capitalized at $12,000,000. Its interests include sugar refining, the production of pure alcohol and flour, and the mining of phosphate.

Recently it has started growing cotton, but the future of the islands in so far as agriculture is concerned must be held inconsequential. The combined area of the 623 islands, many of which are uninhabited coral reefs, is less than that of Rhode Island.

The foreign trade of the islands has grown rapidly. In 1922, when the South sea administration was inaugurated under the Japanese mandate, foreign trade was roughly $1,000,000 a year. It increased 500 per cent in the next ten years, or by 1932. During the four years from 1932 to 1936 there was another 100 per cent jump, the total trade being a little more than $12,000,000, with an export excess of $1,800,000.

A little known but significant fact is that there are today more Japanese on the islands than natives, latest figures giving 60,000 Japanese and 50,000 natives. In the Mariana group, nearest Japan and in the midst of which is Guam, the Japanese population is 40,000, that of natives less than 9,000. By 1945 the Japanese population is expected to be double that of the native—a potential answer to the question of ownership and mandatory rights.

The success of Japanese colonization cannot be disputed. When the Japanese occupied the islands there was no industry to speak of. The Japanese soon started raising sugar cane, worked the phosphorus ore in the Palaos, and developed the fishing industry. They have recently started raising pineapples, bananas, and coffee.

In many respects the Japanese are following the example in the mandated islands that the Americans have set in the Hawaiian Islands. Many schools have been established, and the native children now read, write, and speak Japanese, much as the native Hawaiians read, write, and speak English.

The native population is made up of 3,500 Chamorros and 46,000 Kanakas. The Chamorros inhabit the Marianas, while the Kanakas live mainly in the Caroline and Marshall groups. The Chamorros migrated from Guam, which was in the early days the center of the Mariana group. They differ considerably from the Tahitians and Hawaiians, while the Kanakas resemble these two peoples.

Due to internal strife, massacres, and rebellions, much as was the case of Tahiti (as recounted in "The Mutiny on the Bounty"), the Chamorro population has dwindled and may soon become extinct unless it is absorbed into the Kanaka or the Japanese race. This seems highly unlikely.

The Kanakas, who greatly resemble the Hawaiians, are a mixture of the Polynesian and Melanesian races. The Chamorros are generally more advanced in civilization than the Kanakas, but this is only relatively speaking, as the Chamorros are also a backward people. The Chamorros and Kanakas differ in language, manners, and customs and do not intermarry or associate with each other even in their daily life.

The natives all live more or less primitively. The men have cut their hair short and shave their faces. They wear shirts and trousers, and a few have suits. The women, who used to wear grass skirts, now attire themselves in a garment resembling a Mother Hubbard.

The average Japanese is less interested in the South Sea Islands than the average American is in the Hawaiian Islands. About the only fact which every Japanese is aware of is that, mandate or no mandate, Nippon will not give up the islands without a battle.

Look at value beneath the outward beauty also! The Lincoln-Zephyr is today's style leader. But its modern performance convinces that value goes clear on through!

A ride in the Lincoln-Zephyr is all the evidence you need of this.

The Lincoln-Zephyr is the only 12-cylinder car at medium price. All journeys are tireless—and thrifty. Owners report 14 to 18 miles to the gallon.

Your safety, on short trips or long ones, is built into the car's unique construction. Steel trusses, in all closed types, form a framework like an arch bridge.

Steel panels are welded to it—a light structure, for efficiency, and a safe one. This unit-body-and-frame is cradled on soft transverse springs, 136 inches apart. Passengers ride comfortably, poised toward the car's center of balance.

Other comfort features: chair-high seats . . . spacious interiors . . . low center of gravity.

Choose your new car carefully. Look deep! This "twelve," we believe, will match outwardly and inwardly your ideal for a car! Lincoln Motor Company, Division of Ford Motor Company.

A QUICK GLANCE AT VALUE

1. Unit-body-and-frame — steel panels welded to steel trusses.
2. V-type 12-cylinder engine — smooth, quiet power.
3. 14 to 18 miles to the gallon.
4. High power-to-weight ratio — low center of gravity.
5. Modern comfort for six — passengers "amidships" in chair-high seats — the gliding ride — direct entrance — high visibility.
6. Hydraulic brakes.

How the Bosses Further Their Own Ambitions

the chain of production in that plant automatically curtailed production in the companion Chevrolet plant, which depended on it for bodies. Shortly afterward Fisher plant No. 1 followed with another sit-down, crippling the Buick assembly plant which it supplied—and already 14,600 General Motors employés were off the pay roll.

For weeks the battle raged. In the Pontiac plant of General Motors five workmen tried to start a sit-down, but their fellow employés who were satisfied with their jobs picked them up bodily and gave them the bum's rush out of the building. Thousands of willing men forced to go idle and payless called mass-meetings to protest against Lewis' attempt to establish his union as the sole bargaining agency of all General Motors workers.

Lewis answered with a public ultimatum addressed to the President of the United States: ". . . Labor helped the President to repel the economic royalists. The same economic royalists now have their fangs in labor, and labor expects the administration to support the auto workers in every legal way in their fight."

The President, thus put on the spot, did nothing. Sit-down strikes continued with sporadic violence, while United States Senator Johnson of California asserted that the President could have stopped the strike epidemic with six words: "I will not tolerate sit-down strikes."

Meanwhile in Saginaw, Mich., nonunion workers, who lost patience with being victimized by C. I. O. agitators, ran strike organizers out of town. In Anderson, Ind., some 2,000 angry anti-strike workers broke up a C. I. O. meeting with rotten eggs and then set about wrecking the union headquarters.

By the fifth week the idle General Motors workers were losing around $800,000 a day in wages.

In mid-February, when it was six weeks old, the strike came to an end. Every one studied the agreement reached between General Motors and the C. I. O. to see which side had won. It was apparent that, although G. M. had made some concessions to the C. I. O., Lewis' original demand to represent all General Motors workers had been withdrawn.

Summing up the significance of his own strike after two months had passed, President Sloan of General Motors said that it had represented not workers struggling toward better lives but labor bosses grasping for power. It had cost the national economy, he estimated, "many hundreds of millions of dollars."

Less than a month later, on March 9, Lewis demanded sole recognition for his union in the Chrysler automobile plants in the Detroit area, and when refused called sit-downs which made 55,000 employés idle.

This time Lewis sought to enforce his demands by enlarging his sit-down technique to taking full possession of offices as well as machinery in the plants, preventing the dispatch or delivery of any company mail.

By this time the country had a clear idea of the motive behind Lewis and the C. I. O. agitators. This was not a strike for better working conditions.

"The workers are victims of a lawless element which is striving to tear down all that the corporation has built up, depriving thousands of employés, against their own wishes, of an opportunity to work," said K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler corporation.

"The seizure of our plants has nothing to do with wages or working conditions. Everybody knows that. The union representatives refuse to agree to anything. They demand only sole bargaining control. One of the tragic things we face today is that, due to seizure of our plants and offices where our pay roll records are kept, we are unable to pay our employés $2,000,000 in wages which is due them."

In effect labor was being purged to further the ambitions of racketeer elements in control of the C. I. O. Two months later, when Lewis ordered his men to evacuate the Chrysler plants, the strikers' only comment was: "We might just as well not have sat down at all. We have been sold out."

The wave of C. I. O. strikes, encouraged by Lewis, surged on. There were many outbursts of violence and an occasional major battle, notably a ruthless feud between the C. I. O.'s longshoremen and the A. F. of L.'s teamsters which virtually paralyzed the port of San Francisco.

In Monroe, Mich., the C. I. O. grew so bold that on June 13 it sent an ultimatum to the citizens and workers of Monroe that it would "take the town" in twenty-four hours if the Newton Steel company refused to sign with the union by then. The C. I. O. leaders backed down, however, when Mayor Daniel A. Knaggs of Monroe armed citizens and dared the agitators to march on the city.

The scene shifts to Johnstown, Pa. The speaker is the Rev. John H. Stanton of that city. He is saying:

"We were the victims of mob violence. I had seen men cursed and spat upon. I had seen men clubbed, beaten, and kicked. For one reason only: they would not join a strike they had not wanted, a strike that was to entrench the C. I. O. in Johnstown.

"I had talked with mothers and wives who were threatened.

"That is not the American way to settle disputes. It is the dark and bloody road of violence and civil strife. Labor dictatorship can be just as terrible and unjust as any other kind."

Dr. Stanton is describing what happened when Lewis attempted in June, 1937, to browbeat the city's 65,000 inhabitants to his will. Dr. Stanton speaks authoritatively. He was there. He was a personal witness. He had a leading part in defeating this monstrous plot.

The C. I. O. called a strike at the Cambria steel plant. Its union there had 600 members; the plant employed 15,000. Absurdly small, the group that decreed the strike. But it was backed by a bloody threat. A rumor rose, was spread carefully—unless the mills were closed 40,000 miners of the Lewis organization would march into Johnstown.

Redwood

Citizens who respected law and order trembled. They asked themselves what such an army, finding the mills operating, might do. Johnstown would be like a medieval city put to the sack by mercenaries. It would be purged with blood.

George H. Earle, at that time governor of Pennsylvania, beholden to Lewis for votes and campaign contributions, used the threat. He used the fear. He sent troops, not to bar the concentration of miners, not to help men work in peace, but to close the great steel mills. A few organizers, a few strikers, and an adroitly handled rumor deprived Johnstown of a $500,000 weekly pay roll.

But Lewis didn't win. Dr. Stanton and a committee of citizens stepped in. When the governor refused to meet them they broadcast the truth—that 14,400 were being strong-armed out of work by 600. They purchased page ads in twenty-five great newspapers. The truth made Johnstown free. Governor Earle bowed to public sentiment, withdrew the troops. The mills reopened; Lewis' paid agitators departed.

Johnstown was fortunate. The march of the 40,000 miners was fiction. But it could have been fact. There have been blood purges in America. The number of men killed to further the ambition of labor racketeers runs into the hundreds.

Members of the United Mine Workers of America, headed then and now by John L. Lewis, were on strike in Herrin in June, 1922. They were resentful because a strip mine of the Southern Illinois Coal company, midway between Marion and Herrin, continued to operate. The workers in this place were not miners. They had been taken down from Chicago and were members of the Steam Shovel Men's union. They were not taking the places nor doing the customary work of experienced mine men. Nevertheless the strike leaders murmured at their presence.

State Senator Sam Sneed, president of the mine workers' local, telegraphed Lewis on June 18 to ask a definition of the status of the shovel union. The following day Lewis replied in these words:

"Steam Shovel Men's union was suspended from affiliation with American Federation of Labor some years ago. It was ordered suspended from the mining department of the A. F. of L. at the Atlantic City convention.

"We now find that this outlaw organization is permitting its members to act as strikebreakers at numerous pits in Ohio. This organization is furnishing steam shovel operators to work under armed guard under no agreement which exists by and between this organization and the mining department of the A. F. of L. permitting them to work under such circumstances.

"We have through representatives officially taken this question up with the officers of the Steam Shovel Men's union and have failed to secure any satisfaction.

"Representatives of our organization are justified in treating this crowd as an outlaw organization and in viewing its members in the same light they do any common strikebreaker.

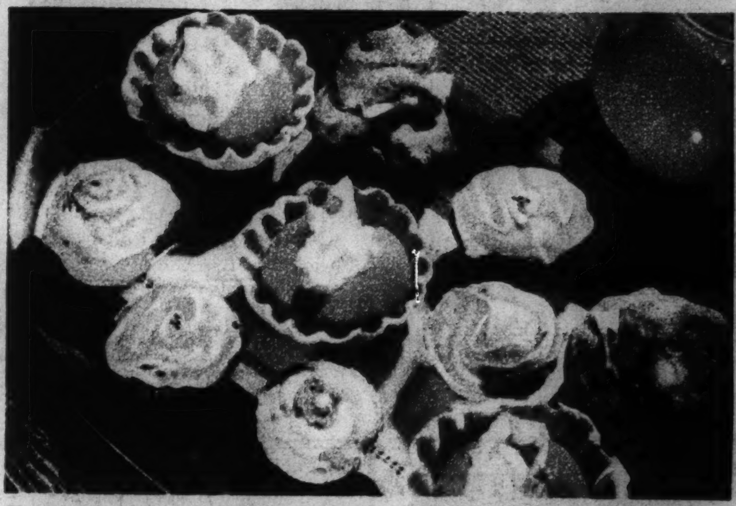
Help Guests Help Themselves

By MARY MEADE

IF YOU want to be an exceptionally thoughtful hostess, serve a trayful of desserts at your next tea or bridge party, and let each guest select her own. The dessert tray pictured holds cream puffs, tart shells filled with peach halves and whipped cream, and frosted cup cakes.



The dessert tray is a new wrinkle in afternoon entertaining. Here the guest is offered a choice of peach tart, cream puff, or cup cake.

Cream puffs are just the least bit tricky, but they are fun to make. For a tea party they should be tiny and filled with whipped cream, fruit, or plain cream filling.

CREAM PUFFS

1 cup water
½ cup butter, margarine, or other shortening
1 cup cake flour, sifted
¼ teaspoon salt
4 eggs

Combine water and shortening. Bring to a boil. Add salt and flour to hot mixture. Beat thoroughly. Stir and cook over low heat until the mixture forms a stiff ball. Remove from range. Add eggs one at a time. Beat thoroughly. Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake fifteen minutes at 450 degrees and fifteen more at 325 degrees. For large ones bake twenty minutes at 450 degrees and twenty at 325 degrees.

For another kind of party, a more informal one which calls for hearty food, serve bean chowder, seasoned with green pepper, onion, pimiento, and celery. It's hearty and filling.

BEAN CHOWDER

1 cup navy beans
Water to cover
1 medium onion sliced thin
1 stalk celery, diced
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons diced green pepper
1 tablespoon minced pimiento
Salt, pepper

Soak beans overnight. Drain and cover with cold water or water and meat or vegetable stock. Sauté the onion, pepper, pimiento, and celery in the butter for five minutes. Add to beans. Simmer slowly until beans are tender. Season with salt and pepper.

UNTIL YOU TRY THIS STARTLING NEW SUDS CREATION!

IT'S TRUE! No Soap Flakes in the World Can Offer You DREFT'S Advantages!

THE fact is Dreft is remarkable in so many ways, that it just can't be classed as "soap"! It's an utterly new fine-fabric suds creation with three important advantages no soap flakes can offer:

1. SUDS THAT NEVER LEAVE "SCUM" . . . assuring true color brightness and fabric softness
2. SUDS OF NON-ALKALINE MILDNESS . . . giving you greatest protection against wash-fading
3. RICH SUDS IN HARDEST WATER . . . five times more suds than any soap you ever used

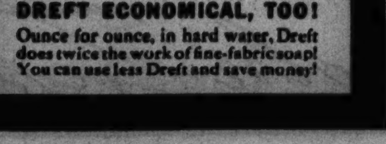
In other words, Dreft actually promises your silk stockings a long life of brighter wear! Think of it—Dreft not only can't form scum, even in hardest water, but also—Dreft removes scum left by previous washing! Silk stockings don't get cottony, "washed-out" looking before they're worn out! Their lovely sheerness can't be covered by beauty-hiding, color-dulling hard-water scum!

And here's another reason why Dreft-washing will help keep stockings looking their best as long as they're wearable!

Procter & Gamble make Dreft. If you will write them, saying you have read this advertisement, they will send you a surprise gift. Mail a postcard to Dreft, Dept. 10, Box 687, Cincinnati, Ohio. Offer good until March 26th.



DREFT ECONOMICAL, TOO!
Ounce for ounce, in hard water, Dreft does twice the work of fine-fabric soap! You can use less Dreft and save money!

Racketeers' Grip on Labor

played in Herrin the miners armed themselves and went out to get the shovel men. They were not deterred in any way by the local authorities. Sherif Melvin Thaxton held a card in the United Mine Workers union.

On June 21 the strip mine was surrounded by an armed mob. Without warning bullets and shotgun charges were rained down into the deep gulley made by the shovels that stripped the coal bed bare. The fire was returned by company guards and two union miners were killed.

A steady, determined battle followed. Several of the besieged were wounded or slain. In the evening officials of the company made overtures for peace. They agreed to close down the mine. It was understood that in return the workers would be allowed to depart in safety.

This hope was dashed in the morning. The mine union men had taken more favorable positions during the night. Again they poured a withering fire on the shovel men. The workers' situation was precarious, although they might have held out much longer. But they were for peace and agreed with the besiegers that they would lay down their arms if granted safe conduct. This was promised them.

Forty-seven men, weaponless, marched out of the pit. The mob surrounded them, forced them to march toward Herrin. On the way K. C. McDowell, the strip mine superintendent, lagged. He was a cripple. Only a mile from the mine he was shot and killed.

Three miles from Herrin the mob leaders who had made the fair promises vanished. Their places were taken by more bloodthirsty desperadoes. The new bosses lined up the prisoners on the roadside.

"A chance for your lives," one man cried. "Climb that fence and run for it."

Over the fence was a wood. The workmen broke for it. The mob remembered they were, in Lewis' words, "common strikebreakers." Rifles, shotguns, and pistols spoke. It was good hunting. Thirteen of the company men died before they reached the fence. Eight others who crossed were retaken in the woods. Two were hanged immediately.

For the other six a fate still more dreadful was reserved. They were taken to Herrin. They were reviled, cursed, spat upon. Then they were marched to a cemetery, lined up, and shot. Then, as a final mark of barbarity, the throats of three victims were slashed. It is almost incredible that one of the other three, left for dead, recovered.

The number of deaths in the Herrin massacre was never defintly known. Nineteen at least were given official burial. Eleven others have never been accounted for. It is believed some were slain and that their bodies were disposed of by the killers.

It was a successful purge. No man was ever convicted for his share in it.

Johnstown might well have trembled. How many Herrins 40,000 men of the mines could have strung together in a city like that steel center!

The first big labor purge in the United States came just after the Civil war. It was accomplished by the Molly Maguires, a secret organization, racket controled, that drew its membership from coal miners in Pennsylvania. Murder became a fine art among the Mollies. They preyed on mine bosses and on regular labor union leaders. They wrecked trains.

It was their custom to choose a member from a distant camp, send him to an appointed spot, and command him to kill. Refusal to do so meant death for the man appointed.

Altogether it is estimated that a hundred lives were sacrificed in the Molly Maguire purges. Not a member was ever convicted of first-degree murder. Only after years of investigation and prosecution was this evil organization broken up.

The Mollies, indeed, were but crude prototypes of the modern racketeer and his helper, the hired thug or gunman. Few American cities are or have been free of this vicious combination. Their victims are from all walks —legitimate labor leaders, other racketeers, or simple men who believe the law could and should protect them in the right to work.

Chicago has known them. Some unions they have been able to terrorize and dominate. In at least two instances their purges failed.

Back in 1933 the Touhy gang (most of its members are dead or serving terms for kidnapings) demanded control of the prosperous Milk Wagon Drivers' union. To serve notice they sprayed the union headquarters with machine gun fire. They bombed the homes of the regularly elected officials.

Sumner

Uncle Steve Sumner, veteran head of the union, was not ready to be bluffed. He and his associates fortified the headquarters, gathered guards, and defended themselves. The Touhys gave up the attempt. Uncle Steve, at 89, still heads his union.

In 1928 another group of racketeers decided they wanted the place of John G. Clay, capable head of the Laundry and Dye House Drivers' union. Clay was solidly entrenched and defied them. They shot and killed him. One theory was that the gangsters who had gone into the laundry business were angered because Clay would not sell out his men to them. But they didn't win. The Chicago Federation of Labor saw to it that a respectable and able man took over.

A few months before Clay passed out, Big Tim Murphy, who had served a prison term for mail robbery, tried to take over the Inside Workers' union, another laundry organization. Other racketeers didn't like him. He was called one night to the porch of his home in Rogers Park and competently slain.

One of the most successful of the Chicago labor racketeers was Tommy Maloy. With guile and force he got control of the Moving Picture Operators' union about 1920. For fifteen years theater owners and machine operators alike truckled to him. Theater owners who didn't pay tribute were bombed; employés who talked back were beaten, occasionally shot.

Maloy was not above squeezing his own followers. He restricted the number of regular members of his union. As the demand for operators grew he issued certificates to "permit men," who were forced to turn over to him 10 per cent of their earnings.

As such men must, Maloy overreached his goal. There was only one way to remove his leechlike grip on a great industry. Some one took it. On Feb. 4, 1935, he was shot and killed in the outer drive at 24th street.

Men living by the gun have contempt for those who prefer to live in peace, to work honestly under the law.

We introduce Lloyd Rourke. In early February of 1938 Rourke was at work. He was a laundry driver. He was 36 years old, a decent citizen who was giving value received for such money as he was paid. He had a cartage contract with the Del Prado hotel on the south side.

The Inside Laundry Workers' union had called a strike at the Del Prado. It had put pickets about the place to enforce its command that no laundry deliveries be made. Lloyd Rourke didn't obey. A group of thugs, supposedly coöperating with the pickets, beat him to death with baseball bats.

Policemen and prosecutors went through the usual routine of questioning suspects. They learned nothing. The purgers were safe. Labor racket killings are seldom solved.

Edward Shuler was a member of local 399, International Union of Operating Engineers. He worked in a loop building. In the fall of 1937 he had opposed Richard Wren, who was elected president of the local. He had been so vociferous in his demand for another chief that he was beaten in a meeting. He went to a hospital for treatment.

On March 25, 1938, Shuler left his place of employment. Some one had called for him and made arrangements for a meeting. Five hours later his body, with four bullet wounds in the head, was found on a west side street.

His widow told of threats Shuler had received. They had been forced, she said, to move several times. They had abandoned a telephone because of the terrifying messages received over the wires.

Again the investigative forces of a great city went through the motions. No one was ever charged with the murder. Shuler and that other little man, Rourke, got in the way of forces too great for the law as it is administered. Purged!

Let's look at the purge record of locals 191 and 184 of the painters' union of Chicago.

Frank Carr, financial secretary of 191, was slain in the union headquarters on Feb. 24, 1931. In June, 1934, an unsavory gangster, an ex-beer runner named Michael (Bubs) Quinlan, was shot and killed in a café. He had tried to muscle into control of the union.

Two months later Roy Thompson, business agent of local 184, was riddled with bullets in front of his home. On Jan. 6, 1936, a car load of gunmen opened fire on an automobile in which George Hennemann, secretary-treasurer of 191, was sitting. He dropped to the floor and escaped death. His wife, Elsie, was killed.

In June, 1937, Robert A. Shields was erased for some unpopular activity in local 184, to which he belonged. The roll of the painters' purge death is still growing. James G. Dungan, business agent of local 191, was blasted out of life on Aug. 8 of last year.

The police investigated, but got nowhere. They theorized that there was some trouble over union funds.

One of the most spectacular and heartless of the racket labor killings took place in Teaneck, N. J., just outside of New York, on Feb. 19, 1937.

There had been a bitter jurisdictional battle between rival unions of men working in New York tunnels—sand hogs, they are called. On one side was R. Norman Redwood, business agent of the Hod Carriers, Building, and Common Laborers' union. On the other was Joseph Fay, a vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers.

Redwood called a strike. It tied up a large sewer project and a subway. Fay didn't like that. Neither did Sam Rosoff, contractor, who boasted he was the fastest subway builder in New York.

The key man, Redwood, was slain outside his home in Teaneck. His wife heard the shots. The killers drove away. There was, of course, the form of an investigation. The prosecutor's office was told that Rosoff had threatened to kill Redwood if the strike was called. But neither Rosoff nor Fay ever went to Teaneck to tell what, if anything, they knew of the crime. Redwood was just the victim of a small purge from the ranks of racket-ridden New York unions.

Minneapolis! Another city of rackets. During a truck drivers' strike in April, 1934, riots occurred. The strikers vowed they would not let any trucks move in the streets. They armed themselves with clubs. They beat to death a business man, Arthur C. Lyman. He had been in the way. Forty-one persons were injured. By the use of violence the strikers tied up deliveries for two weeks.

Floyd Olson, the governor, called out troops. The orders were to keep trucks standing, to prevent their movement. A state administration played into the hands of the lawless—an example later followed by Earle of Pennsylvania.

One night in November, 1937, a neighbor found the body of Patrick Corcoran in the snow of a back yard. He had been liquidated in a labor racket war. He was secretary-treasurer of the General Drivers' union. Minneapolis drivers were familiar with the purge; they had been encouraged to use it during the strike three years before.

Another purge killing in Minneapolis was that of William S. Brown, president of the General Drivers' union No. 544. He was shot to death May 25, 1938. Almost immediately Arnold Johnson, a union business agent employed as a bodyguard by Brown, confessed the slaying. The confession was twice repeated to policemen, but when Johnson was tried in November he repudiated his statements and was acquitted. The motive for the erasure of Brown has never been exposed.

No state has offered a better example of the consequences of labor purges than Oregon. In 1934 the teamsters' union of the Pacific coast came under domination of one Al Rosser. He ran it. And, because trucking is the key to industry, especially in a western state where distances are great, he soon was running labor unions all over the state. Any person or organization he disapproved of was in danger of being left without transportation. As his power grew, so grew his ideas, and, with a picket line of thugs and an arsenal full of tear gas bombs to enforce his decrees, he presently began to dictate to businesses as to just when and how they could operate.

In 1937 came the big labor war. The west coast lumberjacks were organized by the C. I. O. Rosser ordered his teamsters to stop trucking lumber. The lumber industry collapsed, throwing thousands out of work and costing Oregon $9,000,000 worth of business in a few months.

On this tide of discontent came the C. I. O.'s Pacific coast boss, Harry Bridges, preaching communism. The public of Oregon was confronted with a choice between Rosser's Fascistic dictatorship of A. F. of L. unions and Bridges' communistic control over the C. I. O. in Oregon. Before election time, however, Rosser went one step too far. Police broke up his gang. He himself was sentenced to twelve years for burning a $90,000 lumber yard.

This exhibition was too much for the electorate of Oregon. Urged by an A. F. of L. union not affiliated with the teamsters to vote "in favor of complete removal of racketeering and gangsterism from the labor movement," the voters of Oregon last November adopted by decisive referendum vote a law that has been described as "the most severe legal restraint on the activities of labor bosses ever enacted in the United States."

This law "outlaws any labor dispute not between an employer and a majority of his employés" or not concerned with "wages, hours, and working conditions."

Recently the purge methods of the labor bosses suffered another blow. In a decision handed down last Feb. 27 the United States Supreme court declared the sit-down strike illegal. "It was a high-handed proceeding without the shadow of legal right," said the court. "The employés had the right to strike, but they had no license to commit acts of violence or to seize their employers' plants."

The decision referred to a C. I. O. strike in the plant of the Fansteel Metallurgical corporation in North Chicago. Two years ago 100 employés seized the main buildings of the Fansteel plant and held them for eleven days in defiance of a court order. The workers were driven out of the buildings only after $100,000 damage had been done to the plant and equipment.

Thirty-nine strikers were convicted and sentenced to jail terms. Eighteen served their sentences, but the others appealed the verdict. It was on this appeal that the Supreme court handed down its decision.

In another blast at the labor dictatorship which Lewis had plotted, auto workers of Detroit who were the victims of the C. I. O. purge of 1937 voted on March 7 to set up an independent union. Behind this repudiation of Lewis and the C. I. O. was an amazing and complicated picture.

Homer Martin, president of the auto union, who led the break from the C. I. O. ranks, charged that Lewis and his followers coöperated with communists in an effort to wreck the union. In a bitter struggle over control of the local unions in the U. A. W. it was revealed that officers had been forced to travel with bodyguards, headquarters were barricaded with steel fences, and shotguns and clubs were used to repel attacks.

The situation appears further complicated by a split in the ranks of the anti-Martin force in the U. A. W., with the possibility that the country may yet witness the spectacle of a purge within a purge.

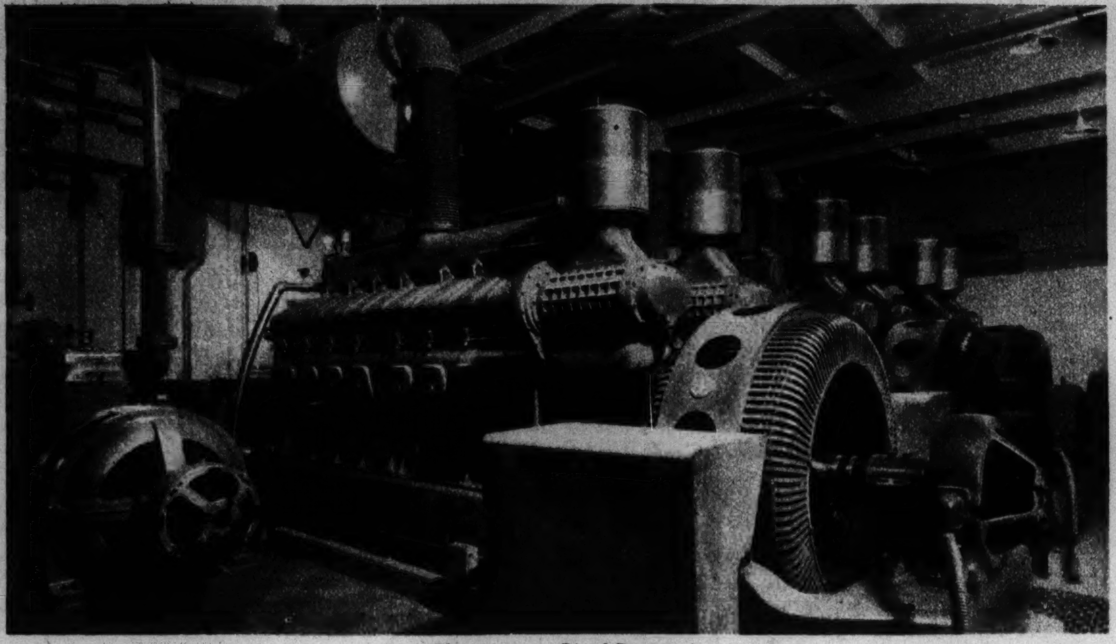
The Diesel Engine's Story

By WILLIAM SHINNICK



(Photo courtesy Diesel Progress.)

The four-unit Diesel power, light, and air-conditioning plant of a Miami, Fla., office building. The three large engines are sixteen-cylinder, two-cycle, 1,050-h.p.; the small one is eight-cylinder, four-cycle, 225-h.p.

YESTERDAY, March 18, was the eighty-first anniversary of the birth of a man whose greatest accomplishment looms ever larger today in the field of transportation.

On March 18, 1858, in Paris, was born Dr. Rudolph Diesel. His parents were German, and the young man eventually was sent to Munich Technical college, from which at 21 he was graduated as an engineer. Immediately he set out upon a career destined to be crowned with vast success and closed in tragic mystery.

Dr. Diesel

A scientist of great gifts, Dr. Diesel was distressed by the inefficiency of the simple steam engine of his day, which utilized only 6 to 8 per cent of the actual values in its fuel.

Theoretically he worked out the one we now know as the Diesel. He put it on paper. Then he built it. That was in 1892, and his fuel was powdered coal. That first engine blew up and Dr. Diesel narrowly escaped death. But he persisted and in 1897 produced an engine that actually worked. The next year a manufacturer in St. Louis, Mo., built a two-cylinder sixty-horsepower Diesel that was a commercial success. Thus forty-one years ago the Diesel was launched under favorable circumstances.

Its uses at the time appeared limited. For one thing, the Diesel was heavy. It weighed 250 pounds to the horsepower, and it seemed to experts then that it would have to be confined to use in stationary installations or in ships, where the weight factor was not so important as in trains and motor vehicles. In those fields the Diesel did make gains, and Dr. Diesel won a great fortune with his patents.

He was accepted everywhere as a great mechanical genius. He took the world's plaudits modestly, but he was sold on the merits of his invention.

"The Diesel engine," he told the American Society of Mechanical Engineers in 1912, "has doubled the resources of mankind as regards power production and has made new and hitherto unutilized products of nature available for motor power."

Nobody denied this. It was close enough to the truth to be valid, although the gasoline engine was then, as it is now, the main stem of development in the internal combustion power field. The Diesel engine had made many things possible. One of them was that terrible weapon of war, the submarine. The Diesel had been a boon to the shipping industry also.

On Sept. 29, 1913, Dr. Diesel boarded the channel steamer Dresden at Antwerp. He had accepted an invitation to attend a meeting of English manufacturers in London. With him he carried important papers.

A veil of mystery is drawn over what happened after nightfall. In the morning when the Dresden docked Dr. Diesel was missing. So were his papers—all of them. His berth had not been slept in.

There was a vast amount of theorizing about what had happened to him—flight, accident, suicide.

In 1917 a German, who had been a member of the crew of one of the kaiser's submarines during the early part of the war, offered a new version. Dr. Diesel, he said, had been tossed off the ship with deliberate murderous intent.

"He was going to England to talk," the man averred, "and was killed because he knew too much about submarines. He might have talked about them."

The mystery remains.

In any discussion of the Diesel engine four questions automatically arise. Where did it originate and what is it? How does it do its work? How does it differ from other ways of turning out usable power?

Answer to the first question we have already noted.

What is the Diesel engine?

It is an internal combustion engine that utilizes the heat of high compression to ignite its charge of fuel, which is introduced into the cylinder after the compression has been attained. In these respects it is much different from the gasoline engine.

In the gasoline engine fuel and air are first mixed in the proper proportions (fifteen parts of air to one of gasoline) in a carburetor. The mixture is introduced into the cylinder, compressed by a piston, and exploded by a spark.

In the Diesel engine air alone is compressed. Then fuel is injected and starts burning simply because the air has been heated by intense compression. The essential differences of the Diesel are (1) that its fuel and air are mixed under pressure in the cylinder and (2) that it has no ignition system (spark plugs).

Let us assume that the inside of an engine cylinder has a capacity of six pints when its piston is at the bottom of its stroke. Let us assume that the piston moves and at the end of its up-stroke contracts the space above it to one pint. The compression ratio of such an engine is 6 to 1, something like normal for a gasoline engine. Six pints of a mixture of air and gasoline are forced into one pint before being exploded.

Let us assume that a Diesel engine cylinder with the piston down holds sixteen pints and that this is forced into one pint space by the piston's up-stroke. We then have a compression ratio of 16 to 1, which is normal for a Diesel. It would not work at all at 6 to 1; it does splendidly at 16 to 1. Why?

If we compress air—sixteen pints into one pint—that air gets very hot. It reaches 1,000 degrees F., about the temperature of the top of a red-hot stove. We now have the air in the Diesel cylinder heated. The next step is to introduce fuel in the form of a fine fog of oil. This oil catches fire immediately and its burning puts more pressure on the pint of air and forces the piston down. We have a power stroke.

Such high compression is not possible in the gasoline engine. Since its fuel is already in the cylinder when the up-stroke begins, it would be set off long before a pressure of sixteen atmospheres could be reached. The piston stroke, up and down, would be shortened and a knock would develop.

To eliminate the carburetor and the spark plug Diesel engineers had to solve a difficult problem—how to get fuel into the cylinder after the air was compressed sixteen times and was exerting a pressure of 500 pounds to the square inch? At first compressed air was used, but was not entirely satisfactory. Today injection is by mechanical means. Solid injection, it is called. A good unit ejector (solid) hurls the oil into the combustion chamber at pressures of from 3,000 to 20,000 pounds to the square inch. (A mile down in the ocean water pressure is 3,000 pounds to the inch; to reach 20,000 the ocean would have to be nine miles deep.) You might call the unit injector the heart of the Diesel engine. It is in effect a glorified squirt gun, a pump with a nozzle. The nozzle has outlet holes about the diameter of a small needle which discharge into the top of the cylinder.

The fuel pump plunger, or piston, must be fitted to its cylinder walls with extreme accuracy to prevent the oil from leaking past it. It is said that a human hair would have to be split to 1/120th of its diameter to pass between the piston and the pump wall. It is not hard to believe that oil pushed down through the tiny holes of the nozzle is moving at 780 miles an hour when it hits the combustion chamber of a Diesel.

There is but one injector to each cylinder, and the pump is operated by the engine. Its operations are timed closely, coördinated with the cylinder piston stroke, so that the fuel is sure to reach the compressed air at just the right instant.

The amount of fuel is governed by a throttle. Less is required when the engine is running slowly or pulling only a part load. In any event the feed is small for each cycle of the engine. In the streamline train engine the amount of each injection varies from a drop the size of a grain of rice to one the size of an eraser on a pencil—and the cylinders are as big around as dinner plates. Each produces 75 horsepower.

Both strength and accuracy are required of the injector. Actually the injector system is more expensive than the carburetor and sparking system of the gasoline engine.

Simpler Diesels are of the four-cycle type. This means that only one piston stroke out of four is a power stroke. Assume that the piston is at the top and the combustion chamber contracted to its smallest. The first stroke downward sucks in air. The next, upward, compresses that air. Injected fuel burns and the piston beats downward; this is the power stroke. The fourth and last stroke expels the products of combustion.

But Diesel engineers, after years of work, have found ways to make a two-cycle engine work, so that every stroke is either a power or a compression stroke. In the two-cycle the engine cannot be used as its own air pump; it hasn't time for that; air must be forced into the cylinder by a pump.

Roughly speaking, a two-cycle engine produces twice the power of a four-cycle of the same size. And the engines of the streamline trains are all two-cycle.

Next Sunday—Modern ways in which the Diesel proves its worth.

Dog May Be Harmed by Worming

IF DOGS could talk we firmly believe that one of the first things they would say to their owners would be this: "Do not give us frequent doses of worm medicine." It's a dangerous practice and may ruin a young dog.

When we look over the hundreds of letters that come to our desk it is evident that many dog owners consider worm medicines the ideal remedy for just about anything that can happen to their pets. For example, one recent letter described a sick dog. It apparently had distemper—if we are any judge of distemper symptoms. The owner gave the dog a worm capsule and then wondered why the dog grew worse instead of better. To give that sick dog a vermifuge was just like pouring gasoline on a fire! Just about every type of worm medicine contains powerful drugs which are bound to affect the condition of a pet that already is seriously ill.

Another letter from an owner relates the story of a 4½-year-old dog that is having fits. The owner writes that she has been giving the dog worm medicine every month. The fact that the dog has not been throwing fits before this is a tribute to its remarkable constitution, considering the amount of strong, nauseating worm medicine that it has had to take for no good reason.

A typical letter from a dog owner, who has been led to believe that worms are the cause of 90 per cent of dog ailments, follows:

"I have a wire-haired terrier a little more than a year old. It hasn't been well for a week.

A champion schipperke, Seeches Picaro.

She shivers, there is a discharge from her nose, and her breathing is not right. Sometimes she coughs. I wormed her with a capsule yesterday, and she isn't any better. On the contrary, she seems worse. Will you please tell me what to do to help this dog?"

If we owned a young dog that had the above symptoms the first thing we would do is to get it to a veterinarian, because we would be worried about just one thing—distemper.

Not one but several drugs are used in vermifuges. All of them are quite safe if given to a dog on the advice of a veterinarian, but some are poisonous if not administered correctly.

It's true that very young dogs do need to be wormed. A mild dose of medicine to accomplish this may be given when the pup is six weeks or so of age. Breeders differ on the times they consider best for worming small puppies. Some give puppies a mild dose of vermifuge around six weeks and another a little later. We know some breeders who do not administer a vermifuge until the ninth week, providing the pups are well. But, once the puppies have been treated and they are free of intestinal parasites, there is no reason to give them additional doses unless an examination proves that such treatment is needed.

When a dog jumps on a person, Carl Spitz, Hollywood trainer, advises grabbing the animal by his front paws and then walking him backward to cure him of this habit.

For years we have followed this procedure with our dogs. They are taken to a veterinarian from time to time to have their teeth scaled and their ears checked. It's important to keep tartar from forming on the teeth and infections from developing in the ears. This is especially true of some of the sporting breeds like the retrievers which get a lot of water in their ears during the course of the hunting season.

When the dog is in the veterinarian's hands we usually ask him to check the animal for worms. If the dog is in good coat, normal in weight, and generally is in satisfactory condition we are pretty sure that it has no intestinal parasites. But we can make sure by having a veterinarian look over the pet.

DOG NOTES

Many veterinarians believe that short-haired dogs are more susceptible to heartworms than long-haired dogs, because they have less protection against mosquitoes, which carry the disease. However, a recent survey by a southern doctor indicated that the rate of infection was about the same in dogs of the two types of coat.

This department recently received the following letter: "Will you please give me any names and addresses you may have of kennels raising German police dogs (not German shepherds), and whose stock is pedigreed?" The answer to that inquiry is that there is no such dog as the German police dog. The dog commonly misnamed the German police dog is really the German shepherd. They are not different breeds.

American Field has accepted the merry little American water spaniel as an accredited breed and a pure-bred. It now is registering dogs of this breed in its stud book. We know the American water spaniel as an efficient hunting breed. We have had many ducks retrieved for us by one of these spaniels which was owned by one of our hunting partners. American Field says the American water, or brown, spaniel "is distinctively American, perchance even more so than the Chesapeake. Possessed of extraordinary hunting propensities, courage, stamina, and aquatic abilities of a high order, the breed has enjoyed favor for many years. Over a considerable period some fanciers, steadfast and loyal, have bred the American water spaniel true to type, keeping an accurate record of matings and pedigrees, and this authenticated information provides a basis for the recognition of the breed."

Scout, a collie which posed for a famous statue, died recently at the age of 14½ years. Scout posed for Lorado Taft when he made his statue, "The Pioneers," which stands in Elmwood, Ill. It depicts a pioneer family, their faithful dog beside them.

The Question Box

I have always been fond of the Scotty. Now I am about to choose a dog for a child. Would you recommend the Scotty? I want to make a wise choice. MRS. HARVEY C.

The Scottish terrier is a handy size, easy to keep around the house, not a big eater, and has an excellent disposition. It isn't as noisy as many of the medium-sized or small breeds. It's a very affectionate breed and extremely faithful. We are sure you would not make a mistake in selecting a Scotty for a child.

Cavalryman Turns Foot Soldier

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

HOW AN American trooper abandoned his horse, absented himself from his regiment without leave, joined up with a company of doughboys, and took an active and perilous part in one of the bloodiest episodes of the World war is the story of an adventure that led to a citation and decoration for Private Allen P. Wescott.

Drab, drizzling day was breaking over the shell-ruined village of Chevieres, on the near bank of the River Aire, on Oct. 16, 1918, when Company G, 311th infantry, 78th division, in the American lines just to the right of the village, sent a patrol of eight men to reconnoiter the enemy position across the river. In this patrol, led by a sergeant, was Private Wescott, A. W. O. L. from Troop C of the 2d cavalry.

With rifles, pistols, and two Chauchat automatic rifles, but with no hand grenades, these eight advanced to the river and followed its bank to the right until they came to a bend of the stream, where shallow water, screened by a grove of trees, permitted them to cross with no difficulty and little danger.

They came out into an open space, however, where they were easily visible to the Germans who occupied a hill about a thousand yards away and parallel to the river. This open space or clearing was being shelled by the enemy, so in order to work across it the Americans spread out in open formation about ten yards apart, with the sergeant in command on the extreme right and Wescott on the extreme left.

Almost immediately a German rifleman off to the left began sniping at Wescott, but his aim was poor. Then two machine guns began working on the group of advancing Americans. One of the guns was in a depression on the hill and somewhat to the left. The other was some little distance beyond and almost back of the first gun. The patrol divided into two groups of four men each. Wescott, with three of the men, one carrying a Chauchat, started for the nearer gun nest, while the sergeant, with the other three men, advanced straight toward the hill with the object of cutting into the second gun by turning to the left.

Wescott's group had gone only a few yards when a burst of shots from the near machine gun killed the man who was carrying the automatic rifle. Wescott laid down his own rifle and picked up the automatic weapon, but, as he was not familiar with its use, it immediately jammed in his hands. He dropped it, recovered his rifle, and began crawling on his hands and knees toward the machine gun nest. He heard an exclamation from one of the two men still left behind him and knew that the man had been wounded.

"I was highly excited," says Wescott in recalling his reactions at the time, "but up to this moment my courage had stood up well. I could see the painted helmet of the German operating the machine gun, but, as the ground ahead of me was uneven, I could not see any part of his body at which to aim. Bullets from the machine gun were missing my back by inches, and I tried to flatten myself into the earth as much as possible."

In order to permit himself to get closer to the ground he unstrapped his gas mask, which he had been wearing at the alert position on his chest, pushed it to one side, and crawled ahead, the mask with its carbon canister bumping along beside him.

The machine gun ahead of him suddenly went silent. Wescott thought that it had jammed, so he leaped to his feet and started toward it on the run. As he ran he noticed a bullet hole through the canister of his gas mask. He thought that he had been shot through the abdomen, forgetting for the moment that the mask had lain at his side instead of in front of him. He was frightened. A feeling of faintness came over him. With visions of his insides spilling out, he stumbled on. Was this to be the end?

Then the machine gun began firing again, and Wescott dropped into a hole to get away from its cracking bullets.

A shot from the machine gun shattered Wescott's rifle in his hands. Another bullet tore through his left arm. Two more entered his left hip. It looked bad for him.

"I felt that I might as well be before a firing squad as crouching in front of this German machine gun, for all the chance I had," he says.

The machine gun bullets were cutting the grass all around him.

The sergeant proceeding against the other gun nest shouted to Wescott to inquire why the Chauchat was silent. Wescott called back that the gunner had been killed and the weapon had jammed.

"Can you run?" the sergeant cried.

"I can try," was Wescott's reply.

"Then get back to the company as fast as you can," came the order from the patrol leader.

Wescott jumped to his feet and scurried away like a frightened rabbit, despite the wounds in his hip. He could not find the ford in his haste to cross the stream, so he waded across in water up to his neck.

Wescott was the only one of the original party of eight to get back safely across the river. He believes that all of the other seven men, including the sergeant, were killed. He ran along an old double-track French railroad that paralleled the river, crossed a German narrow-gauge railway that paralleled the French tracks, and reached the company position from which he originally had set out.

The company commander sent him to the battalion command post to report the positions of the two machine guns that had proved so destructive to his patrol. He found the major in command of the battalion in a dugout before a large-scale battle map. He located as well as he could on the map the positions of the guns.

Wescott by this time was bleeding badly, but he returned to the company commander with orders from the major to send a platoon to attack the troublesome machine guns. Barely able to limp along, Wescott went with the platoon, eighteen or twenty men under the command of a lieutenant by the name of Newell, to act as guide.

Following the course taken by the original patrol, the men crossed the river at the tree-screened ford. Wescott then pointed out to the lieutenant the locations of the machine guns. He stepped back a few paces from the officer as a preliminary to his return across the stream. And then a German shell exploded squarely in the midst of the platoon. Lieutenant Newell's head was blown off. A number of the other soldiers were killed or wounded. Wescott made his way back to a first-aid station located near the railroad tracks and to the right of the major's dugout. There he enrolled four stretcher bearers with two stretchers and led them part of the way back to the ford where the platoon had been almost wiped out by the shell burst.

Tagged for a hospital because of his three wounds, Wescott started for the rear by the way of the ruined village of Chevieres, assisting a couple of gassed first-aid men in carrying on an old door a badly wounded soldier. As they trudged through the village shells exploded around them and walls tumbled down perilously near. Finally, however, they got outside the zone of fire and carried their wounded man about two miles to the rear, where he was picked up by an ambulance. Wescott made his way back in a truck, was sent to a hospital at Bar-le-Duc, and eventually went to Paris in an ambulance train. From a hospital in the French capital he was sent to a convalescent camp at St. Aignan, which he describes as something like Andersonville prison, a notorious Confederate hell-hole of the Civil war.

In the following April he was sent to Brest, where he boarded a transport for America. His regiment, the 2d cavalry, never bothered about doing anything to Wescott for being A. W. O. L. In fact, he became the regimental hero by winning the distinguished service cross. He was the only man of the regiment, so far as he knows, to get a D. S. C.

Wescott, who now resides in Chicago, following the profession of a consultant in civil and criminal cases involving firearms and ammunition, was born in Portland, Me., in 1897. He got his schooling at North Castine, Me., to which town he moved as a small boy. He was working in Boston when the World war began, and in 1915 he went to Liverpool and enlisted in the British army. He served in a Lancastershire brigade of the Royal artillery but did not go to France as a British soldier. On obtaining his discharge in 1917 he returned to America and joined the United States army.

Wescott was at Les Islettes when the notion suddenly hit him that he would like to see more action. So one night he gathered up his rifle and a few extra bandoleers of cartridges and departed afoot for the front. The next morning, which was some time early in October, he came upon the 311th infantry concealed in a woods. Just where that was he does not know. At any rate he joined up with the regiment's Company G at mess time.

The soldiers of the company feared he was a spy—there was a lot of talk then about Germans in American uniforms—so one of the sergeants took him to the company commander. Wescott told a cock-and-bull story about being separated from his outfit, was permitted to go along with the 311th to the front, and finally saw the aforedescribed action at Chevieres. He is certain that it occurred on Oct. 16, although his citation for valor says it was Oct. 21.

The KNIT-TEX TWEED TOPCOAT

Now Made of Imported British Wool

$30

Knit-tex is worn by more men than any other topcoat in America—perhaps you yourself have worn one.

The reasons for this preference: It wears longer, is lighter in weight, is very warm, soft to the touch and attractive to the eye.

The new Knit-tex Tweed pictured here now brings to you a type of cloth formerly loomed by hand. It has the feel and the rich smartness of the genuine hand-loomed imported fabrics. Even the primitive colorings formerly obtained from berries and herbs of the British Isles have been faithfully reproduced.

If you will look at the large photograph above, we believe you will consider it really unusual that this expensive type of tweed coat has now been made available at $30.

*The British Knockabout

This is an adaptation of the English town and country coat, appropriate for both business and general knockabout wear. The deeper armholes make it as easy for you to slip into as a raglan. The flare at sides and back provides freedom of movement for your legs. The roominess at shoulders accommodates the new modern type of broad-shoulder suit. It will flatter your appearance no matter what your age or size.

WHEN COLDS threaten

Try LEMON WITH SODA

TAKEN first thing daily on arising or the last thing every night, it's beneficial in two ways. It has a natural, gentle laxative effect for most people, hence, helps elimination.

Second, it helps keep the system normally alkaline, and adds the additional protection of vitamin C found abundantly in lemon juice.

1. Squeeze juice of one Sunkist lemon into tall glass half full of water. 2. Put half teaspoonful of bicarbonate soda in another glass. 3. Pour back and forth rapidly. 4. Drink when foaming subsides.

Try it 10 days. See if you don't benefit.

IF QUICK-ACTING BAYER ASPIRIN FAILS TO RELIEVE PAIN FROM RHEUMATISM HEADACHE

SIMPLY DO WHAT YOU SEE IN THESE PICTURES

1. Simply take 2 genuine Bayer Aspirin Tablets with a full glass of water. Repeat if necessary according to directions printed on box.

2. Relief from rheumatic or other common pain usually comes fast. But — if pain persists, let your doctor seek the cause.

Used by millions—costs but 1c a tablet—acts fast

IF YOU WANT to relieve the pain of rheumatism or neuritis, try Bayer Aspirin this way:

Take 2 Bayer Aspirin tablets with a full glass of water the moment you feel either a rheumatic or neuritic pain coming on.

Relief Comes Faster

You should feel relief very quickly from this. If pain is unusually severe, repeat according to directions you find in the box.

People everywhere are taking Bayer Aspirin for rheumatic and neuritic pains and say that results are remarkable. Yet it costs only about one cent a tablet, which makes the use of expensive "pain remedies" unnecessary.

If Bayer Aspirin does not give you the expected results, see your doctor. It is desirable, in any event, for anyone having pains from rheumatism or neuritis to be checked up by his doctor—to find the cause and correct it, if possible.

Backed by Medical Authority

When you see him, ask particularly what he thinks about taking Bayer Aspirin to relieve these pains. We believe he will tell you there is no more effective, dependable or quicker way the normal person may use regularly.

When you buy, ask for "Bayer Aspirin," not for "aspirin" alone. Get the genuine Bayer article.
